Taft Looses Broadside At Job U. S. Does Abroad

People Don't Know If Road Is to War Or Peace, Senator Tells Ohio Women

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 16 (AP).—United States Senator Robert A. Taft tonight described the Truman Administration's foreign policy as a "riot of inconsistencies," and added:

"Neither the people nor Congress have been advised what the real facts are" and "we do not know whether the Administration is leading us to peace or war."

The Senator, a prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, appeared before the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's Organizations with former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, an avowed candidate for President.

Stassen urged that the Republicans make their party "the party of hope."

Taft Hits Food Program

Taft told newsmen he would make known after next Wednesday his decision whether to seek the presidential nomination.

"We should make it clear," Stassen said, "that we have a deep and abiding faith in the philosophy that man was meant to be free and that this concept intelligently implemented will win through against any challenge that Communism or any other totalitarian ideology can present to us."

Senator Taft criticised the Administration for floundering in its voluntary food-saving plan.

In a prepared speech before the Republican women Senator Taft asserted that "the guiding principle of any foreign policy should be to avoid the catastrophe of war unless the freedom of this country is actually threatened."

Calls Red Threat Ideological

In order to prevent any threat to such freedom," he continued, "the Republicans have given whole-hearted support to the United Nations.

"I do not feel that today Russia really contemplates any military aggression, but there can be no doubt of its determination to spread the religion of communism throughout the world."

Senator Taft said the Administration's "floundering" in its plan for voluntary food saving proved it did not know how to put on a voluntary program. He added:

"It does not understand the first principles of appealing to the people for voluntary action, as we see in the fumbling efforts to produce a much-needed saving of foodstuffs in the United States.

"The OPA and other New Deal agencies have always relied on the 'crack-down' theory. They don't understand how to put on a voluntary program."

Says Left Wing Rules Democrats

Asserting that the principles of the Democratic Party depend on political exigencies involved in each problem as it arises, he added that party's policies "are dominated by the left wing, because of the constant threat of a third party, which would make further Democratic Party control of the Nation impossible."

In the last analysis, Taft said, the important domestic policies of the Democratic Party "must meet the approval of the CIO and the advocates of planned economy who look to a bankrupt Europe for their political principles."

Federal spending also was criticized by the Senator. He said the Administration had "actually invited European nations to ask for more money in the form of foreign loans, . . . without concern about their size or the burden on the American taxpayer." He described this as a policy, "as far as we can judge," to spend money without regard for the Nation's resources or the burden of taxation.

As a parting shot at "bureaucratic regulations," Taft said "there is every sign that if the Administration dared it would like to restore price control today."

Stassen advanced the following

Speaking Frankly

Byrnes Tells of Argument At Yalta Over Polish Border

By James F. Byrnes

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly"—six of 15 chapters of the book published October 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by James F. Byrnes Foundation (A Charitable Trust).

CLOSELY related to the reparations issue was the problem of fixing Poland's boundaries. President Roosevelt said, at the outset of the discussion that the United States felt that Poland's eastern boundary should generally follow the so-called Curzon Line. He still held, he said, the view he had expressed at Tehran that it would be desirable to adjust the southern end of the line so that the city Lwow and at least a portion of the oil fields should be inside Polish territory.

Prime Minister Churchill pointed out he had supported the Curzon Line in Parliament including the Soviet Union's retention of Lwow. The claim of the Soviet Union to this area, he said, "is one not founded on force but upon right." But if the Soviet Union made a "magnanimous gesture to a much weaker power" such as that suggested by the President, Mr. Churchill said, Britain "would admire and acclaim the Soviet position."

Marshal Stalin replied with an impassioned statement.

"The Curzon Line is the line of Curzon and Clemenceau and of those Americans who took part in 1918 and 1919 in the conference which then took place," Stalin declared. "The Russians were not invited and did not take part . . . Lenin was not in agreement with the Curzon Line . . . Now some people want that we should be less Russian than Curzon was and Clemenceau was. You would drive us into shame. What will be said by the White Russians and the Ukrainians? They will say that Stalin and Molotov are far less reliable defenders of Russia than are Curzon and Clemenceau. I could not take such a position and return to Moscow with an open face."

At this point, Stalin stood at the conference table as he spoke. It was the only time during the entire conference that he exhibited his strong feelings in such a manner.

"I prefer the war should continue a little longer although it costs us blood and to give Poland compensation in the west at the expense of the Germans," he continued. "I will maintain and I will ask all friends to support me in this . . . I am in favor of extending the Polish western frontier to the Neisse River."

MR. CHURCHILL doubted the wisdom of extending the western boundary of Poland to the Neisse River. He agreed that Poland's western boundary should be moved into what had been German territory, but asserted "it would be a pity to stuff the Polish goose so full of German food that he will die of indigestion." He estimated that the taking of territory in East Prussia as far west as the Oder would necessitate the moving of six million Germans.

Stalin protested that the number would be much smaller because "where our troops come in, the Germans run away."

Churchill reminded him that consideration must be given "to where those Germans are that run away," and asked, "will there be room for them in what is left of Germany?"

Privately, Churchill expressed to me the opinion that placing the line at the Niesse River would mean the transferring of nearly nine million Germans. Such a number, he asserted, could never be absorbed in what would remain of Germany.

The discussion was long and earnest but Stalin finally accepted the Curzon Line in principle and the following somewhat equivocal statement on Poland's frontiers was approved for inclusion in the protocol:

"The three heads of government consider that the eastern frontier of Poland should follow the Curzon Line with digressions from it in some regions of five to eight kilometers in favor of Poland. They recognize that Poland must receive substantial accessions of territory in the north and west. They feel what the opinion of the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity should be sought in due course on the extent of these accessions and that the final delimitation of the western frontier of Poland should thereafter await the peace conference."

NOT only Poland's boundaries but Poland itself was one of the most serious issues of the entire conference. More time was spent on this subject than on any other. Because of the intensity of the argument, Mr. Roosevelt would assume a role more of arbiter than of advocate, although he, as well as Prime Minister Churchill, urged the establishment of a new Polish government in Warsaw.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, wanted to continue the Lublin government. Stalin was willing to add a few persons but he wanted to make certain that those who were added did not affect the Soviet Union's control of the government.

The President said he favored a Polish government which would resolve all the political differences by "creating a government of national unity, a government which would represent all the political parties." Such a govern-

Assessment Under Fire

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 16 (AP).—United States Senator Robert A. Taft, a potential Presidential candidate, said today the American Federation of Labor may have overstepped legal authority in plans to raise a three-million-dollar campaign fund to fight the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Ohio Senator, here to address the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's Organizations tonight, along with Harold E. Stassen, Minnesota, an avowed Presidential candidate, told newsmen:

"I think they have no legal right to make an assessment against members for that purpose, but if the levy is in the form of a voluntary contribution, that would be perfectly legal."

Taft said he did not know the exact details of the fund campaign, which was voted at the federation's convention in San Francisco.

Wrong, Says Pepper

In Washington, Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said Taft "is completely wrong" if he believes the Taft-Hartley Act makes it illegal for the AFL to raise a "political education fund."

Pepper, a member of the Senate Labor Committee, of which Taft is chairman, told a reporter:

"That would be a denial of the right of freedom of appeal, free-

Eisenhower Repudiates Ike '48 Clubs

Spokesman Says General May Delay Army Retirement Till Early Spring

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, through a spokesman, yesterday again "repudiated" all Eisenhower-for-President clubs. He said he had never given his consent to the formation of such clubs, and emphatically would have withheld it if consulted.

The Army spokesman, Gen. Floyd Parks of the Public Information Division said that General Eisenhower might not retire as Chief of Staff to go to Columbia University until "late in March or early in April."

The Republican Party is to hold its '48 national convention in Philadelphia in June.

General Eisenhower is regarded by professional politicians as a "receptive" candidate for the GOP nomination for President, and nothing that was said on his behalf yesterday is likely to dissuade them from that view.

Clubs Won't Be Deterred

Henry D. Spalding, national chairman of the Draft-Eisenhower-for-President League, was not disturbed by the statement that came from the Pentagon Building. He said the organization had grown to such proportions that "it could not be stopped under any circumstances."

"We intend to go ahead with an intensified campaign in every State toward our original goal of aiding in the nomination of Eisenhower and his subsequent election as President of the United States," Spalding said.

What precipitated yesterday's statement was a number of news stories in New York newspapers, saying that the Draft-Ike movement had been launched with the general's knowledge and consent.

General Eisenhower also was aroused by a broadcast in the effect that Henry Wallace and two other men had conferred with him and asked him to try and wrest the Democratic nomination away from President Truman next year.

Broadcast "Absolutely Wrong"

Speaking for "Ike," General Parks said this was "absolutely wrong."

The Broadcast was made Tuesday night by Roscoe Drummond, chief of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor. Talking on the Monitor's weekly news analysis over NBC, Drummond said:

"At a long, intimate, unreported conference at the Pentagon Building, Henry Wallace, Bruce Bliven and Michael Straight, the two editors and the publisher of the New Republic, sounded out General Eisenhower to see if he would join with them in seeking to take the Democratic presidential nomination away from President Truman, with the general to be at the top of the ticket.

"Nothing came from this conference pleasing to Mr. Wallace."

Correspondent Drummond, when asked last night about General Parks' statement of denial, said "No comment."

General Parks, calling reporters into his office late in the afternoon, mentioned the formation of the Draft Eisenhower Club in New York City, and said he had been

U. S. Buying Defended

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Nation's brewers last night agreed to cut down the use of corn in making beer and ale by 25 per cent for a 90-day period beginning November 1.

During the same period they agreed to use no wheat or wheat products, no table grades of rice or rice products and no feeding barley.

No purchases of grain sorghums or sorghum products will be made from today until February 1, the agreement provided.

This development came at the end of a day that saw President Truman announce an investigation of speculation on the grain exchanges, a warning that apparently had little effect in the markets.

The day brought, also, bad news for both the American housewife trying to stretch her budget to cover already high food costs, and Government officials concerned with feeding famine-threatened areas abroad. The news came from the drought-parched great Winter Wheat Belt of the Southwest.

Drought Delays Sowing

"The condition of the winter wheat crop is a matter of very deep concern to everyone in the Department of Agriculture" was the flat warning of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson.

Shortly before Anderson discussed the drought that has made wheat seeding well-nigh impossible in many sections, December wheat shot up to a new 27-year high of $3.05 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade, where 90 per cent of wheat dealings are transacted.

The exchange paid slight attention to the attack against grain market speculations by President Truman who disclosed at a morning news conference that the Department of Justice had started an investigation of the operation of the Nation's grain exchanges.

Mr. Truman stated emphatically that gambling on commodity exchanges and not Government purchases for foreign relief, was responsible for recent rapid increases in prices. Wheat, he asserted, had been traded in about eight or nine times in Chicago.

Export, the President asserted, is not out of line with what it has always been; that this country has always exported one-third or more of its crop.

Anderson Blames Weather

Anderson laid blame for most of the rise in grain prices upon the weather. He read reports of late seeding and in many cases no seeding from Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Nebraska—in areas, the secretary said, of greatest yields.

Coupled with the warning of dry weather and of heavy dust delaying seeding was Anderson's remark about the large amount of poultry now in storage.

"I don't shudder at the stocks of food on hand when I think of the shortages of meat we will encounter next spring," he said.

As if to bear out the secretary, the weekly report on livestock by the department showed the meat in storage had dwindled 94 million pounds in the last month to 379 million pounds. Tuesday's figures on poultry showed stocks only 22 million pounds above a year ago.

Beef in storage is "considerably less than average for the last five years," the report stated, and "pork holdings are much lower even than before the war."

Anderson asserted that the recent increase in margin requirements had "shrunk" speculators

Britain Asks U. N. to Share Palestine Job

Unwilling to Take Major Responsibility, Political Body Told

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Britain announced today that she would refuse to take sole or major responsibility for enforcing the partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states.

Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech-Jones again reminded the Assembly's Palestine Committee that the British would withdraw their forces from Palestine "within a limited period." He did not go so far as to say that Britain would refuse to take any part in carrying out the partition scheme.

But he insisted that the Assembly had to work out a system of enforcement by others, and that his country would be the only judge of whether it would take part. His speech was clearly an attempt to make the United States and the Soviet Union face up to the enforcement problem, which the Ameri-

Truman Talks Of Hens, Eggs, Police State

A veteran reporter, who had gone without eggs at breakfast, asked President Truman at a news conference yesterday to help him "reason out this food conservation program." The result was a lively forum on eggs, chickens and the police state.

"Are you going to have the chickens go without grain on the seventh day of the week?" asked James L. Wright, of the Buffalo Evening News.

Mr. Truman said that he and Charles Luckman and others are after 10 million bushels of grain to feed the people of Europe. It was an emergency that faced the Administration. Under ordinary conditions, they would have had more time to work out a program deliberately. As it was they had to put one together in a hurry and then try and work the bugs out of it.

Mr. Truman said that he knew that the people sometimes feel that they are being imposed upon. But this, he added, was an attempt to do voluntarily in a free-enterprise country what other nations have to do with police state methods.

Which Came First?

Over a certain period of time, Mr. Truman went on to say, we save a certain amount of grain. We have got the distilleries and the bakery people and the restaurant people and everybody trying to help on the job. If they'll tell the Government of a better way, the Government will be glad to know about it. He was just trying to keep people from starving.

"Mr. President," said a report-

U. S. Probes Milk Price Complaints

Commission to Hear Producers, Retailers And Consumers Today

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

An inquiry into complaints about milk prices in this area has been launched by the antitrust division of the Justice Department, it was learned yesterday.

Extent of the study is not known, but Justice Department agents have questioned many of the leading dairy officials here, The Washington Post has learned.

News of the inquiry came as area milk producers, retailers and consumers prepared to debate increased milk prices before the Virginia Milk Commission, meeting in the auditorium of Alexandria's Health Department at 1 p. m. today.

Supplies 90 Per Cent of Milk

The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which supplies about 90 per cent of the milk consumed in this area, has requested a farm level increase which would boost the price of milk approximately 1 cent a quart. The increase would apply directly to Virginia, if approved, but probably would become effective throughout this area, and be passed on to the consumer.

Herman A. Schultheis, vice president of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, largest in Greater Washington, said his firm would oppose the increase at this time, but would request that if it is

'Apology' Is Eloquent

Terrifying Ordeal on Plane Told by Rescue Ship's Captain

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Capt. Paul Cronk of the Coast Guard cutter Bibb apologized by wireless tonight for the lack of eyewitness accounts by the 69 persons his crew rescued from a floundering flying boat in mid-Atlantic, and in doing so provided an eyewitness account of exceptional eloquence.

For the first time the world received a detailed closeup of the hours of almost incredible horror and misery spent in the downed Bermuda Sky Queen last Tuesday by the men, women and children now en route to Boston aboard the rescue vessel.

Cronk's message, released by the Coast Guard, said:

"No one has presented press messages for release. In order to understand the lack of enthusiasm for survivors to write stories or discuss films, awareness must be had of the terrific emotional impact of this experience.

"These people found themselves without warning in the most fearsome and miserable situation. It seemed unlikely they would live.

"They were unable to divert their imagination by action. The plane was bitter cold. Sounds of retching. The whimpering of children the ominous creakings of weakening Sponsons and the shriek of the gale, the washing of the sea against the plane were the only sounds.

"There was little conversation, soon the air was insufferable from the smell of seasickness. Clothes, bodies and decks were filthy. Prostrate persons without hope or strength lay in this mess.

"There were those few who were not deathly sick who tried to help the others. But the first help had to be rescue from the plane and it seemed as though rescue was hopeless.

"Then too there were aged persons, mall children and infants, these last doomed unless rescue was prompt. Remember there was no food and but little water.

"Then the plunge into the raft and sea. The lifeboat and raft tossing wildly together and apart. The terror of the sea, the wet and cold, the terrifying tossing alongside the ship and the inability to make one's muscles respond. Unconscious awakening to lights, warmth, dryness and safety. The sense of unreality. The flood of relief. The tears. These people must have some time for emotional recovery before expecting too much in the line of reporting.

"Now one sees women aboard the ship sobbing quietly without apparent reason. Not even ship's crew members can reflect, much less speak, of the scene presented when the mothers and children were first handed aboard without coming close to downright blubbering.

"There have been a number of brave persons among the survivors. The crew members of the S.S. Chisholm (presumably members of a ship crew who were passengers aboard the plane being ferried to

New Walkout Ties Up Shipping

2 French Transport Unions Vote Return to Paris Jobs

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP).—The first break in France's preelection strikes came today when 3000 of the 70,000 idle workers voted to return to their jobs.

Two independent unions, controlling approximately a tenth of the more than 30,000 striking bus and subway workers, voted to end their three-day walkout, but the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor which embraces the remaining nine tenths urged its forces to stand pat.

The first resumption of work came late this afternoon when seven buses began running on the line linking the Eifel Tower area with eastern suburbs.

Nearly 40,000 merchant marine employes tied up the major ports of France this morning when they walked out. But the union still was negotiating for a settlement of its 15 per cent wage increase demand, and both union and government representatives predicted the strike might end soon.

Premier Paul Ramadier, who has declared many of the strikes were "political," worked almost around the clock negotiating agreement with one union after another to clear the labor picture before Sunday when municipal elections are to be held throughout the country.

Political sources said he was working to make it impossible for the Communist-led confederation to call a general strike Monday if the elections go unfavorable to the Communist Party.

The General Confederation directed its member unions to list their grievances against the government in preparation for an over-all decision on such a strike by the Executive Bureau.

The government struggled to get at least one of the subway system's 20-odd lines into operation by tomorrow morning with the aid of the workers who voted to return to work, but the General Con-

Notice Served on Gen. Cox

D. C. Demands Funds Collected For Private Use of Armory

The Commissioners yesterday demanded that Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox fork over all funds taken in from non-military use of District Armory.

They warned that "at an appropriate time the District of Columbia will take such action as it is advised to recover these District of Columbia revenues which appear to be diverted to a private organization."

The demand was made in a letter sent over Commissioner John Russell Young's signature yesterday to General Cox, commanding general of the District National Guard.

General Cox last night said he would ask for a meeting with the Commissioners today to thrash the matter out. He is "very hopeful some arrangement can be made." He refused comment on the letter until he had made "a thorough study of it."

If the meeting today materializes, a proposal will be made to turn the huge hall over to the War Department. The Washington Post learned. One of the Commissioners is said to be agreeable to such a proposal.

The letter said an $8500 armory "occupancy agreement" between the "Headquarters Detachment Association, District of Columbia National Guard" and the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington was "completely illegal."

The agreement covered use of the armory for the "Home Show Exposition" sponsored currently by the Home Builders Association.

"It is fundamental that Government-owned property may be disposed of by sale or lease only by the Government itself, acting through lawfully authorized officials," the Commissioners declared.

"Obviously, 'Headquarters Detachment Association, District of Columbia National Guard' is not the 'Government,'" they added, "nor is John C. Mayhew, jr. (who

Special Session Is Still Possibility

Congress Call May Hinge on Ability To Provide Stopgap Aid to February 15

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A special session of Congress to speed stopgap aid to Europe may hinge on whether the Government can find dollars to keep relief pipelines full until February 15, 1948.

This was indicated last night as one competent source estimated it would take five or six weeks to pass emregency relief legislation once Congress returns.

The House Herter Committee on foreign economic aid, it was learned, is using the February 15 figure in its own preliminary survey.

If the Government cannot keep aid flowing until that date, without benefit of legislation, sources close to that group say a special session may be indicated.

Still Possible, Truman Says

President Truman told a press conference the Government has had considerable success in finding dollars to give Europe stopgap aid. He added, however, that a special session of Congress is still possible.

One of his friends at the Capitol meanwhile lost patience with what he termed "this quibbling and searching of pockets for money."

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.), just back from a European survey, said the President ought to end all of that by calling Congress into session December 1.

"I am not criticizing the President," said Hatch. "Congress has the responsibility, too. Republican leaders reserved as much power as the President possesses to reconvene Congress.

"What I am saying is, this is no time to argue about it. The situation in Europe is critical. If friendly governments topple, another power is ready to move in. We might wait too long."

Italian Credits Approved

In other developments:

1. Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N.H.) said in Paris that a "friendly disposed" American Congress might meet in special session December 1 and vote "at least partial stopgap aid to Europe."

2. The Export-Import Bank approved four credits totaling 32 million dollars for 60 medium-sized Italian industries. The credit is part of 100 million dollars previously granted. A prior credit of 29 million had been extended.

3. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson hinted some aid may be forthcoming from the Commodity Credit Corporation. Anderson said the CCC cannot advance money to foreign countries to buy food, but could aid "in selling supplies." This was taken to mean that CCC might deliver supplies from stocks on hand without requiring immediate payment in dollars.

New Deadline Figures

The Herter committee, slated to meet November 5 to consider both stopgap and longer range Marshall Plan aid to Europe, meanwhile was canvassing credits and dollar balances available to keep Europe in food and fuel through the first six weeks of the next regular session.

As staff experts were so instructed, one Senate Administration source agreed that merely enough dollars to carry Europe through the first of the year wouldn't be enough. To be "safe," it was said, at least six weeks should be allowed for congressional enactment of the emergncy legislation. By the same token, Congress would have to meet by December 1 to meet any year's end break in supplies.

A new Capitol deadline date meanwhile figured in Marshall Plan discussions. To allow Congress enough time to round out the longer range help, without a second food emergency, Herter Committee experts are figuring on interim aid through July 1. The Administration's first idea was that stopgap help would end March 31, and Marshall Plan aid would take over from there. Marshall Plan strategists at the Capitol feel it would be unwise to run Congress up against a short, March 31, deadline.

Difference of Opinion

Meantime, a sharp difference of opinion was noted in Government circles on the question of stopgap aid.

Government financial experts, as reported in The Washington Post yesterday, believe that enough dollars can be found to supply Europe with American food and fuel until Congress, meeting in regular session on January 3, can vote on a stopgap appropriation.

State Department officials are skeptical. They say they just can't see where the money is coming from, and they fear that the pipeline to countries like France and Italy will be empty by late December. These officials have never openly advocated a special session of Congress to deal with the problem. Privately, however, they have felt there was no alternative.

Still a Possibility

The question was brought up at yesterday's White House news conference when a reporter asked the President:

"Do you believe now that stopgap aid to Europe can be effected without a special session?"

Mr. Truman said at first that he couldn't answer the question. He said that the Administration was still working on the problem, still trying to find funds for stopgap aid.

"Have you had any success in finding funds?" he was asked.

He said that the Administration had had considerable success, and he pointed to the Export-Import Bank's action in allowing France to use 93 million dollars of a reconstruction loan to buy coal and other raw materials, the decision to allow the Army to buy 50 million dollars in French francs, and other efforts in this direction.

"There is still a possibility of an extra session?" Mr. Truman was asked.

He said that there was, of course.

Japan Trade Rebirth Hailed By MacArthur

Tokyo (Friday), Oct. 17 (AP).—Virtual completion of "major political reorganization" and re-entry of Japan into foreign trade marked the end of the second year of the occupation, Gen. Douglas MacArthur noted today in his monthly report for August.

MacArthur called the resumption of limited foreign trade a milestone on "the nation's road to self-sufficiency and remarked on increased production of iron, steel, aluminum, chemicals, fats and textiles."

The occupation commander listed these other developments:

Appointment of a chief justice and 14 associates to the Japanese Supreme Court and removal of that agency from the justice ministry.

Establishment of a cabinet labor ministry.

Purging of some 2300 persons and barring of more than 600 others from offices by screening committees which checked the qualifications of more than 590,000.

Establishment of 759 new labor unions, bringing the total to more than 22,000 with memberships totaling more than 5,600,000.

Expansion of the textile market, with goods now being shipped to Arabia, China, Iran, Australia and the United States.

Increase in money circulation to 150 billion yen and a rise in the national debt to 300 billion yen.

Labor Complaint By Supervisors Is Dismissed

By The Associated Press

Because supervisory employes are now outside the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Act, a complaint of the Federal Labor Union Local 23985 (AFL) against M. P. Moller, Inc., Hagerstown, Md., has been dismissed by the NLRB.

An NLRB trial examiner's report dated last December—before passage of the Taft-Hartley law—recommended the company, which manufactures pipe organs, be made to "cease and desist" from its "unfair labor practice" of refusing to bargain collectively with foremen, assistant foremen and other supervisory employes of the company.

However, a board order made public yesterday said that "since the issuance of the intermediate report, the National Labor Relations Act has been amended so as to exclude any individual employed as a supervisor."

2 French Transport Unions Vote Return to Paris Jobs

federation appeared to hold most of the trumps.

The independent unions control most of the motormen and were able to reduce subway traffic to about 25 per cent of normal before they were joined by the other workers. But the General Confederation controls power plant personnel. The returning strikers voted to end their walkout after the government agreed to study their demands for an 11 per cent wage increase.

Meanwhile the situation of the Parisian trying to get to and from work was aggravated today by a 24-hour strike of taxi drivers.

In his negotiations, Ramadier cleaned up one threatened strike by the National Gas and Electricity Workers by agreeing to their demand for immediate application of the 11 per cent pay increase approved in July.

He has persuaded the workers on the nationalized railways to negotiate requested pay raises directly with the National Railway Organization, heading off another strike.

But the premier and Transport Minister Robert LaCoste spent most of the day in conference with the maritime union.

No French ships left port and all vessels coming in had to reach dock without the assistance of tugboats.

Thirteen ships were tied up at Le Havre. These included the American ships Hampton Roads and Lookout Mountain.

'Favoritism' On Arlington Ballots Seen

T. Oscar Smith, candidate for the Arlington County Board, yesterday attacked what he called "favoritism" shown for two incumbent board candidates in the printing of ballots for the November 4 election.

The names of F. Freeland Chew and Harry Cuppett head the list of nine candidates. Ranked alphabetically, they would be placed third and fourth on the ballot.

Smith pointed out that the list of candidates for the Arlington School Board is "printed in proper alphabetical order," while the names of Chew and Cuppett appear ahead of Jacob C. Bechtel and Florence Cannon on the county board list.

He charged that Chew and Cuppett have thus been given "an unfair advantage."

Arlington Electoral Board chairman John W. Jackson called the issue a "small matter . . . part of the game." He said the three-member electoral board had followed traditional procedure by placing incumbents at the head of the ballot, regardless of alphabetical ranking.

School board candidates, he explained, were placed in straight alphabetical order because the three incumbents were appointed, not elected to their positions," and so all candidates for the school board are facing election for the first time."

Electoral board members, in addition to Chairman Jackson, a Democrat, are Republican William C. Ayres and Democrat Maynard M. Carlisle. All three were in agreement on ballot procedure, the chairman emphasized, though he admitted the listing of incumbents first might give them "a slight psychological advantage."

Pilgrimage To Pius X's Tomb Planned

Twenty-five diocesan directors of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine attended opening sessions of their national meeting in the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Fifteen more directors are expected today for the 12th annual, three-day meeting.

Usefulness of religious articles in teaching religion to children was stressed by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D., Administrator of the Archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington, in his address welcoming the directors.

He also emphasized importance of dogma, because he said, history has shown that wherever dogma was in decline the country also declined.

Plans for a pilgrimage next September to the tomb of Pope Pius X in Rome will be described at today's 8 p. m. meeting by the Most Rev. Matthew F. Brady, D. D., Bishop of Manchester, N. H.

Plans call for the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, D. D., Archbishop of Boston, to lead the pilgrimage, sponsored by the Confraternity.

Pius X revived the Confraternity in modern times. He died in 1914.

The place of youth organizations and other aspects and methods of teaching religion to the laity are being discussed at the day-long sessions. A 6 p. m. dinner will precede tonight's meeting.

Following concluding sessions tomorrow morning many of the delegates will go to Richmond, Va., for the three-day Regional Confraternity Congress of the Province of Baltimore, opening Sunday.

Byrnes Tells of Argument at Yalta Over Polish Border

ment, he maintained, should be provisional, and should regard as its primary duty the establishment of a permanent regime. He said the United States wished to have Poland on friendly terms with the Soviet Union and he felt if the conferees should solve the Polish question, they could make it easier to establish peace in the world.

"Britain," the Prime Minister said, "declared war on Germany in order that Poland should be free and sovereign. Every one knows what a terrible risk we took and how nearly it cost us our life in the world, not only as an empire but as a nation. Our interest in Poland is one of honor. Having drawn the sword in behalf of Poland against Hitler's brutal attack, we could never be content with any solution that did not leave Poland a free and independent sovereign state."

He repeated the sentiment expressed by the President saying that Poland should not be "free to entertain hostile designs against the peace and safety of the Soviets."

Mr. Churchill eloquently painted the danger which arose from the continuing existence of two Polish governments. He urged that provision be made for a free election and that, in the meantime, effective guarantees could be made to secure the lines of communication of the Soviet army.

STALIN displayed great earnestness in replying.

"For the Russian people, the question of Poland is not only a question of honor but also a question of security. Throughout history, Poland has been the corridor through which the enemy has passed into Russia. Twice in the last thirty years our enemies, the Germans, have passed through this corridor. It is in Russia's interest that Poland should be strong and powerful, in a position to shut the door of this corridor by her own force. . . . It is necessary that Poland should be free, independent in power. Therefore, it is not only a question of honor but of life and death for the Soviet state."

In every subsequent discussion the Soviet government has used this argument to justify what it has done in Poland. Their idea of a friendly government is a government completely dominated by them. The Lublin government fitted this description and Stalin did not want to take any chances with representatives of other political parties. Later I discussed the subject with Mr. Molotov. I could not impress him with my views that Soviet security would be better assured by having in Poland a people who were friendly, rather than a government that was friendly only because it was dictated to by the Soviet Union. Unsuccessfully, I argued that governments would come and go, but that if the Soviet government's conduct in Poland won the friendship of the people, the friendship of the government would be assured.

After the first discussion of Poland, President Roosevelt wrote a letter to Stalin suggesting that delegates from the Warsaw and London governments, and representatives of the several political factions in Poland not represented in those governments, meet to consider the formation of a new Polish government. The letter became the basis of further discussions.

THE CONFEREES debated the President's proposal for several days. Finally they agreed on a declaration providing, among other things: "The provisional government which is now functioning in Poland should therefore be reorganized on a broader democratic basis with the inclusion of democratic leaders from Poland itself and from Poles abroad. This new government should then be called the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity."

A commission, composed of Mr. Molotov, Mr. Harriman and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, was appointed to consult, first, in Moscow with members of the Lublin government, with democratic leaders from within Poland, and others from abroad, with a view to reorganizing the government along the lines indicated.

The declaration pledged the provisional government to the holding of free and unfettered elections, as soon as possible on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot.

As the conferees neared what we thought was agreement on this troublesome issue, President Roosevelt asked:

"How long will it take you to hold free elections?"

"Within a month's time," Mr. Molotov replied.

The election which, by our standard, was not "free," actually was held 23 months later, on January 19, 1947.

At the Yalta Conference, which Mr. Byrnes calls "the high tide of Big Three unity," President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin first encountered the sharp differences over voting procedure and the use of the veto which marked all the subsequent history of the United Nations. In a fourth installment of "Speaking Frankly," to be published tomorrow, Mr. Byrnes quotes from his own shorthand record of what was said on this problem at Yalta.

Bidault Confident Byrnes Always Tells the Truth

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP).—Commenting on the current publication of "Speaking Frankly," by Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said today he was sure Byrnes "will say the truth, even when he says something bad about me."

3 Shipyard Strikers Held in Riot Charge

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (AP).—The 113-day strike of CIO shipbuilders at three Bethlehem Steel Co. yards was punctuated today by the arrest of three strikers on charges of attempting to incite a riot, suits by two others charging the police with false arrest, and a report an old independent union will seek recognition at one yard.

More than 6000 members of the CIO industrial union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America walked out June 26 at the three local yards.

Moscow Stores Offer Unrationed Bread Loaf

Moscow, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—White bread baked in bunlike, 100-gram loaves—about one third the size of an American loaf—went on sale as a nonrationed item in Moscow groceries today. Persons were permitted to buy as much bread as they wanted.

It was the first time since last fall, when drought ruined a large part of Soviet crops, that bread or cereal was offered off the ration list.

AFL Drops Lewis From Top Council

UMW Delegates Noticeably Absent As Convention Elects, Ends Session

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (AP).—Snubbed by John L. Lewis, the American Federation of Labor today dropped the craggy-browed chief of the United Mine Workers from its ruling councils for the coming year.

Making good his defiant threat not to serve again on the executive council that he had savagely castigated as "dehydrated," Lewis and his Mine Workers were conspicuously absent for the annual election at the concluding session of the two weeks convention.

To Lewis' place on the executive council was elected Daniel W. Tracy, 54, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

All other officers were reelected without opposition and Cincinnati was chosen for the sixty-seventh annual convention next year.

Ovation for Green

Standing ovations were given 74-year-old William Green, reelected for the twenty-fourth time as president, and George Meany, the New York plumber reelected secretary-treasurer.

Meany and Daniel J. Tobin, president of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, emerged from the turbulent convention scene as undisputed strong men of the AFL.

Between them, they provided the instrumentalities for the crushing defeat of Lewis on the major policy question of combating the non-Communist affidavit issue posed by the Taft-Hartley law.

Today Lewis sulked in his tent with his miners when the election of officers came up. He was neither a candidate nor a nominee, and his place was filled by Tracy.

Appeal for Unity

Green, accepting his election, appealed for "unity and solidarity" in the labor movement and declared:

"I appeal with all the power I possess to those who left us to come back, to mobilize their strength with us for one purpose —to win for American labor."

Other members of the council were reelected without opposition. They are, in the order of their position on the council but without the former title of vice president:

Labor Party Rejected

Negatively, the AFL rejected political cooperation with the CIO until agreement was reached on "fundamental issues", permitting organic merger, and turned down in convincing manner proposals for an independent labor party.

Otherwise, Green listed among objectives for the coming year the promotion of world peace, development of labor solidarity, and "maintenance of an American standard of living commensurate with the requirements of American citizenship."

In winding up convention business, the federation approved resolutions to make both primary and general election days labor holidays to get out the vote, and urged unions to sign no contracts without such a holiday clause.

It also urged upping of the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour, broadening Social Security coverage, lowering the Social Security benefit age from 65 to 60, and including under the Social Security Act workers now exempt.

CIO Rules Out Third Party in '48; Recruits Million to Beat Labor Foes

Boston, Oct. 16 (AP).—Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action Committee, tonight ruled out the possibility of the CIO supporting or promoting a third party in the 1948 campaign.

Kroll made the declaration at a news conference after the CIO convention had pledged support to the PAC program to recruit one million voluntary workers to carry the PAC campaign into the homes of America, and to help oust from Congress "every man" who supported the Taft-Hartley law.

"A third party is definitely out at the moment," Kroll told reporters, adding that he meant it was out of the picture for 1948. "We will work within the existing parties."

His statement did not apply to New York State, where the PAC collaborates with the American Labor Party.

Talks Only of 1948

Kroll refused to rule out a third party after 1948, saying he did not know what the future might hold. He added that unless the CIO maintained a political organization it "could not take advantage of favorable political winds."

Asked how much money the PAC hoped to raise in voluntary contributions, Kroll replied merely that it was "driving for as much as we can get." He said the current drive to collect $1 contributions from all CIO members would end this month, but that the PAC hoped to conduct another campaign in 1948.

He said he did not know yet how much had been collected in the current drive. He reported that the United Electrical Workers had announced collections of more than $100,000.

Kroll was questioned as to whether the work of paid staff workers of unions cooperating with the PAC was considered a violation of the political spending ban of the Taft-Hartley law.

Denies Law Violation

"We're not violating the Taft-Hartley law at any stage of the game," he answered. "But at the same time we're not going to let the Taft-Hartley law violate our constitutional rights."

Earlier, the convention, by a unanimous standing vote, approved a resolution pledging CIO unions to support the PAC, after Kroll had admitted bluntly that the CIO had been less successful in politics than in the economic field.

"And if we really convince ourselves that a national election is at least as important as a national strike, we can win in 1948," he said.

CIO President Philip Murray told the convention that labor and liberal groups were united in seeking to drive "every man" who voted for the Taft-Hartley bill out of Congress.

Expects AFL Aid

He said he was confident that the "overwhelming majority" of AFL members would cooperate in the PAC program, although AFL President William Green rejected a CIO bid for political cooperation.

"Mr. Green's refusal doesn't mean very much," Murray said.

Kroll asserted that the PAC program needed vounteer block workers to promote political organization in their neighborhoods. The answer to the Taft-Hartley law, he said, should be the registration of 65 million to 70 million voters next year.

"PAC has set as its objective one million volunteer block workers," he said, "they will form the citizens' army that will carry the messages of PAC into the parlors and kitchens, and onto the front porches of America."

He reported that the PAC already had recruited 10 per cent of its goal.

Kroll appealed for voluntary financial contributions to the PAC, and said preliminary reports indicated that fund raising was proceeding at a faster rate than in previous years.

He told the delegates that the complexion of Congress could be changed next year because there were 154 "marginal" districts in which a small shift in votes would have "sent a progressive instead of a reactionary" to Congress in 1946.

Women's 'Confusion'

He blame the "confusion of women voters" over price control last year for helping defeat "progressive" Congressmen. And citing the "tremendous power" of the farmers, Kroll said labor must improve its relationships with them and explain their mutual interests.

Other delegates who spoke hammered on the theme that the country must return to the program of the late President Roosevelt.

Michael Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union, said President Truman was holding office "through an act of God." If Mr. Truman wants the confidence of the country, Quill said, he must "go back to a program of the people."

Herman Steffes, president of the Wisconsin CIO Council, proposed that CIO members be given a punched card, a button or some other "diploma" to prove that they have voted.

The convention heard Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., urge that labor, veterans, housewives and farmers, "get together" to win their objectives in 1948. He was present for the unveiling of a plaque to be placed in a Georgetown Hospital wing being built in Washington by the CIO as a memorial to President Roosevelt.

CIO Convention Hits Move to Deport Santo

Boston, Oct. 16 (AP).—The CIO convention passed a resolution today condemning the Government's efforts to deport John Santo, organization director of the CIO Transport Workers Union.

The Immigration Service has been holding hearings in New York, accusing Santo of being a Communist and seeking to send him back to Romania, where he was born.

dom of speech and civil liberties."

Senator Morse (R., Ore.), also a member of the Labor Committee, told a newsman in Washington:

"There would seem to be no doubt that one of the objectives and aims of the AFL is to carry on a political campaign, irrespective of what label is attached to its purpose. It is also perfectly clear that the proponents of the Taft-Hartley law sought to prevent the use of union funds in political campaigns.

"I said at the time and say now that such an objective is unworkable."

Robert Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said the NLRB has nothing to do with that section of the Labor Act regarding political contributions, asserting it is up to the Justice Department.

Justice Department officials commented: "We have every phase of the Taft-Hartley Act under study."

AFL President William Green, informed in San Francisco of Taft's remarks, told reporters he would welcome a court test.

"We don't think Senator Taft is the final authority," the AFL head said. "The courts will have to determine this."

Green acknowledged that meant a court test could be started over the AFL's plan to boost the per capita tax on each member to 3 cents, and to levy a special 26-week assessment of 1 per cent per member per week.

The act provides that disregard of the provision on political contributions would be a criminal violation. Violation would make any corporation or labor organization subject to a fine of not more than $5000, with every officer or director held in violation

Button Plant Strike Talks Off

Ridgely, Md., Oct. 16 (Spl.).—The strike situation at the Excelsior Pearl Works, Inc., plants here and at Federalsburg was described as "static" today.

A conference scheduled by State Labor Commissioner Joseph Di Domenico for today was canceled when the company informed the official that "there is nothing to conciliate or mediate in the present strike."

Di Domenico declared that he did not "see why the company didn't agree to attend a conference to discuss the issues." The company attorney, Erwin Feldman of New York, countered that the "company does not know why the union has failed to pursue its petition for certification now pending before the National Labor Relations Board."

Union officials said the petition would be filed within the next 10 days, and that it had been held up pending clarification of the Taft-Hartley law and the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco.

Di Domenico said he would ask the company to agree to a "consent election" to be conducted by the NLRB on the condition that the strike be called off and the employes return to their jobs without discrimination against them for striking.

Marshall's Views On Wedemeyer's Report Due Soon

President Truman said yesterday a statement on the highly secret Wedemeyer report on China would be made in a few days by Secretary of State Marshall.

The President told his news conference the report, rendered by Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer after a six-week study in China and Korea last summer, had been turned over to Marshall for evaluation. It was then reported soon after Wedemeyer's return last September that he had been assigned to bring back information on which this Government's future attitude toward the various conflicting Chinese factions would be determined.

So well guarded have been its contents that Representative Judd (R., Minn.), who leaves today on a quick survey of China, Japan and Korea, complained that he was handicapped by ignorance of what it might reveal. Judd will make the trip as a one-man subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Brewers Agree on Big Corn, Wheat Savings

in the grain market, and declared his department had no evidence of illegal operations on the exchanges.

He acknowledged that a study of speculative transactions in the corn market, conducted by the Commodity Exchange Authority in July, indicated some "prominent men" engaged in such operations. To an inquiry if these included any Government officials, he replied "some might be" but added that he had not personally discovered any.

The brewers' reduction in the use of corn announced last night will save 650,000 bushels a month, Chairman Charles Luckman of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee stated. In addition, brewers said that the seasonal decline in beer production during the last quarter of the year will yield another 350,000 bushels of grain.

If the aggregate savings fall short of a million bushels a month, the United States Brewers Foundation has agreed to increase the reduction of corn used per barrel of beer.

The agreement was reached after a long session, with members of the foundation, which represents the big breweries, and the Small Brewers Committee, with Luckman.

The lengthy meeting was required, it was stated, to iron out "some differences of opinion" between the two groups over the formula to be adopted.

The small brewers, although promising cooperation with the program, favored in addtion a limitation on malt barley to 80 per cent of that used from last July to September. This would have caused a decrease in beer production.

The foundation countered that such action would not save grain that could be used for other purposes.

To bring the two groups together Luckman agreed to insure supplies of malting barley to the small brewers. Last night he announced that he had arranged with malt suppliers to create a pool of barley malt to meet the demands of small brewers.

The program, Luckman said last night, "will not result in a beer shortage, and is not expected to cause any unemployment."

The Government already has bought more than half the wheat needed to meet the goal of 500 million bushels for export to food-deficit nations abroad set by President Truman when he announced the food conservation program and appointed the Citizens Food Committee. Purchases, the secretary said, already amount to more than 265 million bushels, and may be as much as 270 million.

He expressed satisfaction with the response of farmers to Agricultur Department requests to cut down grain feeding of livestock. "Hogs continue to be marketed at lighter weights," he said reports from livestock centers indicate.

Grain men were quick to reply to President Truman's charges that grain speculation is the chief cause for the present runaway grain market. They also questioned Mr. Truman's statistics on wheat exports. Government buying, they insisted, is mainly responsible for present prices.

Richard Uhlmann, first vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, declared Mr. Truman's figures on exports were "definitely not in accord with the facts."

Instead, Uhlmann declared, Government records show that exports have averaged only 12 per cent of the crop for the last 17 years, instead of one third as Mr. Truman stated.

In the last two weeks, Uhlmann added, the Government has purchased 40 million bushels of wheat—more than the United States formerly exported in an entire year.

This is the reason, he said, that, in spite of doubled margin requirements, prices have advanced 22 cents a bushel since margins were boosted October 7. Since that time, he admitted, "speculative trade has been almost at a minimum."

Walter R. Scott, president of the National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, asserted "President Truman has been misinformed."

er, "if you eat more chickens, wouldn't there be less chickens to eat the grain."

The Chief Executive laughed and said that was like the question of which came first, the chicken or the egg. What he was trying to do, he said, was to prevent grain from being fed to poultry and livestock.

If Program Fails

"If the food program fails, will you have to use other measures like restoring consumer controls?" he was asked.

Mr. Truman said that was a bridge he would cross when he comes to it.

"Do you suggest that consumer controls are police state methods?"

He said that anything that you have to enforce on the people smacked of police state methods. He asked the reporters if they didn't remember all the talk about prices being held down voluntarily when OPA controls were removed. He told them that they would find all that very interesting if they went back and read about it.

What About OPA?

Mr. Truman was asked if he thought OPA during the war was suggestive of police state methods.

He said, yes, that it had to be. The country had to have those controls during the war, he said, but he recalled that he was told vociferously after the war that this wouldn't be a free country if OPA controls were continued.

"That would apply to rent controls, would it?" he was asked.

Mr. Truman said it would.

Voting Board to Meet

The Arlington County Electoral Board will meet next Wednesday at 8p. m. in Trial Justice Court with all precinct registrars, clerks, and election judges invited to attend. Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss voting procedures for the November 4 election and to answer questions of poll officials.

signed the agreement as association president) a duly authorized officer of the Government for the purpose of leasing Government property."

The Commissioners said they "noted with surprise" that General Cox had signed a "miscellaneous application" to the Director of Inspection "on behalf of the D. C. National Guard as owner of the building."

"This District of Columbia Armory, as the Board of Commissioners have often pointed out to you, is the property of the Government of the District," the letter said.

The armory "may be used only with the permission of the District Government acting through its legally authorized officials—the Board of Commissioners—and all rentals and other consideration for its use are the property of the Government of the District of Columbia," the Commissioners added.

"You are, therefore, advised that the District of Columbia Government, as owner of the D. C. Armory, demands delivery to it of all sums received by any person or organization in anywise connected with, or purporting to act for, the District of Columbia National Guard, from any person or organization for the use of the . . . armory," they said.

The Commisioners said it wasn't clear what General Cox sought by the "miscellaneous application."

"If this 'miscellaneous application' is intended as an application for an 'occupancy permit,' such is unnecessary," they said, "since the Government of the District of Columbia does not issue to itself occupancy permits for buildings owned by itself, such as the armory."

Completed in 1942

The D. C. National Guard armory, completed in 1942 and paid for with $2,700,000 of District tax money, was occupied by Federal agencies during the war. Since July 1, it has been—at least nominally—under control of the National Guard. The lease under which it had been rented by the Public Buildings Administration expired June 30.

Georgetown and George Washington Universities have made tentative arrangements with General Cox to use the huge drill hall for basketball games during the winter, as have local high schools.

But seriously "disturbing" to school officials and the general, he said, is an ordinance recently unearthed which limits armory capacity to 4825, because of insufficient fire exits. General Cox has estimated 15,000 can be seated in the hall.

This would bring the home delivery price, which is now 19½ cents for most dairies, to 21 cents.

Schultels said:

"We had hoped that no increase would be necessary. If it is necessary we will ask the commission to consider our own increased costs.

"The farm price increase requested is slightly in excess of one cent a quart and we will ask less than half a cent additional, which will only cover part of our own increased costs."

Chestnut Farms is the largest customer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

The dairies which said they had been approached by Justice Department agents gave no details of the discussions. A Wakefield Dairy official said:

"I don't know what the nature of the investigation is."

No comment of any kind was made by the Justice Department. Officials of the milk producer's association could not be reached for comment.

Agreement Canceled

Last March, a scheduled drop in milk prices of ½ to 1½ cents a quart here was blocked when the Department of Agriculture canceled the Washington Area Milk Marketing Agreement at the request of the producers' association. The agreement was on a voluntary basis.

In May, the Virginia Milk Commission refused to grant a production price cut in the Alexandria-Arlington area, at a hearing at Richmond, Va.

Represented at today's hearing will be the producers, distributors and consumer groups. Consumer opposition to a milk price increase will be led by Mrs. Charles V. Strain, chairman of the Arlington Consumers Council, and Mrs. Sarah Newman, chairman of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection.

114 True Bills Returned in Prince Georges

A Prince Georges County grand jury completed a 10-day investigation yesterday by handing down 114 indictments in the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro.

The jury, first in county history to include women jurors, is expected to submit an additional report today dealing with gambling and a study of the county almshouse, jail and other Prince Georges institutions.

The 12 women and 11 men handed down five indictments for gambling. Other charges ranged from larceny to murder.

Named in the murder indictments were Mrs. Katherine Weaver, 39, of Cottage City, Md., accused of the fatal shooting of her husband on July 2, and Lloyd Milton, 28, of Bowie, held in the slaying of his wife May 2.

The grand jury reduced to manslaughter a charge of murder filed by police against William B. Wallace, 31, Cedar Heights, Md., following the fatal shooting of Edward S. Payne of Fairmount Heights, on May 6.

Among those indicted for gambling were three persons arrested in a tavern at Brentwood last Saturday night. They were John William Heinicke, who police said owned the tavern; Hal B. Bell, listed as owner of slot machines found operating in the establishment, and Miss Ann McAllister, a waitress.

The grand jury also returned indictments charging forgery on eight counts against Paul L. Barbour, former Hyattsville town policeman, who was accused of forging bogus checks totaling about $300 last May.

The jury ignored charges of abduction against James Francis Hampson, 24, of Arlington, who was held following a hearing last month in Marlboro Police Court. He had been accused of abducting a 17-year-old East Riverdale girl, who admittedly shared a room with him following a dispute with her parents.

Trial dates for the defendants indicted yesterday will be set next week.

Jack & Heintz Cancels Contract of W. S. Jack

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Byron C. Foy, chairman of the board of Jack & Heintz Precision Industries, Cleveland, Ohio, announced following a directors' meeting here today that the employment contract of William S. Jack, a founder and former president of the company, has been "canceled by mutual consent." The directors elected Foy president.

Jack was granted a one-year leave of absence from the company on December 9, 1946, after a difference of opinion, but retained his title as president until the annual stockholders meeting in May.

Eisenhower Repudiates All 'Ike for '48' Clubs

authorized to give out the following statement:

"General Eisenhower's attitude respecting political gossip is exactly that as expressed to press representatives on September 10. He neither seeks nor desires political office and anyone who purports to represent him differently is mistaken.

"He deprecates the formation of clubs or other organizations that seek to place his name before the public in connection with political purpose and urges that individuals do not spend their time and money in their support.

"In no case has he had prior knowledge of such purposes nor has his consent or approval ever been requested. Such consent would have been emphatically withheld."

Mumford's Claim Denied

General Parks expressly denied reported claims of Maurice Mumford of New York, executive vice president of the Draft Eisenhower for President League, that his organization was formed with Ike's consent.

General Parks showed reporters copies of two letters—one from Robert M. Harr, an officer of the league, and his (Parks) reply to it. This said:

"General Eisenhower has no interest in or intentions of entering political life or being a candidate for any office.

"He desires to complete his work as Chief of Staff and then assume his duties as president of Columbia University in which capacity he can devote his life to working for and with young people of the Nation."

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that General Eisenhower in no way condones or agrees with the movement you have started without his knowledge or consent. I suggest that you discontinue it at once."

Ike Afraid to Open Mouth

General Parks, in response to a question, said that the statement he had issued for General Eisenhower might be taken as a repudiation of all Draft Eisenhower clubs.

He remarked that General Eisenhower could hardly open his mouth these days without being misunderstood, and added:

"It has gotten to the point where the general is afraid to say anything."

Asked about Ike's plans for retiring as Chief of Staff, General Parks said that it was still his 'intention to leave in the first half of 1948.

"I heard him say the other day," Parks continued, "that he really doesn't know, but that the best estimate would be the latter part of March or the early part of April."

This question—the date of Ike's transition from Army to civilian life—is an important one in the eyes of politicians. They are thinking in terms of the preferential primaries that are held in various States in advance of the GOP national convention.

Some think the general ought to go into these primaries and make a show of strength. Others feel that it doesn't make much difference. They recall that Wendell Willkie hardly had a delegate to his name when he headed for the Philadelphia convention in 1940.

Chairman Mumford of the Draft Eisenhower for President League said in New York last night the organization would go right ahead. He said, "It is our right and privilege as American citizens to do so," and added:

"We don't know what impelled General Parks to . . . infer that Eisenhower would refuse the Presidency of the United States if drafted, especially in the light of the statement which Eisenhower himself made, to wit, 'I would not have the effrontery to say I would not be President of the United States.'"

Ordeal of Plane Passengers Told by Rescue Ship's Captain

the United States) have been invaluable in the air, in the sea and on the ship. In fact one is on wheel watch now and the others are turning to in other departments.

"Mrs. May D. Last, that fine old lady, was washed out of the lifeboat and later while in the sickbay being divested of wet clothing insisted on relinquishing her place to the injured boatswain's mate who had rescued her.

(A previous message from the Bibb's commander said Ralph J. Keller of Fairhope, Ala., a member of a lifeboat unloading detail during rescue operations, saw Mrs. Last, 61, of Los Angeles, swept out of the boat by high seas. The boat threatened to crush her against the Bibb, the message said, but Keller jumped overboard, placed his back against the boat and fended it away from the Bibb with his feet. Despite back and ankle injuries he helped get Mrs. Last back into the lifeboat, from which she was transferred safely to the Bibb.)

Small Frilly Hat

"Another woman cooly assisted all through the night in the sick bay and the next day was found sobbing and hysterical with the hallucination that she was back in the plane and 'all those little children are dying.'

"A woman in a boat almost awash carefully replaced her hat three times. A small frilly hat.

"The survivors will be encouraged to write their experiences but there will be those who will not care to relive their experiences in words. At prsent our communication plant is many hours behind due to the large number of family messages being received."

The Bibb paused on its homeward trip today to take aboard a sick seaman from another cutter.

Business of Rescue Is Old Stuff to Bibb

By The Associated Press

For the Coast Guard Cutter Bibb, the rescue of 69 persons from a helpless flying boat in gale-swept mid-Atlantic was just another job.

The Bibb saved 301 survivors of torpedoed ships in World War II, the Coast Guard said yesterday.

The 69 saved didn't make a record day for the Bibb, either. On February 7, 1943, the aid ship picked up 235 survivors from the torpedoed U. S. ship, Henry S. Mallory, and the Greek vessel, Kalliopi.

Such activities were not made public during the war for reasons of military security.

The Bibb now is en route to Boston with the survivors of the flying boat, Bermuda Sky Queen, and a sailor stricken with appendicitis and taken aboard from the cutter Duane.

Va. Apple Crop 4,509,000 Bushels

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—The Old Dominion—normally the Nation's third largest apple producing state—will have only 4,509,000 bushels to contribute to the 1947 commercial crop of 112,910,000 bushels, Delegate E. Blackburn Moore said today.

The State's crop is not large, but some frosty days late in September brought out the color of the fruit, and finished off an "unusually clean and sound" crop, Moore stated.

In a special report, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today the State's 1947 apple production is only one-third of the 1946 output, but is considerably better than the record low crop of 1945. Pear production is estimated at 252,000 bushels. More than 30 persent under 1946, and the grape harvest is placed at only 1800 tons—21 percent under last year, and slightly below the ten-year average.

CLIMAX OF "ESCAPE"—Lieut. Thorsten Akrell, 34, Swedish mystery writer, and Mrs. Louise Forsell Kaage, 25, were held in Kongsberg, Norway, police station yesterday under "provisional" arrest at the request of Swedish authorities. The couple, said to have been in love for some time, landed Monday near the Norwegian town after a dramatic 250-mile flight from Stockholm, Sweden, in Akrell's Piper Cub, which ran out of gas. Akrell freed Mrs. Kaage from an insane asylum after allegedly stabbing an attendant. Mrs. Kaage, described as a one-armed narcotic, had voluntarily entered the asylum for treatment, it was reported cans mentioned almost casually and the Russians not at all in their recent statements supporting partition.

Britain Asks U. N. to Share Palestine Plan Enforcement

The British statement came during a debate in which Argentina lined up alongside the Arabs, while New Zealand and South Africa supported the partition plan.

There were undertones of irritation with the United States in Creech-Jones' statement. Last week Herschel V. Johnson, speaking for the United States, said Britain was still responsible under the Mandate for governing Palestine, and pointedly recalled the Anglo-American Convention of 1924 which recognized Britain as the mandatory power.

Today Creech-Jones said, in effect, that his country was "entitled" to lay down the mandate, and could not "go on indefinitely faced with the hostility of the parties in Palestine, with fierce misrepresentations outside and with the drain on our own resources."

Without naming the United States, he took a dig at "the connivance of some governments" in letting their citizens provide ships, arms and money to carry on illegal immigration and to make the British task in Palestine much harder.

"Proposals for a change in the status quo," he said, "should not be lightly put forward by those who have no responsibility for the consequences."

As to enforcement, Creech-Jones interpreted Johnson's speech of last week to mean that Great Britain should carry out the sole responsibility "throughout an indefinite transition period," with the help of a voluntarily recruited international police force. This, he said, was unacceptable to his government.

He expressed the hope that the Arab nations would take no "provocative steps" or acts of violence because of Palestine, and he denied that the British government had given encouragement or help to any actions that might inflame the situation in the Middle East.

Apart from the British statement, Argentina's declaration against partition was important because it threatened to sway a number of Latin-American votes against the plan. Many of the Latin-Americans have been uncomfortable and unhappy about supporting partition. Today, they found themselves with a leader for the first time.

New outbreaks of cholera were reported in the Mediterranean seaport of Alexandria and in Damietta and Delt ain Beheria Province.

Joint Defense Plan in U. N. Is Attacked by Byelo-Russia

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The Soviet group of nations today took its first official notice of the so-called "Armstrong Plan" and Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg's support of it.

As might have been expected, they were deeply suspicious of it.

This was the plan of collective defense under Article 51 of the Charter, which entitles groups of states within the United Nations to band together against aggression As outlined by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs, in a recent newspaper article, it would entitle the non-Soviet world to band together in case of continued Soviet obstruction in the Security Council.

Attack on U. N. Charged

Today Kuzma Kisselev of Byelorussia told the Assembly's Political Committee that this idea underlay the American proposal for a year-round standing committee of the Assembly. The so-called "Little Assembly" scheme, he said, was the creation of "some United States leaders" who are "trying to create an anti-Soviet bloc," to liquidate the old United Nations organization and to form a new one.

He said it was an attack through the back door against the veto power in the Security Council, and he found it illegal, and unacceptable. He accused Senator Vandenberg of inconsistency in being the foremost champion of the veto at the San Francisco Conference and its determined opponent now.

Foreign Minister Zygmunt Modzelewski of Poland also attacked the "Little Assembly" proposal, calling it useless and dangerous. He said the world had witnessed a "Pax Romana" and a "Pax Britannica." Must it now have a "Pax Americana," he asked, when it wanted a "Pax United Nations?"

Backing Is Widespread

Apart from the Soviet group, however, the "Little Assembly" idea continued to find widespread support in the Political Committee. Today India, the Netherlands and Greece approved the idea in general; Sweden and Lebanon thought it worth further study.

J. H. Van Roijen of the Netherlands recalled that his country had favored such a standing committee of the Assembly as long ago as January, 1946, when the first Assembly was meeting in London.

"As far as its legality under the Charter is concerned, we have no hesitation in declaring the resolution entirely constitutional," Van Roijen said. "We cannot agree either with those delegates who fear that in some way this new commission might infringe on the powers of its parent body, the General Assembly itself."

British Support Seen

As to the exact duties of such a standing committee, as outlined by an American resolution on the subject, the Netherlands delegate thought a subcommittee should work out the details. This has already been proposed formally by the Australian delegation, and the United States is likely to agree to his course.

British support of almost every aspect of the American proposal was shown today with the submission of a rewritten and slightly altered version by the United Kingdom delegation. The Americans would have the standing committee take majority decisions; the British would have its decision by a two-thirds vote. The British also proposed that any investigation to be conducted by the standing committee must have the prior consent of the states in whose territory they are to take place.

Thomas Calls A-Bomb Best U. S. Insurance

Glen Rock, N. J., Oct. 16 (AP).—Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Committee in Un-American Activities, says the United States should cooperate with the Soviet Union as long as there is hope for an effective peace but also should continue production of "bigger and better atom bombs" as the best national insurance.

Thomas told the Northern Valley chapter of the Reserve Officers Association last night the Russians may undergo a change of attitude in world affairs of the United States keeps strong.

Mine Kills 35 Japs

Tokyo, Oct. 16 (AP).—Thirty-five Japanese, 18 of them children, were killed and seven are missing after a mine exploded yesterday near Muroto, on the eastern shore of Shikoku, Kyodo News Agency said. The mine had washed ashore and police were trying to dispose of it. Four prefectural officials were among the dead.

U. S. Permits Austrian Police to Use Arms

Vienna, Oct. 16.—American occupation command today granted to the Austrian security department a highly unusual concession—the right to arrest United States personnel temporarily and to use arms against Americans in cases of self-defense.

Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, United States commander, observed that some law enforcement control by Austrian authorities was adjudged to be justified. Those detained must be surrendered to the nearest American military police as soon as possible.

8000 Jews Aboard Two Ships Start Journey to Palestine

London, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Two Panamanian ships, the Pan Crescent and the Pan York, have loaded 8000 Jewish refugees in the Black Sea port of Constanta for illegal entry into Palestine despite British protests to both Panama and Romania, it was reported today.

It was expected the ships shortly would pass through the Dardanelles, following the route to the Holy Land taken by two other refugee ships carrying 3500 passengers a few weeks ago.

Reports from Palestine predicted the two 4500-ton ships would be the vanguard of a fresh wave of illegal Jewish immigration which the Jewish underground hopes to complete before the British withdraw from Palestine.

Palestine reports said the Romanian government had answered British protests by saying it would do its "utmost" in the matter. This was interpreted in Jerusalem as a declaration of nonintervention.

The Panamanian Minister to London, Dr. Demetrio Porras, said he had received the British Foreign Office protest yesterday and immediately had sent an urgent cable to the Panamanian government asking that steps be taken to prevent Panamanian ships from trafficking in illegal immigrants.

Porras said his cable appealed for action "to avoid a massacre" since the British naval authorities have issued instructions that any armed resistance by illegal immigrants should be broken by force. He said the Panamanian government might be held responsible.

Jerusalem, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Two members of the Jewish extremist underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi were sentenced to life imprisonment today on charges of carrying arms while guarding two kidnaped British policemen.

Freight Rate Hearings By ICC Start Nov. 3

The Interstate Commerce Commission announced yesterday that hearings on railroad request for a 27 per cent average increase in freight rates will be held in eight cities, beginning in Chicago November 3.

The carriers have been granted a 10 per cent emergency boost. This would be included in any permanent increase authorized.

The last hearing will be held in Washington on December 8.

Clark Files Complaint Of Freight Overchrage

Attorney General Clark announced yesterday he has complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission that 718 railroads overcharged the Government for wartime shipments of tents and tarpauline.

The complaint is the ninth in a series filed as a result of an investigation by the Justice Department of wartime freight rates.

Newsprint Shipments Up

AEC Sets Up New Division Of Materials

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday announced the establishment of a new division, concerned with the exploration, development and procurement of raw materials required in the commission's program.

Although the materials were not specified, it was assumed that principal attention would be given to uranium and thorium, the only two natural elements now known which can be used as a source of atomic energy.

Heading the raw materials division, the commission said, will be Dr. John K. Gustafson of Salt Lake City. He has been connected with various mining enterprises here and abroad. During part of the war he was an advisor to the Government's Metals Reserve Co.

The AEC announced the creation of an advisory committee for exploration and mining, which will hold its first meeting today. The seven-man body is comprised mainly of officials of private mining organizations. Chairman is Donald H. McLaughlin, president of the Homestake Mining Co.

Physician Describes Remedy for Glaucoma

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—Dr. Otto Barkan, of San Francisco, said today that an operation for removal of excess tissue within the eyeball had "normalized vision for periods ranging from one to 10 years" in 66 of 76 operable cases of infantile glaucoma.

Addressing the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, Dr. Barkan recommended early operations, where indicated, before the pressure incident to glaucoma causes a distention of the eyeball and obliterates normal channels of drainage. Glaucoma is a hereditary disease which impairs vision by filling the eyeball with an excess of fluid, and hardens the eyeball walls.

Wider U. S. Search Right Asked of High Court

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A Federal bid for still more sweeping powers of search and seizure will come before the Supreme Court today.

Last spring a 5 to 4 decision of the court upheld a squad of FBI agents who placed a man named George Harris under arrest and then ransacked his home—without a search warrant.

Now the Government asks approval of three searches—without a warrant—of a man who was NOT under arrest, but was in a car with two men who were in the black market.

The case grew out of the fight to break up the gasoline black market at the height of the war. On April 14, 1944, the OPA got a tip that a man named Frank Buttitta was going to sell some bogus gas coupons. That afternoon, two OPA agents and a Buffalo, N. Y., detective trailed Buttitta's car to Arkansas and Barton sts. in Buffalo.

Men in Car Searched

When the racketeer car stopped, the officers found Buttitta at the wheel, with Michael DiRe next to him. The tipster was in the back seat holding two 100-gallon gas coupons which he said he got from Buttitta. The officers searched all three men. On DiRe, who had never figured in the case at all, they found neither weapon nor coupons.

The three were taken to the police station where DiRe was searched again. This time several coupons turned up. Two hours later, he was searched a third time and between his shirt and undershirt there was an envelope in which there were 100 more coupons. All the coupons turned out to be bogus.

After being locked up all night DiRe was charged, next morning, with having counterfeit gas coupons, which is a misdemeanor. He was fined $100 and given a year in jail.

The Government claimed the officers had a right to search the car, so it was all right for them to search DiRe, who was in the car. DiRe's lawyers quoted the Fourth Amendment, which says:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated . . ."

Does a citizen waive this right, they asked, when he steps into a car?

The Second Circuit Court of Appeals upheld DiRe, saying that, "if the prosecution of crime is to be conducted with so little regard for that protection which centuries of English law have given to the individual, we are indeed at the dawn of a new era; and much that we have deemed vital to our liberty is a delusion."

That was on February 3 this year, three months before the Harris decision.

From the Circuit Court, the Government appealed and will ask in argument today that DiRe be made to serve his jail term.

Czech Legislators Face Treason Trial

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Parliament agreed after a stormy session today to rescind the immunity of two of its members, allowing them to be tried on charges of plotting a rebellion in Slovakia.

The legislators ruled that Dr. Jan Kempny and Dr. Milos Bugar could be turned over to a court in the Slovak city of Bratislava for trial, but ordered that they be exempt from police investigation or prosecution.

Gen. Magruder, Wife Attacked In Reich Home

Frankfurt, Oct. 16 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Carter B. Magruder of Arlington, Va., and his wife were injured early today when they were attacked in their Frankfurt home by a former Polish guard, the Army announced.

The Pole, Joseph Bak, was shot and seriously wounded in the stomach by the general after a chase through the house from the bedroom where the intruder struck Magruder and his wife as they were rising from their beds.

The Army said the Pole entered the general's home through the couple's bedroom window with the presumed intention of burglarizing the house, which is within the Army's barbed wire residential enclosure.

Magruder, director of Army Services and Supply in Europe, suffered lacerations and bruises. His wife was bitten on the left arm and received nose injuries. The injuries were described as "not serious."

The Magruders resided at 608 N. Lincoln st., Arlington, when the general headed the Planning Division of the Service Forces. Later he was chief of the Service Forces in the Mediterranean, going to Germany in 1946.—Editor's Note.]

League Plans To Continue Atom Series

Tentative plans for continuing "atomic energy education" beyond Saturday's conclusion of Prince Georges County Atomic Energy Week were announced yesterday by Mrs. Irma Bogdanoff, chairman of the week's steering committee.

Mrs. Bogdanoff said the Prince Georges County League of Women Voters, which she heads, would sponsor adult education classes in county high schools.

Atomic Energy Week, she said, "has met with an outstandingly good reception thus far." As an indication, she added, many groups have requested additional information on atomic energy.

Dr. Arthur Brown and Dr. Francis Rice were principal speakers at yesterday's activities. Dr. Brown, a member of the American Society for Atomic Education, spoke before the County Teachers Association in the Cheverly Theater.

Dr. Rice, head of the chemistry department of Catholic University, talked before the District Heights Citizens Association and the Presbyterian Church Guild at District Heights School.

Schedule of activities for the remainder of the week follows:

Today, 8 p. m., at Mount Rainier High School, Dr. Brown, speaker, and "Tale of Two Cities," joint meeting of the Chillum Civic Association, Avondale Terrace Civic Association, Green Meadows Civic Association and Avondale Citizens Association.

Same time at South Cheverly Christian Church, "Operations Crossroads," "One World or None," sponsoring the North Kenwood Citizens Association and the Cheverly Citizens Association.

Mount Rainier High School, "Operations Crossroads," "One World or None," 3 p. m.; Hyattsville High School, assembly program.

Tomorrow, 8 p. m., Agriculture Auditorium, University of Maryland, final forum, sponsored by the Prince Georges League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women and the Atomic Energy Week Steering Committee. Forum on "The Importance of Atomic Energy in a Stable World Peace," speakers, Dr. William Higginbotham, Alfred Friendly, John Balderson, with Prof. W. M. Gewehr, chairman of the history department, University of Maryland, as moderator.

Farm Strike Cuts Romania Food Supply

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, Oct. 16.—A farmers' strike in Romania has reduced to a trickle food shipments to the cities and threatens the structure of the stabilization plan.

It is principally a protest against the suppression of the National Peasant Party and the arrest of its leader, Iuliu Maniu, Peasant Party sources asserted today in reports telephoned to Vienna.

Although the government lifted price ceilings on agricultural produce a week ago to encourage the peasants to deliver wheat, meat and milk, the official boon has been largely ignored, it was said. Peasant Party officials who now operate clandestinely since the party was outlawed, reported that the government was considering "drastic" measures to force the peasants to move their produce.

Maniu's trial on charges of treason is scheduled to start tomorrow.

"The peasants, who form the majority of the population in Romania, will display with what means that are left to them their full disapproval of Communist action here," an erstwhile Peasant Party official said. "They are determined that Petkov's fate shall not be the fate of Mr. Maniu." (This was a reference to Nikola Petkov, Bulgarian opposition leader, executed September 23 for allegedly plotting to overthrow the government.)

Citizens Group to Meet

The Progressive Citizens Association of Benning Heights will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8:30 tonight at 526 46th st. se., Edward G. North, president of the association, announced yesterday.

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP).—Pietro O'Nenni's left-wing Socialists tonight reaffirmed their unity of action with Italian Communists and supported everything about the Communist International "Information bureau" except the war on British and French Socialists.

Nenni's executive council seconded the bureau's denunciation of Italian Right-wing Socialists, headed by Giuseppe Saragat.

"They do not have anything Socialist except the name, and the judgment of the Cominform coincides with that already pronounced by the Italian working classes," the announcement said.

On the other hand, said the announcement, the British Labor Party, despite "criticisms of its direction," is the "expression of the British working class, and the French Socialist Party represents the socialism of France."

Although all Socialists had been thoroughly denounced by the international bureau, the Left-wing decision to stay in the Communist camp came as no surprise. In Rome's municipal elections Sunday the two parties teamed as "the people's bloc" to match Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democrats seat-for-seat.

De Gasperi said at a press conference today that a cabinet shake-up "does not seem urgent" but added that changes were possible later.

De Gasperi at his press conference denied Leftist charges that the United States influenced his policies, but added that the Marshall Plan was essential for Italy.

Va. Jail Setup Hit

The need for separate facilities fro detention and confinement of juvenile offenders in Arlington was stressed yesterday by Elwood Clements, Democratic candidate for county sheriff. Clements said he was "deeply concerned" over the problem, and added that he strongly advocates the construction of a regional jail to serve the Arlington-Fairfax-Alexandria areas. Clements faces independents H. L. Marcey and Charles B. Quade at the polls November 4.

Fall Hurts Carpenter

William C. Fritz, 67, of 14 Myrtle st., Alexandria, was in "fair" condition in Alexandria Hospital yesterday after falling 16 feet while working on a construction job in the Hollin Hall development four miles south of Alexandria. A carpenter, Fritz was setting trusses in the ceiling of one of the homes under construction when his foot slipped.

Dr. O'Conor to Speak

Dr. Clarence D. O'Connor, superintendent of Lexington School for the Deaf, New York, will address a meeting of the Parents Study Group of the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing tonight at 7:30 at the society headquarters, 2431 14th st. nw.

Bumper Olive Crop Aids Greek Outlook

Prolonged Drought That Ruined Grain Results in Trees' Best Yield in Years

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece (By Airmail).—The other day I went out to the island of Euboea, in the eastern part of Greece, to witness the beginning of the olive harvest. Only by realizing that the two staple items in the Greek diet are bread and olives can we understand the importance of the harvesting of this year's olive crop.

We must also realize that the wheat crop in Greece, owing to a prolonged drought, was the worst in decades, while the olive harvest promises a bumper crop such as Greece has not experienced for a whole generation. The same natural cause that brought about the good olive crop caused the failure of the wheat harvest: a long, extremely hot summer, without any rain.

One of Best Crops

The 1947 olive crop is estimated to be one of the largest in the history of modern Greece. Last year's crop yielded a surplus, but it was difficult to collect the oil for export. Farmers, not trusting the Greek currency, were reluctant to sell for drachmae, and they sold only as much as they needed to make their essential purchases.

This year's crop is estimated to amount to between 140,000 and 145,000 tons. The minimum carry-over from last year is calculated at 10,000 tons, though those who know believe that it is nearer 30,000 tons. Figuring on the minimum of 10,000 tons carry-over, the total supply this year is estimated to amount to 155,000 tons. Of this, about 90,000 tons will be required for home consumption. My Euboean friend told me he consumed 2½ pounds of olives per day.

Deducting this home consumption, there would be 65,000 tons available for export. As it will be difficult to force out the 20,000 tons which were not sold last year, the experts estimated a salable export quantity of 45,000 tons (all these tons are metric tons).

This year's exportable 45,000 tons would represent at the present world market prices $58,500,000. About 16,000 tons of edible olives are also available, representing a value of six million dollars. Thus, it is expected that 65 million dollars to 66 million dollars worth of foreign exchange will be available to Greece if this olive oil crop can be sold.

Tobacco Price High

In this connection, it is interesting to speak about the other exportable goods of Greece. Tobacco used to be her chief export. Before the war, 45 per cent of Greece's exports came from tobacco. In those days, about 50 per cent went to Germany, 15 to 25 per cent to the United States (only the highest grades) and the rest to central European countries such as Czechoslovakia, Austria, Hungary and Poland.

Judging by present prospects, there will be available:

From 1946 and previous years	about 21,000 metric tons
From 1947 crop	about 35,000 metric tons
Total	about 56,000 metric tons

At the present prices, the estimated value of this tobacco is 110 million dollars. The present Greek price of $1.03 to $1.15 a pound is too high, compared with the 85 cents a pound price in Turkey. Thus, this year our buyers were buying in Turkey, instead of Greece.

The sultanas (raisin) crop is estimated to amount to 20,000 tons, which, if exported at prices paid in the Mediterranean, could bring another four million dollars in foreign exchange.

From the 80,000 tons of currants, 60,000 tons are available for export, which could yield foreign exchange in the value of 12 million dollars. Dried figs and prunes could bring another four million dollars if the surplus is exported. Fresh fruits, such as grapes and citrus fruit, could yield another $4,800,000.

This raises the potential of exportable farm products to 216 million dollars. If these exports can be materialized, Greece will be able to pay for many of her other food requirements and essential imports.

The Gallup Poll

U. S. Influencing More People Than Russia

By George Gallup

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 16.—In the political struggle between the United States and Russia, the people of France think the United States is on top at the moment.

France, herself caught in the struggle between East and West, her own political make-up, part Communist, part conservative, is in a unique position to observe and appraise the running diplomatic battle between Washington and Moscow.

In a poll conducted throughout France by the French Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute voters were asked:

In your opinion, does the United States or Russia have the advantage in the struggle for influence on an international scale?

United States	50%
Russia	14
No opinion	36

As for the future of France itself, most Frenchmen are pretty gloomy. They think things are going to get a lot worse for France before they get any better.

Only one Frenchman in 25 thinks things are progressing well in France today, whereas 93 per cent say conditions are bad.

The polltakers asked:

Do you think things are going well or badly in France today?

Well	*
Rather well	4%
Rather badly	50
Badly	43
No opinion	3

(*Less than 1 per cent)

In a general way, do you think France is moving toward a more serious and troubled political scene or toward a more peaceful one?

More serious	77%
More peaceful	7%
No opinion	16%

Although communism is supposed to feed and grow on bad social and economic conditions, the French public as a whole doesn't seem to think that the Communist Party of France has grown stronger in recent months.

Do you think that the position of the Communist Party has grown stronger, or weaker in the past two months?

Weaker	34%
Stronger	21%

Worsening Plight Of Europe Cited

Chairman of Paris Conference Warns 1948 Will Be Crucial Year for All

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Sir Oliver Franks, chairman of the Paris Conference which drafted the tentative Marshall Plan program, warned yesterday that 1948 is the crucial year for American aid to Europe.

If that help is not forthcoming, he told a press conference, the result will be not merely a lowering of the living standards, but rather "entirely unpredictable" social, political and economic consequences.

"The essentials for life are simply not there," he said.

He and Herve Alphand, head of the French delegation to the conference, and in charge of its official reports, stated that there had been a "catastrophic deterioration" of the economic conditions of some of the 16 participating nations, notably France and Italy, since the time the conference began.

"We're starting behind scratch in the race," Franks said.

Europe has moved downward, rather than upward toward more production, in the months since the beginning of the Paris conference, he declared. To the extent that deterioration continues, to that extent is the task more difficult, he commented.

In response to questions on the point he said that the Paris conference might have to be reconvened to act on draft changes suggested by the United States. He said, however, that Americans so far had not rejected or reduced any of the proposals for help presented in the draft report.

But, he was quick to point out, this may be only because the discussions have not gone far enough to reach this stage.

"Enormous" Increases Asked

The conversations between Administration officials and selected representatives of the Paris Conference had been, until the previous day, entirely on a technical level, he said. Clarifications and further information have been requested in almost all fields. Franks said he believed all the requested information could be and would be obtained.

Alphand emphasized the fact that the plan calls for an "enormous" increase in production by Europe. At the end of the four-year period, the contemplated level of agricultural output will be equal to prewar, although at present it is only 75 per cent of that amount. Industrial production in Europe, now only 80 to 90 per cent of prewar, is to be raised to 125 per cent.

In spite of these increases, Alphand noted, consumption in Europe will still be far below prewar standards by 1951. This is explained by an increase in population, concentration of the production on capital, rather than consumer goods, and increased exports, to compensate for the loss of Europe's previous sources of invisible and other income.

Rationing for Years Seen

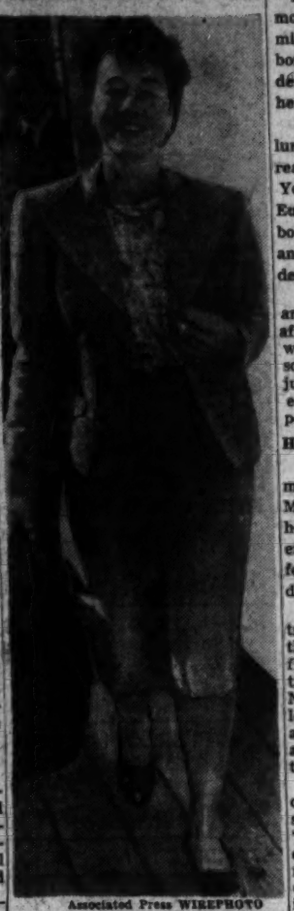
Europe will be unable to dispense with rationing for years to come, Alphand said.

Franks, admitting the limitations of the Paris Conference, nevertheless praised the program which emerged from it as an accurate picture of Europe's present situation and its production possibilities. It illustrates, he added, the "dimensions of our problems," by dollars and by commodities.

It gives a tangible thought to the hopes for recovery, and provides the means for future improvement of each nation's own position, and of its neighbors', through mutual effort, he asserted.

The conference report constitutes a start of a "process of great importance," he said, emphasizing the word "start." "A great deal can be built" on the foundations laid at the conference, he declared.

Lone Eagle's Wife Back From Abroad



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH, wife of the noted flier, walks along the deck of the liner De Grasse as she arrives in New York Harbor yesterday from a 2½-month tour of France, Germany and England. She gathered material for a series of magazine articles

Social Order Called Vital Arm of Defense

New York, Oct. 16 (Spl.)—A modernized social order — not military power nor the atom bomb—is America's first line of defense, Agnes E. Meyer declared here today.

Speaking before the annual luncheon of the American Recreation Society at the Hotel New Yorker, Mrs. Meyer, wife of Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, and a writer on social problems, declared:

"Why is this Nation, the richest and most powerful in the world, afraid of communism? I'll tell you why. Because we have bad consciences. We all know that injustice, inequality of opportunity, economic frustration and exploitation exist in this country..."

Hits New Deal Plan

The only way to defeat communism at home or abroad, said Mrs. Myer, "is to uphold with honesty and vigor our far more effective, more elastic and therefore more enduring principles of democratic government."

She warned, however, overcentralization of a social program by the Federal Government, and flayed the New Deal for such practices. Mrs. Meyer castigated the New Deal's social program as "the least scientific, the least objective and the most truly undemocratic approach to human problems that this country has ever seen."

In her own work, she said, as chairman of the recreation commission in Westchester County, N. Y., "I fought this overcentralized type of welfare organization (the WPA), not on political grounds but because I knew it was akin to fascism in structure and therefore a threat to our democratic institutions, to local independence and initiative, and to the preservation of freedom."

Political Approach Decried

She also warned of political approaches to social problems, commenting, "That way lies ruin without solution of our real difficulties. In this day and age, it is indeed uncivilized for candidates ignorant as most of them are of the complexities of modern sociological problems, to use an emotional pie in the sky approach to their solution as political bait."

Much of the best social legislation before Congress is the result not of a single party platform, but "bipartisan in its conception and its support," she declared.

Mrs. Meyer cited the Taft-Fulbright bill to raise the Federal Security Agency to Cabinet status, the housing bill sponsored by Senators Taft, Ellender and Wagner, and the "best bill" for Federal Aid to Education, S. 472, introduced by four Republican and four Democratic Senators.

Both Senator Taft and President Truman, she said, are equally concerned that "all social legislation shall be drawn on sound American patterns." It is a sign of real statesmanship, said Mrs. Meyer, "that even in the midst of a political campaign, Senator Taft has decided to continue his support of bipartisan legislation so vital to the welfare of our people."

Calls for Local Democracy

The primary solution to social progress, Mrs. Meyer said, must be by "citizen participation" to "strengthen democracy on a local basis," operating in conjunction with machinery on the Federal State and local level.

The "all-prevailing fear" of communism existing today, she said, has its value, "for some of our hardshell reactionaries would even now be voicing their pleas for the good old days of laissez-faire, if they did not feel the breath of communism on their heels.

"There is, in fact, much to be learned about our own civilization from our Communists . . . I'm not sure I, too, wouldn't be a Communist if I had been subjected in my formative years to the same brutal slum environment for which, in this prosperous country of ours, there is no excuse whatsoever.

Progress "Uneven"

This Nation, she said, and its democracy "is not nearly so adrift as many people would have us believe," but progress in implementing American ideals, "great as it may be, has been geographically uneven . . .

"As a result of this split in our culture between scientific knowledge and its practical Nation-wide application to human affairs, we suddenly find ourselves face to face, at a moment when we are challenged by European disaster, with a vast problem of poverty, ill health and illiteracy."

"We pride ourselves upon our public school system, yet some five million children go to no school whatsoever or attend school only spasmodically.

"We know more about the care of children than any other Nation, yet over five million recruits were rejected by the Army as physically or mentally unfit for service," she said.

Challenge to Politics

Politics and science must now unite, she declared, to "make our democracy the soundest . . . in the whole world," just as business and science have combined to make this Nation's material production so formidable.

"In the desperate battle now being waged between freedom and tyranny, our first line of defense is not our military power nor yet the atom bomb, but our determination and our ability to pool our resources of knowledge and translate them into a modernized social order that will improve the mechanism of government, liberate the dynamic energies of all the people and bring into action their wholehearted cooperation and enthusiasm as citizens of this republic."

Brewers Warned of New U. S. Prohibition Era

Cleveland, Oct. 16 (AP).—A representative of a St. Louis brewing company declared today prohibition again would be forced on the American public unless a campaign is started to block it.

George W. Eads of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co. told members of the Master Brewers Association that leaders of the brewing industry had failed to keep pace with dry organizations in education and legislative work.

Congressmen, Guerilla Target, Urge Offensive by Greek Army

Athens, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Two American Congressmen who were the target of Greek guerilla mortars returned to Athens after a week of adventure in the northern hills today, asserting that the Greek army must go on the offensive or guerillas will take over Greece.

"The fall of Greece is not only going to represent the victory of aggression over Greece but also means a serious defeat for the Unted Nations," the two Congressmen, Representatives Olin D. Teague, (D., Tex.) and Donald L. Jackson, (R., Calif.,) said.

The Congressmen were stranded for two days at Soufli, on the Turkish border, and the train on which they were scheduled to travel was blown up by guerilla mines. They returned to Athens tonight by plane and army convoy.

The Americans started on a week's tour of inspection of northern Greece by jeep. They flew from Kavalla to Alexandroupolis, and by train from there to Soufli.

A few hours later the bridges on the rail line were blown up behind them. The train proceeded to Didmoteichon. On its return—when it was scheduled to pick up the Representatives—it was blasted by guerilla mines, which killed three passengers and injured many.

The two Congressmen, both combat veterans of the last war, received their baptism of fire in Greece last Saturday. Guerillas fired five or six volleys from the Bellos Mountain heights near the Greek-Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontier junction, they said, and both of them hit the ditch for protection. Their convoy had halted while three mines were cleared from the road ahead.

"From observations we have made along the northern frontiers, it is my opinion that, contrary to any claims of any of the Andartes (guerillas) of being representative of a democratic force for the liberation of Greece, their actions would indicate they are murderous brigands," Jackson said.

"They are using the gangster element and the illiterate and ignorant of Greece against the real Greeks," Teague added.

Out of five surrendered guerillas they interviewed, only one was a volunteer, they said. The remaining four had been enlisted forcibly.

Queen Elizabeth Is Lost for Hours In N. Y. 'Pea Soup'

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—The Queen Elizabeth knows now that London fog is consumme compared to New York's pea soup.

The world's largest liner was "lost" for several hours today when schedules.

Originally scheduled to dock at 8 a. m., the ship settled down two a heavy fog settled over New York City disrupting shipping and plane hours earlier three miles off Ambrose Light because of the dense, ghostly fog. At 7 a. m. a pilot boat was sent to guide the huge ship into port but returned and reported to quarantine she had been unable to find the huge vessel.

When the fog lifted several hours later, the tide had changed, forcing the Cunard White Star Line to delay her docking until 6:30 p. m.—10 and a half hours after her scheduled arrival.

Twenty other vessels lay motionless outside the harbor.

Plane flights were delayed or canceled.

19 of 340 Japs Acquitted

Tokyo, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Only 19 of 340 Japanese tried on war crimes charges by four Allied nations throughout Asia have been acquitted, Allied headquarters announced today. Of the remainder, 44 were sentenced to death, 35 to life imprisonment and 14 to 25 years or more.

U. S.-Britain To Close 682 Enemy Plants

Berlin, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Anglo-American military governments announced plans today to dismantle 682 German war and industrial plants as reparations, leaving western Germany enough industrial capacity for it to help western Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Military government spokesmen warned German workers not to try to sabotage the program by strikes.

Lawrence Wilkinson, American military government economics chief, said western Germany could achieve 80 per cent of its prewar living standard by 1951 with plants left. Original Allied plans made in 1945 earmarked 1600 plants for reparations.

Allocations to Russia

Under the program, reparations allocations probably will be resumed to Russia and Poland though the Four-Power, Allied Control Authority, Wilkinson said.

He said the military government received no instructions from Washington not to follow the normal procedure of submitting a list of dismantled plants to the Control Authority's reparations directorate, which will divide them on a basis of three plants to the western nations, and one to Russia and Poland.

Unless the procedure is changed, therefore, Russia and Poland would receive 170 of the dismantled plants. Three hundred and eighty were industrial plants, and 302 chemical, munitions and other war plants. Wilkinson said 251 already have been, or are being, dismantled.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor, estimated the plants' total value at less than one billion dollars.

In an address over Radio Berlin tonight, Wilkinson said it was inaccurate to call the plants "reparations."

"Neither in number nor in value," he said, "can these plants begin to repay the destruction visited upon nations of the world by German wars of aggression."

Lieut. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor, said "steps will be taken" to enforce the program in event German workers should strike.

Ready to Use Force

Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, deputy American Military Governor, said he expected no resistance to dismantling, but that he was "ready to utilize our military force as a last resort" in event of trouble.

Hays termed the program "a very reasonable plan, which the German people should accept as a just plan."

Red 'Political General' Reported in Austria

Vienna, Oct. 16.—Col. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, former commander of the Soviet element of the Allied Control Commission in Hungary, has been reported installed in Austria with a part of his staff within the past 10 days, despite an earlier public announcement from Budapest that he was returning to Russia. His headquarters is in Baden, 20 miles south of Vienna.

Regarded by diplomats in the Balkans and by Soviet military men as a "political general," Sviridov had plenty of political practice in Hungary. He was the most powerful single factor in forcing former Premier Ferenc Nagy to resign.

CED Honors Marshall

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Trustees of the Committee for Economic Development tonight honored Secretary of State Marshall at a dinner, at which CED Chairman Paul G. Hoffman said the trustees rejected the "dangerous notion which now prevails too widely—that a great depression in the 1950's is unavoidable." Hoffman is president of Studebaker Corp. Marshall's talk to the trustees was "off the record."

Poultryless Thursday Gains Support

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Poultryless Thursday started "catching on" at Greater Washington area restaurants yesterday as the Nation observed the second food-saving Thursday.

A check of several restaurants which served egg and poultry dishes last week indicated a swing toward compliance with the national food conservation program.

Thompson's four cafeterias are now serving poultryless Thursday menus. So are the Mayflower Donut Restaurant, on F st. nw.; the three outlets of the Nedick's chain, the National Press Club and the Press Cafeteria. Others which complied earlier, continued observance yesterday.

Some Won't Cooperate

A manager of one of Thompson's units reported no complaints. But an official of the Donut Restaurant reported at least four persons went elsewhere for breakfast.

District Commissioners, who have announced that a local food saving committee will be named, disclosed yesterday they are awaiting the return to the city of a man they wish to name as chairman.

The proprietor of the Chamberlin Cafeteria on 15th st. nw., Mrs. E. Economos, announced that she has departed from the Thursday schedule because of "many complaints from customers" as well as a conviction that the program "does not save food."

She said that last Thursday, when no eggs were served, the cafeteria was forced instead to use 18 pounds of sausage, 10 pounds of bacon, three pounds of chipped beef and "much larger" amounts of wheat products for the preparation of waffles and hotcakes. The saving in eggs was 45 dozen, she said. Yesterday the cafeteria offered eggs, but limited customers to one each.

The proprietor of a 14th st. restaurant said that although the continued serving eggs and poultry on Thursday, he felt he was contributing to the food saving drive by closing his establishment every Monday.

Another 14th st. eating place experimented with public reaction to the poultryless day by removing many usual Thursday poultry items, but leaving a few, such as chicken soup.

Chain drug store counters and smaller establishments were awaiting a clearer response by the larger establishments, one manager said.

Housewives Sign Pledges

More than 1000 housewives, including Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, have signed pledges to support the food saving drive at the Home Builders' exposition in the Armory. Signatures will be accepted daily until Sunday after which a "mile of pledges" will be presented to President Truman, exposition officials said.

The Statler Hotel began featuring a "Share the Food Special" each day, encouraging the ordering of economy dishes prepared from abundant foods. John L. Hennessy, chairman of the hotel's board of directors, is preparing the menus.

The Military District of Washington said that more than eight tons of meat a month are being saved at Army messes at Fort Myer, South Post of Fort Myer and the Air Transport Command at Gravelly Point.

The Sheridan Super Markets at 4905 and 6205 Georgia ave. nw. opened a campaign to enlist housewives' support in the food conservation drive by handing out leaflets urging them to "buy carefully—don't waste food."

Col. Van Deusen Named For Radio 'Ham' Post

Beer License Denied Grocery Near School

Public school officials yesterday opposed the granting of a beer and wine license for a grocery store across the street from the Lovejoy Elementary School, 12th and D sts. ne.

Mrs. Beatrice B. Butcher, principal of the school, and James I. Minor, director of the Twelfth Division, District Public Schools, spoke against the application of Sam Schneider for an off-sale license for his store at 1200 D st. ne., at an ABC Board hearing held at the Municipal Center.

Board members Mrs. Agnes K. Mason and James O'Donnell Moran took the case under advisement after hearing Mrs. Butcher plead for "the lives of a lot of little folks who are very impressionable." She said their parents and the P-TA had asked her to speak against the license, the P-TA executive board having passed a resolution opposing it, she said.

A written protest against the license from the Board of Education was also received by the ABC board.

Schneider, who has conducted the store since February, 1946, and lives on the premises, said his business suffers from the fact that he cannot sell beer at present, while the True Value Market, directly across the street, has a license to do so.

The applicant, who said he sold penny candy, pickles, comic books and other articles to the school children as well as meats and groceries, filed a petition with the names of 50 "neighbors and customers" stating they had no objections to the license. Schneider said he intended to sell only beer, not wine.

India Strengthens Blockade Of State Leaning to Pakistan

New Delhi, India, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Indian army, navy and air reinforcements were rushed to Kathiawar Peninsula today to strengthen the blockade of the princely state of Junagadh, whose Moslem nawab has sought to join it to Pakistan.

A defense ministry announcement said fresh troops and a squadron of the Royal Indian Air Force would land on Kathiawar, midway between Bombay and Karachi, tomorrow.

The navy will visit the states adjoining Junagadh which have joined the Dominion of India.

The defense ministry did not make it clear whether the nawab, 47-year-old Sir Mahabat Khan Rasul Khanji, was resisting Indian troops who encircled his 3000-square-mile domain October 6. But that was considered likely because of the apparent haste in which reinforcements were dispatched.

A group of Bombay Hindus, led by a nephew of Mohandas K. Gandhi, was known to have set up an "opposition" government to overthrow the nawab.

India has protested to Pakistan, denying Junagadh's right to join the Moslem dominion The state is 400 miles from the nearest Pakistan border and almost 80 per cent of Junagadh's 800,000 population is Hindu.

Indian action in Junagadh has had repercussions in the large state of Hyderabad, whose Moslem nizam, the world's richest man, indicated a desire to remain independent.

Moslem rulers of the two states undoubtedly would be deposed, eventually, if they joined the Indian Union, observers said.

Also the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. and Seaboard Air Line Railroad Co. have joined in the petition to have the ICC rates made applicable to sleeping and parlor cars.

2 Boys Find Beaten Body Of Woman

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 16 (AP).—The battered body of a young blonde secretary, missing two days from her mountain-top home, was found in a ravine today 50 yards off the heavily traveled Birmingham to Atlanta highway, 12 miles east of here.

Mrs. Limbaugh

She was Mrs. Corinne Limbaugh, 34.

Two boys called to aid her husband, Clyde Limbaugh, 39, in a search discovered the body.

Deputy J. L. Boggan, acting coroner, said the woman had been severely beaten with a heavy instrument, and apparently had been overcome only after a hard struggle. He said no motive for the crime was apparent.

She worked in a department store here and walked 2 miles daily along a mountain trail to the highway, where she caught a bus for work.

Mrs. Limbaugh's clothing was torn and her underwear missing. Her purse had been rifled.

Bidault Hints German Rule By 3 Allies

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP).—Foreign Minister Georges Bidault hinted today that France may merge her German occupation zone with the combined British and American zones, if the Council of Foreign Ministers fails to agree on Germany at next month's meeting in London.

Reiterating a previous statement that the session in the British capital will be the "last chance" for agreement among the major Allies on Germany, Bidault said France "will reexamine her whole position" if agreement is not reached.

Davies Demands Attlee Abandon Potsdam Pact

London, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—A veteran leader of the Liberal Party and Britain's leading newspaper joined today in urging the government to abandon the "one world" thesis, and recognize that Russia and her satellites will not cooperate with non-Communist nations.

Clement Davies, Liberal Party spokesman in Parliament for 18 years, called on Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee to abandon the Potsdam agreement, and revamp Britain's occupation plans in Germany, on the assumption that Germany will remain split indefinitely between Russia and the Western Allies.

The London Times, declared that the Soviet Union has "opened the path to a final breakdown" of the victorious wartime alliance, but added that the split "does not mean that war is inevitable, or even probable."

The opinion was aired only a day after the publication of a book by former United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, urging the Western Allies to sign an immediate peace with Germany, and use force, if necessary, to expel Russia from the eastern portion of the conquered nation.

Hagerstown Doctors Adopt Plan on Care

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—This city's doctors united today to help the public solve the problem of obtaining medical care on Thursday afternoons—the traditional "off" afternoon for local physicians.

The Washington County Medical Society unanimously adopted a plan under which doctors will organize into groups of two or more, with one man in each group taking care of the others' patients.

However the society added that "criticism that doctors cannot be reached on Thursdays is exaggerated."

Vandegrift, Honored at Md. U., Urges Military Preparation

Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant, yesterday asserted that the late World War failed to make the world safe for fundamental freedoms, "even for the present."

He spoke at the Fall Convocation of the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., where he was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of the Agricultural School.

"Today it is obvious that in the war itself we failed to make secure, even for the present, all the institutions of freedom which we in this land regard as fundamental," General Vandegrift declared.

"It is apparent that we did not remove every source of exploitation and aggression."

Addresses 5000 Students

Speaking before some 5000 university students, including 1000 uniformed members of the college R.O.T.C. unit, he urged "individual military preparation" for all Americans.

"If we are to preserve the peace," he declared, "we must expect many military missions short of war. The manner in which those missions are executed may actually determine whether peace can be preserved.

"It is for this reason that I recommend individual military preparation as a vital part of our preparation for peace."

Speaking of the United Nations, General Vandegrift said "it must find some means for enforcing its decisions."

"We cannot expect sound solutions to the problems of setting up and employing and international police force unless our regular services continue to attract competent young officers."

Questions Emphasized

The Marine leader said that postwar situations emphasize the questions:

"Are we attempting merely to preserve a 'peace in our time,' understanding full well that a deluge will surely follow?"

"Are we so terrified at the implications of atomic warfare that we will settle for any kind of peace at any price?"

"Nevertheless, I am convinced that the American people will not consciously surrender their present opportunity to maintain a peace that is just and fair.

"I am less firmly convinced that this opportunity will not be lost through ignorance or disinterest."

Also honored at the university convocation was Dr. Paul DeLeon Sanders of Richmond, Va., editor of the Southern Planter, who was awarded the Doctor of Science degree in recognition of work done for improvement of rural life in the South.

Roanoke Cafe Operator Fined in Tax Case

30 Skeletons Given Study by Va. Biologist

Tazewell, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—It probably will be about two months before the nature and origin of the 30 skeletons found in a cave near here are definitely determined. Dr. Herbert W. Jackson has declared after viewing the remains.

Jackson, associated professor of biology at Virginia Tech, has taken measurements and samples of the remains and termed the cave "one of the most unusual finds in the southwest Virginia area."

In addition to the human remains, believed to be those of Indians, the cave contained small stone ornaments, fragments of pottery and beads.

Truman Tells Unitarians Of Peace Aims

President Truman yesterday told Unitarian Church leaders in assembly here that this Nation seeks nothing from the world but peace.

"When we had finished the cleaning up of the three totalitarian states," he told the assembly delegation which visited his office, "we had hoped for a world peace.

"We didn't ask for anything else. We have never asked for territory, and we have never asked for reparations. We have never asked for anything but peace in the world."

Aid Program Supported

Dr. Winfred Overholser, moderator of the American Unitarian Association, was among the delegates visiting President Truman. Dr. Overholser, president of the American Psychiatric Association and superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital here, promised the President continued support of Unitarians in the program of feeding Europe.

"The Unitarians have long concerned themselves with humanitarian activities, particularly during the past seven years," he told the President.

The sending of relief to Europe now is pressing "not only as an act of human charity but as a measure urgently demanded for the maintenance of peace and stability in the world," he said.

Dr. Frederick May Eliot, president of the church association, who headed the delegation, said the group would oversubscrive its relief measures in supporting the administration.

Approve Cooperation

The church leaders subsequently approved a plan for closer cooperation with the Universalist Church, Reformed Judaism, and "other liberal groups."

Such cooperation was the vein last night of a lecture before the Unitarians at All Souls' Church, 16th and Howard sts. nw., by Dr. Joshua L. Leibman, rabbi of Boston's Temple Israel and author of the best-seller "Peace of Mind."

Bringing a message of hope for the atomic age, Dr. Leibman declared that liberal religion can achieve a religion that will be "an authentic approach to human destiny."

"I am convinced that we will learn in time that if we don't work together we will all perish together in the clouds of radio-active dust," he declared.

Clarence Streit, editor of "Freedom and Union," and Quincy Wright, author of "A Study of War," will address a conference luncheon today at Hotel 2400. The sessions will close tonight with a sermon by Dr. Eliot.

Royall Seeks Recruits For National Guard

Kenneth C. Royall, secretary of the Army, made a Nation-wide appeal last night for enlistments in the National Guard, which he revealed were running over 30 per cent below expectations despite an advertising campaign of unprecedented proportions.

Church Council Is Denounced As 'Peddling Marx Doctrine'

Detroit, Oct. 16 (AP).—The American Council of Christian Churches today blasted Russia as "a voracious insatiable tyrant bent upon the enslavement of the peoples of the earth" and accused the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America of "peddling" Marxian doctrine.

The charges were made in resolutions asking President Truman to aid China "in order to save China and eventually the United States from the disaster to many noble causes which a communized China and Manchuria would sooner or later mean.

Russia is using her veto power, it added, to "sabotage the United Nations to promote her interests and gain the time she needs to strengthen her position to attack America."

An attack by the Soviet Union "as soon as she is ready with the atomic bomb" is "inevitable," the council continued.

"There is utter folly in deceiving ourselves longer. God will judge us."

"We decry the Marxian ideas—a planned and controlled economy, class strife and color conflict—which are actually being peddled in the United States by representatives of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America," the council's "resolution on communism" concluded.

Holding its sixth annual convention here, the council claims to represent about 3000 churches with 1,200,000 members.

A spokesman for the council said it includes churches of various dnominations "that don't care to go along with the modernism now being advocated by some of their leaders."

Headquarters of the Federal Council of Churches in New York declined to comment on the charges.

Police And The Press

Police Superintendent Barrett's press conference intimation that he may "push the pedal down" on access of newspapers to police teletypes is far more than a mere threat to "freedom of the press." It is not the press but the public that is ultimately concerned. Police reports are a matter of public information. For Major Barrett arbitrarily to cut off a portion of these records from the press would be to deprive the people of data they have a right to have. Such a withholding would be the entering wedge for rule by whim on what the press might or might not report. In all probability there was no sinister purpose behind Major Barrett's suggestion, but the action would be no less noxious. Moreover, an official ought to be particularly sensitive to his responsibilities to the people of the city he serves.

Two teletype circuits are now installed in the police headquarters press room for use of reporters. One broadcasts messages from the central bureau to all precincts. The other carries messages from individual precincts to central headquarters. It goes without saying that many of the reports on police teletypes are routine and are not in themselves newsworthy. The teletypes are in the press room because it is generally recognized—or at least it has been recognized up till now—that the press representatives must have a knowledge of what goes on in the Police Department in order to do an honest and competent job of reporting. We think Washington newspapers are keenly aware that their access to police reports is not license. It is a matter of record that they respect their trust not to publish information that would hamper police in apprehending criminals. For that matter, police have always had other means available, such as the telephone, for relaying confidential information.

What bothers us about Major Barrett's suggestion is that it arises not because of any misconduct on the part of the press, but apparently because of Major Barrett's annoyance over the necessity for a continuous public accounting. To be sure, Major Barrett deserves credit for his willingness to expose himself to reporters' questions, though his answers have not always been gracious. But Major Barrett ought to have learned before this that asking questions is the reporters' business, and that they will be particularly prompted to ask questions when they suspect there is an attempt to conceal or cover up. The job of superintendent of police is no place for a man with a thin skin.

Mr. Clayton's Departure

It is sad to see Mr. Clayton leave the Government service, though the sadness is relieved by the pledge of his availability for special jobs. Mr. Clayton, with a reputation as the world's greatest cotton broker, was one of the successful men of business who devoted their talents to public tasks when the war clouds began to settle over America. Some of them stayed on—not enough of them, contrary to Mr. Wallace's view, for the health and strength of Government service. Mr. Wallace, echoing Soviet propaganda, charges that our Government is under the thumb of Wall Street, as if Wall Street is a cabal or a conspiracy. As long as the "ghost" frightens only Mr. Wallace, and does not lead to the flight of the rest of the Claytons that remain, we shall not worry. In our view the hemorrhage of ability out of Washington has become a first-class menace to the efficiency of our administrative branch. Administration is the better half of legislation; and the elements of wise administration are representativeness and brains and continuity of service. Of Mr. Clayton's distinguished contributions to government none was more important than the attraction he exerted upon outside specialists to make the administrative service a career.

Instead of the kind of hustler that the world associates with the American executive, the Capital saw in Mr. Clayton a man corresponding to its concept of a Southern gentleman. His characteristics bore out his presence. He had patience and understanding in discussion, a breadth of feeling and outlook in all his relations. Nor was he an executive of the split-second decision. Perhaps because of his generosity of nature, he hesitated over some of the harsh choices that confronted him in his public life. He had a difficult moment, for instance, when as Acting Secretary of State he had to deal with the Wallace speech opposing the foreign policy that Mr. Byrnes was conducting in Paris. The vacillation, during which the President added to the general confusion, showed him in conflict between loyalty and duty. He was much more effective on the working level of negotiation. If he did not have the nimbleness of mind of a Keynes, he had a depth of knowledge coming from practical experience, meditation and a fund of common sense. It was a formidable combination, especially on an issue which touched basic principles, when his opposites saw the baring of his convictions.

In Mr. Clayton the ardor of a Southerner for freedom of trade was united to the belief—arising from his lifelong work in the world market place—in the general benefits of open competition. It was impossible for him to think in terms of two worlds except as a backward step. Yet between the time he inherited Mr. Hull's mantle as the champion of one economic world, or multilateralism, and the time of his resignation, a political pattern had developed in international relations which put multilateralism outside the realm of practical politics. What Soviet Russia has forced upon our policy-makers is a balance of power or a two-world policy. In the circumstances Mr. Clayton had to postpone his immediate aims while he was laying down a goal. Thus the charter of world trade being hammered out at Geneva will contain enough escape clauses and exceptions to the multilateral rule to cope with actual conditions. For instance, an integrated economy for Europe cannot be developed without some such relief. It was, therefore, the lot of Mr. Clayton, the confirmed multilateralist, in the Paris discussions over the Marshall Plan to take the lead in the development of a regional set-up for Europe. This last service was a tribute to a man—one of the finest personalities of the Washington scene—who all his life has had to face realities.

Faith And Freedom

Separation of church and state is a principle that is deeply ingrained in the American political system. It is no exaggeration to say that American democracy could not function without retaining and protecting this essential corollary of religious freedom. At the same time we think it is important to recognize this fundamental principle for precisely what it is. It is a guarantee against governmental molestation of, or favoritism for, any religious sect. But it is not a stick that can be legitimately used to beat a religious minority, and any such use of the doctrine in our opinion would be as un-American as the joining of church and state.

If the Nation-wide organization "to insure the separation of church and state," which was set up in a meeting in Washington on Monday, is genuinely devoted to that purpose, it will have a useful function. There are overtones in the announcement of the organization, however, which suggest that the chief aim of its founders is to widen sectarian schisms. One of its demands, for example, is withdrawal of the President's personal representative to the Vatican. Mr. Truman has made clear why he intends to retain, in the present emergency, direct contact with the headquarters of the Catholic Church. "I desire to do everything in my power," he wrote in his recent letter to Pope Pius XII, "to support and to contribute to a concert of all the forces striving for a moral world . . ." If there were a single fountainhead of Protestantism, he would doubtless also send a representative to it in promotion of this cause.

It seems to us that a similar objective should guide the efforts of religious bodies in this time of perilous assaults upon the dignity and sanctity of the individual upon which all Christian beliefs are founded. What we need is a pulling together of the moral forces in the world, not a pushing apart. That thought was effectively voiced more than a year ago by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, when he urged face to face conferences among religious leaders to take the place of name-calling and public accusations. "There are so many causes in this postwar period on which our President and our country require enthusiastic cooperation among Americans of all faiths," Dr. Clinchy said, "that I believe laymen are looking to their professional religious leaders for positive spiritual and moral guidance in intergroup ethics."

To be sure, there have been many statements of late from Catholic prelates and laymen which have created doubt whether the Catholic Church does in fact accept the separation of church and state upon which our democracy is founded. Some of the distinguished members of the hierarchy go so far as to declare that it has been impossible since the days of Leo XIII for any informed Catholic to accept the absolute separation of church and state. The claims by other Catholic leaders that the parochial school system is just as much entitled to direct Federal aid as is the public school system has also aroused suspicion as to the position of the Catholic Church on this fundamental issue. Nevertheless there are indications of a liberal and understanding attitude within the Catholic Church. In a notable address under the heading "For Faith and for Freedom" the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, D.D., recently told the Holy Name convention in Boston that "the separation of church and state in this country seems to them (the Catholics of America) the natural, inevitable and best conceivable plan for good order and practical procedure, the one that would work best among us, both for the good of religion and of the state." He invoked the distinguished names of Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland to support this view. His conclusion was equally outspoken and commendable: "American Catholics rejoice in our separation of church and state; they can conceive no combination of circumstances likely to arise which should make a union desirable either to church or state . . . For ourselves, we thank God we live in America, 'in this happy country of ours,' to quote Theodore Roosevelt, where 'religion and liberty are natural allies.'"

It is the spirit reflected by Dr. Clinchy and Archbishop Cushing that we need to cultivate. Separation of church and state is a rock-bottom principle that must not be disturbed. But one of the most significant truths that we have learned from living under this principle is that it does make "religion and liberty natural allies." If religious bodies fail to appreciate this significant fact in our age of shaky foundations, the consequences of their failure are likely to be written large in the history of a new tragic era.

Keynote Of Our Aid

In his address before the CIO convention Secretary Marshall warned that "among the first victims of any dictatorial regime, and notably of the police state, is the right of labor to organize itself for the protection of its interests." This is one of those seemingly obvious truths that is forgotten by those working men and women who reason that the organized labor movement of America need not concern itself about the political future of Europe. Mr. Marshall set himself the task of dissipating such misconceptions in a speech distinguished for clarity, moderation and sound judgment. His primary purpose was to enlist support for the Government's foreign-aid program by stressing labor's stake in the preservation of free political institutions in other lands. In exposing the dangers to free organization of labor from the suppression of civil liberties abroad, he incidentally exposed the menace to the domestic labor movement emanating from the activities in our own midst of the advocates of totalitarian doctrines.

This emphasis on the political aspects of the foreign-aid program might have been expected from the head of the Department of State. In any case, it is an issue of vital concern to the American people, of whom the great majority are workers. If organized labor can be convinced that the loss of freedom in other parts of the world through the spread of communism or anti-democratic forms of government constitutes a threat to our own form of government, Mr. Marshall apparently assumes that its support of the foreign-aid program can be taken for granted. For the section of his address outlining the need of Europe and referring to the interim and long-range measures required to arrest political, economic and social disintegration is largely factual.

No attempt is made to defend the program in detail on economic grounds. Economic relief is urged as a means of insuring economic stability, which in turn is essential to European political stability, without which our own peace and security will be endangered. This was a keynote that needs to be struck time after time in the present debate. Mr. Marshall's stirring address will, we believe, do much to justify his confidence in labor's willingness to make the material sacrifices required to give effect to our foreign-aid program. It should also help to weaken the influence of those dissident elements within the labor movement that are attempting insidiously to undermine our political institutions and to discredit our motives in rendering aid to the western European democracies.

Mr. Newell's Plotters

The trouble with the racial segregation which Clifford H. Newell, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, considers a "natural state" is that it breeds the very conditions by which he seeks to justify it. When men and women are forced to live in ghettoes, the stamp of the ghetto is forced upon their lives. In the case of Washington's Negro population, crowded increasingly into ever narrower areas of squalor, the impact is felt in terms of ill-health, juvenile delinquency, ignorance and even the bad manners which lead what Mr. Newell tactfully terms "the uninformed Negro, usually a newcomer here" to push his way into lily-white neighborhoods. Naturally, this is not the sort of Negro with whom Mr. Newell would like to associate. But unfortunately it is just the sort of Negro likely to emerge from the restricted living conditions and opportunities to which Mr. Newell would like to confine him.

Mr. Newell has "the highest admiration," he told the Brookland Citizens Association the other evening, "for all the colored race who are honestly making an effort to elevate themselves and become good American citizens." He has no patience at all, however, with those Negroes who try to elevate themselves by, say, attending the theater, or who seek to practice good citizenship by participation in the citizens' associations of which he is the president. These, he says, are the dupes of "unscrupulous agitators," of "schemers" and "plotters"—presumably those who declare that the Constitution of the United States extends its benefits and its protections to whites and Negroes alike and who preach the doctrine that all men are created equal. Among these "plotters," The Washington Post claims, of course, that it is entitled to be numbered.

THE ORCHARD

Here in the time of harvest I have come
To seek the apple red and white
That hangs upon the autumn tree.
Still seems to linger on the air
The April hum of bee; the song of birds,
The loosened blossoms in ephemeral flight.

But now the globes of fruit are full and sweet;
Pale spring, the curve of summer,
Fire-red, frost-white are found
Where the rich branch leans down at last
To touch the apples to the ground.

Richberg Vs. FEPC

Donald Richberg's brief opposing the passage of S. 984, a bill "to prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, religion, color, national origin or ancestry," appears to me to combine a misunderstanding of both the Constitution and the bill. Mr. Richberg speaks of the constitutional guarantee of the "essential liberty . . . to choose one's associates." To the extent that such associations are personal or social in nature Mr. Richberg is doubtlessly correct. But the associations with which the Ives bill is concerned pertain to "employment," the means by which the individual earns his livelihood. Both the Constitution and the bill are concerned with this.

The liberty of contract which Mr. Richberg seems bent on defending was never meant to be absolute. As Mr. Richberg surely knows there is a long list of judicial decisions attesting to the belief that a contract may be modified or guided according to the general interest of the community. Some of these decisions date a considerable number of years before the advent of the New Deal to which Mr. Richberg now finds himself in opposition. The passage of a fair employment practices bill would be indicative of the belief that the community believes that unemployment would be as dangerous to it as those conditions which impelled it to adopt the Constitution itself.

The bill which Senator Ives has sponsored does not compel an employer to hire anyone. It simply says that certain conditions of "race, religion, color, national origin, or ancestry" shall not bar one from employment. Beyond this the employer is free to choose whom he wants to work for him. I see no inconsistency between the objective of the bill and the objective of the Constitution stated in the preamble to establish justice and promote the general welfare.

How does Mr. Richberg reconcile his attack upon the purposes of the Ives bill and his promotion of the Taft-Hartley labor law? Is it not true that the labor law places restrictions, and some of them quite severe, upon one or the other party in a labor dispute? In its defense it might be said that the Nation has acted to protect an interest which it considers vital. So in the case of the passage of the Ives bill the Nation would have acted because it saw the necessity for full employment, for the effective utilization of all the resources which it possesses so that no group of our Nation would be denied the right to a decent living because of the fortunes of birth.

Hite Nursery School

Recently a series of articles about the Hite Nursery School has been appearing in the Washington papers. There are too few of this type school in any case, and it is a pity to do such serious injury to this one without presenting the other side of the case.

I am the mother of two boys, aged 3 and 5, who have now been at the Hite School for a year and a half. Both children are in excellent health, witness to the fact that they are well nourished. My children had a formidable adjustment to make when I brought them home from Germany in the spring of 1946. They had been born there during the war and had led the unsettled life of evacuees.

Mrs. Hite was most kind to the two bewildered little fellows who suddenly landed in her school while their mother looked for work and later held down her job. They have made the difficult adjustment and are both happy and healthy; they get along well with other children and adults, and have taken a long step toward independence. Since I have them with me every weekend, from Friday evening to Sunday evening, I have ample opportunity to observe their progress. I drop in on the school at will, and there has never been a time when I have not found matters in order.

Mrs. Hite can refute point by point the allegations which were made against her, if she is only given a hearing. She has fulfilled all the requirements for a license, her application has been filed, and the matter should be settled in the near future. Her house and its surroundings are excellently suited to the purpose; more important, of course, she really has the welfare of her charges at heart and spares no pains to provide the kind of atmosphere in which they can expand and develop. She is a college graduate with additional training in child care.

Unoriginal Insignia

This is pertaining to the new "unification" insignia, reproduced in The Washington Post of October 9.

As an artist, I cannot conceive of a less original and more hackneyed insignia design than the one approved for the seal of the "National Military Establishment."

It is really amazing in view of the fact that there are thousands of creative and capable artists in this country who certainly could have designed a seal more dynamic and original than the usual eagle, 13 stars, wreath, etc., which have been used since Washington's time for seals, coins, insignia and various other devices.

The approved seal has all the earmarks of a prize-winning design in a children's competition and is an insult to anyone that has any sense of artistic discrimination. ART DIRECTOR.

Ideas For CARE

Why not put on a drive, on the Red Cross or Community Chest pattern, by means of which everyone in the United States could contribute one day's pay toward the purchase of CARE food packages? CARE, which is now operating at far below its capacity, could then work at full capacity, sending to Europe several times as many food packages as it is now doing, and could hire additional personnel to speed up and expand its services.

By the time these funds gave out, the Marshall Plan should be well under way, making large-scale emergency aid no longer necessary. JEAN MELVIN.

Last year one of our friends sent us a plain penny Government postcard at Christmas time with this message on the back of it.

"May we wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year in this simple way? The money we would have spent on more elaborate cards is being used to buy a food basket for an undernourished family across the seas."

Good idea, we think, in this year of suffering! For those who don't have the name and address handy of a needy family, a contribution to CARE, 1344 Connecticut ave. nw. would fill the bill. One may specify the country too.

"Sales Tax and a Loan"

Your editorial of October 11 contains the possible implication that the D. C. League of Women Voters advocates the repeal of the present District of Columbia income tax. I wish to say categorically that the League of Women Voters does not favor the repeal of the existing income tax, even though it recognizes its inequitable features. The remedy is to remove those features rather than to repeal the income tax.

Asia's Need For Aid

I have read with great interest Mark Sullivan's article in your paper of October 13, under the caption "Bread and Toil" and as an Indian deeply interested in the problems of my country and the adjoining regions I would request you to urge the public and the official world in the States to think more along those lines.

We in that part of the world admired the large-heartedness of this country manifested in the working of wartime lend-lease arrangements and welcome the new shape which this principle is now taking under the Marshall Plan for Europe. We have admired greatly the thinking which produced the international trade charter.

Great as is our admiration for all this, we must confess to a feeling of disappointment at the utter indifference which one notices in this country to the needs of Asia in this period of postwar convalescence. Many of the countries of Asia, already poor before the war, were left poorer by the drain of resources and there is the tragic record of India that in an effort to supply the needs of the Allied armies she had to witness the unparalleled spectacle of seeing three millions of her people starve to death.

We are not jealous of the gifts that flow to Europe from this country. But is it recognized in this country that in Asia the standards of living were even in the prewar years lower in comparison with the present European standards and the war and inflation have further depressed them?

Secondly, as Mr. Bullitt pointed out in his recent article in Life, judged by the standards of aid to Europe, the aid which will be needed by China and by the other countries of Asia would only be a fraction of these large finances and it is most unlikely that it would strain the resources of this great country.

Third, if it is realized to what extent the economy of Europe is involved with the economy of Asia, it would be conceded that no amount of assistance to Europe will of itself give her complete aid so long as the economic life of Asia is not reconstructed and developed. Fourth, the international trade charter recognized that sustaining the productive capacity in the advanced countries is only possible with increased standards of living, particularly of the poorer and depressed areas of the world.

Against this background, Mr. Sullivan's point that the Indian Ambassador's appeal for wheat for famine-stricken India has passed almost unnoticed in the American press makes the poignant comment that America perhaps will not think of any such problem unless the countries of Asia come out to advertise their poverty and dramatize it as an argument for aid. How else is it explained that not only the benefactions of this country but even the resources of the International Bank and the Monetary Fund seem to be devoted to date only to assist Europe?

I would not conclude by accepting the cynicism that the United States of America is helping Europe on[illegible] because it wants Europe as [illegible]ion against communism. [illegible] the extent that poverty an[illegible]t are the finest allies of the Communist gospel would it be wise to let the doctrine grow in Asia while holding it down in Europe?

As the Indian Ambassador pointed out all that India asks for is wheat in exchange for dollars, set aside from out of our all too meager resources.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

French Political Split

PARIS.—The immediate and desperate need of France is for dollars to buy wheat and coal so that the level of industry will not drop disastrously. Once the immediate needs are met, however, the long-term problem of France becomes political rather than economic. The elements for recovery and reconstruction are here, or most of them, if only agreement could be reached on how it is to be carried out and by whom.

An important element ready at hand is a detailed recovery plan. It is the work of Jean Monnet, one of the ablest men in France, and of the group of brilliant young experts he has gathered around him in the general commission for the plan.

Already, within the general framework of the Monnet plan, considerable progress has been made toward recovery. The French coal mines are producing more coal than in 1938.

"Yes," says the average Frenchman, "It's an excellent plan but . . ." But how to carry it out under present circumstances?"

In their latest progress report, the planners say quite frankly that a stable currency is essential to industrial and agricultural recovery under the Monnet plan. Yet the Bank of France has just authorized a huge new increase in the volume of paper francs in circulation.

Confidence in the government, and therefore also in the currency backed by the government, seems to be declining rather than growing. Farmers are keeping back large stores of food in a country that once produced enough wheat for its own consumption.

AT THE same time, the French people seem to be drifting farther and farther apart, torn between the two extremes of Left and Right. The campaigns for the coming municipal elections have been bitterly fought on national lines between the Communists on the one hand and Gen. Charles de Gaulle's rally of the French people on the other.

Ordinarily, in the past, municipal elections have had little relation to national issues.

Between these two poles the Ramadier government of the Center flounders in a sea of difficulties. It is a grave problem not alone for France but for the United States, since aid given to an uncertain government is not likely to contribute to recovery and stability.

The author of the Monnet plan, a business man rather than a politician, believes France will achieve stability only through an effort to work with the Communist Party. He bases this unorthodox view on his own success in enlisting Communist support for his plan.

There is considerable evidence to support his view. Large employers have been able to make fairly reasonable terms with the unions in the General Confederation of Workers, which is Communist-dominated. Communist leaders have repeatedly urged the necessity to work harder and produce more in order to speed French recovery.

Monnet, a Frenchman to the core of his being, is perfectly well aware that the ultimate goal of the Communist leadership is a dictatorship of the Left in alliance with Soviet Russia. But he is also aware that the present leaders of communism in France are also Frenchmen with the strong national characteristics that mark the French.

THE MONNET argument goes something like this: France is a very old and complex civilization with a subtle and profound culture. Communism of the dogmatic Marxist-Stalinist type is bound to be modified in such a civilization. By working with the Communists, France may be able to achieve over the years a synthesis in which the Communist doctrine will be profoundly modified. The reforming of the Comintern, through the Belgrade Information Bureau, will put French Communist leaders on the spot as to whether they are actually under the orders of Moscow.

No French government that excludes the Communists can hope to succeed, since they have one million party members and polled more than five million votes at the last election. Therefore, they cannot be ignored. This view is expressed with a full realization of the perils of including a Communist minority in the government.

In the speeches he has been making to huge audiences throughout the country, De Gaulle takes exactly the opposite view. Invoking past glories and heroisms, the general denounces the French Communists as agents of Soviet Russia bent on destroying France. He stands up like one of the innumerable monuments to "La Gloire" and denounces the system of political parties which he blames for many of France's troubles.

The municipal elections may show whether despairing Frenchmen are turning to De Gaulle as a last hope in the face of imminent disaster. When he was in power before, immediately after the liberation, he was not a conspicuous success. But his ardent followers put that down to the war and to the failure of his sincere effort to cooperate with the Communists at that time.

To many Frenchmen the end seems to be civil war or something very like it. That is why De Gaulle is likely to be the reluctant final choice of those who feel there is no other way out.

National Guard

A Communication

I HAVE NOT had the opportunity to read the article in The Organized Reserve written by Major General Vaughan. However, the excerpts which you quote make certain glaring distortions of facts, as well as imply concepts that are directly opposed to the constitutional theories of the status of the armed services and the militia.

The article, which apparently proposes to do away with the National Guard as an element of the armed forces, and to absorb those units into the Organized Reserve under the all-powerful centralized control of the Federal Government, states that by such an act "a large financial burden would be lifted from the States."

Such a statement distorts the fact that the major portion of the costs of the National Guard are now borne by the Federal Government. The Federal Government furnishes their equipment, clothing, weapons and ammunition, and provides all pay for drills, encampments and maneuvers. The individual States pay only for the maintenance of armories, camp grounds, and such pay as is involved when the States employ the units in times of disaster or local emergencies.

One quotation states that "A State can have no need for so great an army." Later, it is stated that the writer declares that the States could continue to maintain militia forces. This glosses over the fact that the proposal would actually increase the cost to the States and to the Federal Government for the States would have to bear all costs except the equipment for their militia. And the Federal Government would have to acquire and maintain armories and training areas formerly furnished by the States for their National Guard, but now to be used by their militia.

IT ALSO glosses over another fact. If the State maintains no militia on losing its National Guard units, its only solution for emergencies which its Governor or Legislature deem require the use of troops, is to appeal to the Federal Government.

The justice of taxpayers of 47 States paying for action whose sole beneficiary would be a single State might be questioned.

In another quotation, "It would be well for the civilian forces to train in peacetime for the united functions they would have to perform as a part of the national unified military forces in time of war," the implication is made that such "training for united function" is not now the practice, and can only be gained by the scheme proposed. This again is a distortion of fact, for the National Guard, since passage of the Defense Acts of 1916 and 1920, has always, and is now, trained in the same manner and for the same functions as the Regular Army.

The Prussian general staff, over a period of years, conducted propaganda to the effect that the Landwehr, their national guard, had not been as effective as the centrally controlled reserve units (this was contrary to the truth); that economy would result from merging the Landwehr or national guard into the units under general staff control; that the need for united and instantaneous reaction required the national guard to be removed from its too-close association with the people, whose opinions were not always those of the central government, and to be placed under the immediate supervision of the politically reliable general staff.

In retrospect this militaristic system does not recommend itself for its effectiveness, since, when faced with the democratic type of military reserve, it has each time been defeated. The best that can be said about it is that, for good or for evil, the reserve military power of the nation is placed in the hands of a small tightly knit group of individuals.

APART FROM the above considerations of a correct appraisal of the lack of economy in the proposed system, and its position relative to our basic constitutional concept of no huge federally controlled standing (or reserve) army, there is another and wholly modern consideration. As reported in your issue of October, this consideration was set forth emphatically by the former Secretary of War, Mr. Patterson.

Mr. Patterson asked what would be the result if an enemy should destroy, with one blow, the seat of the Government and the members of the National Government. A very potent question if the controls of our National Guard are all centralized in the hands of the small group that were destroyed in this single mighty disaster. For what power would the individual States have to resist invasion, control disorder, supervise the flow of refugees and to take the other actions that would require the use of troops?

The mobilization of our reserve military strength would be paralyzed under the emergence of a new central control from the debris, and this control could identify itself and reestablish communications. This picture of chaos, as described by Mr. Patterson could not result if we keep the control of our National Guard in the hands of the States until such time as the Federal Government, by action of the Congress, calls the National Guard into the service of all the States.

If, as General Vaughan's article implies, there is in fact harmful competition and duplication between the National Guard and the Organized Reserve, the proposal described would not appear the most desirable. Of course, there remains a democratic alternative. That is to merge the Organized Reserve into the present National Guard, and for all hands to make sincere efforts to increase the already high efficiency of the National Guard. By this means we would assure ourselves of our democratic form of military organization and at the same time achieve the efficient decentralized control now so necessary as a countermeasure to the paralyzing effect of the atomic explosive.

Printers' League Official Tells Of Rejecting ITU's Proposal

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (AP).—Executive Secretary F. E. Street of the Graphic Arts League testified today his group had rejected a labor agreement proposal made by the Baltimore local of the International Typographical Union because "I did not feel that any self-respecting employer could be party to it."

Street took the witness stand on call by the National Labor Relations Board, which has charged the Baltimore local and its parent union with failure to bargain collectively—the first such complaint heard by an NLRB trial examiner under the new Taft-Hartley law.

Street, spokesman for an association of 22 local print shops, declared I. T. U. local President Charles V. Brannock had been pressing for an agreement before the effective date of the Taft-Hartley Act on August 22.

Willing to Talk Wages

The reason for this union request, the witness quoted Brannock, was that it wished to continue its "contractural relationship" with the league "without becoming involved in the prohibitions of the Taft-Hartley Act."

Street testified he promised to discuss the matter with members of the league. The employers decided they would be willing to negotiate if the wage issue was the only one raised.

However, toward the end of July Brannock appeared with a draft for a contract—admitted in evidence by Trial Examiner William R. Ringer—which he said represented the only terms on which the ITU would sign, the witness said.

The document, as received in evidence, bore the title, "Agreement to Amend Existing Conditions," and beneath it, parenthetically, "Subject to Approval by the International Union."

It was this document which street declared no "self-respecting employer" would sign.

In its attempt to show that the local, on International Union instructions, was guilty of "unfair labor practices" by failure to bargain, NLRB Counsel Sidney Barban introduced in evidence minutes of seven negotiating sessions.

This brought an unsuccessful protest from Gerhard Van Arkel, former general counsel for the NLRB, and Henry Kaiser, attorneys for the ITU.

They closely questioned Mrs. Sarah Murphy, the secretary who noted down the proceedings and then transcribed them, if she had followed any "instructions" as to "editing" of the minutes.

Secretary Testifies

Mrs. Murphy testified she had taken down everything she could hear at the sessions and had received no instructions from Street or anyone else regarding the preparation of the typed transcript.

Brannock, president and bargaining agent for the Baltimore local, whose testimony consumed the first two days of the hearing and was concluded this morning, declared on the witness stand his group had not "rejected" an offer of a "union shop" by the employers.

Responding to questioning by League Counsel Earl K. Shawe, the union official asserted:

"We couldn't agree because you (the companies) insisted anything we agreed should be in writing. So we laid the questions aside."

Earlier, Brannock testified the International advised all locals to go along "without a written contract" but to operate under "conditions of employment posted on bulletin boards."

Woodruff Randolph, president of the International, will be present at the Monday session of the hearing, Van Arkel said. The hearing resumes tomorrow.

Telegraph Operators Ask U. S. Ownership

Los Angeles, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Government ownership of the Nation's telegraph industry was proposed today by Western Union telegraph operators at a convention of their unit of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL).

A resolution criticized the Western Union Telegraph Co. for "a destructive and ruinous policy" of closing offices, reducing hours and transferring employes in such a way as to impair service."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

"My Congress, Oh My Congress!"

PARIS, OCT. 16.—An odd picture remains obstinately uppermost in the mind of any traveler leaving Paris in these unhappy days. It is not one of those images of beauty which have made Paris the glory and the envy of the Western World for 300 years. Rather, it is the picture of a distraught American policy-maker, nervously dodging issues with the abused air of a sparring partner who suddenly finds himself in the same ring with Joe Louis in a fit of temper.

Perhaps it is too early to make judgments after only six weeks of exploration of the workings of American policy in this moment of crisis. Yet it is hard not to feel that it is high time for us to grow up.

Our policy making has not grown up as yet. It resembles the behavior of a man who has suffered from a bad heart from early childhood, and has therefore always been wrapped in pink cotton wool by an affectionate family. He may reach adulthood in years, but when he is faced with hard tasks or difficult decisions, he sinks back upon the nearest sofa clutching his chest and murmuring, "My heart, ah my poor heart!" The makers of American policy have the same tendency, except that the burden of their moan is, "My Congress, oh my Congress, oh my dreadful Congress!"

EVEN SO ABLE and distinguished an American public servant as Undersecretary of State Will Clayton gave several notable performances of this little comedy during the Paris conference on the Marshall Plan. In Washington, politically inexperienced underlings passed out the word that Europe "was not really trying" because 16 national delegations and 1000 experts failed to write a blueprint Utopia. Meanwhile, in Paris, Clayton represented the American Congress as a sort of strange wild beast which could only be soothed by meals of poppyseed cake or some other sleep-producing delicacy. The result was the worst real fault in the Marshall Plan report: The foolishly optimistic assumptions as to future economic trends which the Paris conferees were forced to adopt in order to achieve a total cost figure that "Congress would stand for."

The theory seems to be that the American Congress, not to say the people, was incapable of understanding hard facts and taking appropriate action. This theory has been again put forward, more recently, during the rather self-important journeyings of Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder. Such things do not make pleasant hearing for an ordinary American. What is worse, the indecision and postponement of vital action resulting from the persistent fear of putting hard facts squarely before Congress and people may now easily produce appalling reverses in the great world contest with the Soviet Union.

THE CONGRESS and the country must grasp that we have embarked on a troublesome and painful job in seeking to contain the Soviet Union's ambitious imperialism. In this connection, a sustained attack has just been published on State Department Planner George Kennan's remarkable "Mr. X" article on Soviet-American relations. Kennan's whole point was that it was utterly impossible to reach a real settlement with the Soviet Union as now internally constituted. Discarding the other grim alternatives—surrender and preventive war—Kennan therefore advocated containment of the Soviets until future changes in the Soviet state should render a settlement feasible.

Kennan's proofs of the impossibility of a Soviet-American settlement at this time have been somewhat lightly, incompletely refuted. But Kennan has been sternly taken to task for not seeking such a settlement at this time, and above all because the containment policy is said to be impractical. This reporter happens to believe that Kennan's analysis of Soviet policy, supported by the greatest weight of learning and experience of any modern diplomat, is in truth irrefutable. Be this as it may, however, the essential point is that the policy of containing the Soviets, far from seeming impractical, has never looked more like working if we only put our backs into it.

This is one of the strongest impressions that Europe makes on this reporter after 12 months' absence. Great things have already been accomplished. Twelve months ago, members of the little group of experts surrounding Secretary of State James F. Byrnes at the Paris conference of last summer freely admitted the odds were at least even that the Communist Party would ultimately come to power in Italy. Grave fears were also felt for France, and elsewhere in the world there were many situations that appeared almost hopeless.

Now, however, the only danger of communism in Italy is that we in the United State will not give the Italians bread to keep alive this winter. In France, also, there is no more talk of France's imaginary role as mediator in the world contest; instead, one is told on all sides that "France has made her choice." Again, the only danger in France is American inaction in the face of France's desperate need. From elsewhere in the world the report is the same.

The trouble is that in order to do our job, something approaching total mobilization of our resources is now most urgently required. Otherwise we shall be in the position of the spoiled child-man who fell back upon the sofa, crying, "My heart, oh my heart!" when informed that the house was burning down. He saved his heart from any undue strain but he was unfortunately consumed in the flames.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Merger Affects 500,000 Salaries

ARMY-NAVY unification is to be felt by some 300,000 civilian employes in the three military services—the Army, Navy and Air Forces. These half a million employes are paid either a daily or hourly rate. In Government parlance, they are referred to as per diems.

Kluttz

The services have full authority to adjust the salaries of these employes without prior approval of either the President or the Congress. The Army and Air Forces use a different system from the Navy in fixing per diem salaries. Since unification of the services, Defense Secretary Forrestal has ordered the three services to work out a system which will guarantee equal pay for equal work for per diems in the same geographical areas.

The study has delayed pay raises for some 12,000 Navy per diems in this area. However, the increase should be ordered soon.

Navy fixed salary scales in the war years on a broad area basis such as East, West, and Gulf coasts. Flat increases to all employes were usually given.

The Army and Air Forces go into greater detail. They have this country broken down into 240 local wage areas. The wage staff watches reports of the Bureau of Labor Statistics and major union settlements. The wage trend in private industry is followed. For example, the staff will study per diem wages in Detroit after auto contracts are signed; it will go into Atlanta after textile worker wages are adjusted, and its wages in the Pittsburgh area will be reexamined after the steelworkers sign new contracts.

Army salaries vary widely. A common laborer in a small Southern town may be paid 65 cents an hour; in Seattle he may be paid twice that amount. The guide is the prevailing wage paid by private industry.

Since July 1, the Army and Air Force wage staff have ordered increases in 70 areas and have boosted salaries an average of 12.3 per cent. The remaining 170 areas will be covered before June 30, including the Washington area.

These are among the average increases approved by the Army and Air Forces since December, 1943: Richmond, 43.4 per cent; Harrisburg, Pa., 39.3 per cent; San Francisco, 37.5 per cent; Seattle, 35.4 per cent; Kansas City, 34.4 per cent; New York, 29.2 per cent; Washington, 18.5 per cent (this city of top living costs), and St. Louis, 18 per cent.

In contrast, the struggling white collar, or classified Federal worker, has been given only a 14 per cent increase in that same period. But the politically minded Congress must approve his increase.

FDIC: The President has approved the transfer back here of Federal Deposit Insurance's offices in Chicago. It's planned to complete the move by Christmas.

The corporation has 185 employes in Chicago. At least 100 will return. War service and temporary employes won't be eligible to transfer. The permanent employes who transfer will have all expenses paid. The offices here will have openings for CAF-3 and 4 stenographers.

A committee has been set up to find housing for the Chicago group. Members are: Ray T. Cahill, Edith C. Thompson, Carl Satterlee, James Milford and James Gaffney. Robert Dixon, a lawyer, has been sent to Chicago to help FDIC employes break their leases.

REVENUE: Charles D. Hamel will resign soon as chairman of the Excess Profits Tax Council of the Internal Revenue Bureau. He will resume law practice here. Hamel left his lucrative practice to return to Government more than a year ago to organize the council. The council has one of the toughest jobs in Government—to settle claims for more than eight billion dollars in excess profits taxes.

NFFE: Thirty-year membership pins have been presented to these members of local 105 of the National Federation of Federal Employes: Evy Casey, Elizabeth Bunce, Mayme Davis, Oliver Greer, May Hall, Nora James, Matilda Lindsey, Gertrude McNally, Gertrude Marlowe, Mignon Miller, Estella Miller, Iva May, Mary Morgan, Minnie Stevens, Maggie Thompson, Leo Williams, Ella Buckley, Elsie Mountain, Edna Terry and Laura Allen.

INTERIOR employes are protesting against the proposed new change in their working hours. They say they voted 2 to 1 earlier this year to retain the present work schedule.

PAY RAISES: William C. Doherty, president of AFL's National Association of Letter Carriers, yesterday appealed for higher Federal salaries, particularly for his letter carriers. He said in a statement:

"Letter carriers are not asking for the right to strike against their Government. We are not even suggesting the idea; in fact, let the record show we are diametrically opposed to the idea. But since we are denied that right by law," he asked, "are we not entitled to a like willingness on the part of those who hold the whip-hand to see that our economic welfare and other conditions of employment are protected?"

Commerce Dept. Advisers Urge Widespread U. S. Tax Reforms

Federal tax reforms giving a better break to businessmen and individual taxpayers were recommended by the Commerce Department's 20-man advisory committee today.

Covering a wide field of tax problems, the committee urged Secretary of Commerce Harriman to undertake "an active campaign in the interests of business" to ease tax restrictions.

The committee, headed by Ross Stewart of Houston, Tex., is a permanent setup to advise the Commerce Department on small business.

Among its major recommendations, the group called for:

1. Federal adoption of the community property system.

Now legal in about a dozen States, this would permit husbands and wives to split up the family income in separate income tax returns, thereby entering a "lower bracket" and effecting substantial tax savings.

2. A reduction in "duplicate taxation" on corporation incomes—first against the corporation itself, then against dividends paid to stockholders.

3. Equal tax treatment for cooperatives which compete with private tax-producing enterprises.

4. A $25,000 tax exemption on undistributed earnings of businesses and "removal of uncertainties and fear which hamper management judgment" on whether to retain larger earnings.

The committee also recommended a Federal study to determine "whether or not union contracts designed primarily for large industrial units and imposed on small business constitute a handicap to efficient production in small business."

It suggested, too, that small enterprises—both retailers and manufacturers—cooperate in such activities as buying, selling, and advertising.

Georgia Cleans Up in Wake Of Hurricane

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 16 (AP).—The hurricane-lashed areas of southeast Georgia gradually were restoring public utility and traffic facilities today, but the destruction wrought by wind and water in yesterday's storm left an extensive cleanup job in many sections.

The Red Cross, after a preliminary survey of property losses, reported that 1500 residences and 100 business buildings were damaged in Savannah.

The loss here was placed officially at one million dollars and in Savannah Beach it was estimated at $500,000.

Elsewhere in coastal counties of Georgia and South Carolina, and to a lesser extent inland, there was uncounted damage to trees, roads and small buildings.

The disturbance blew itself out in southwest Georgia today, although much of the State felt its dying effects in gusty wind and rain.

Miss Gwendolyn M. Simmons, Virginia Beach, and Miss Katherine K. Clark, Abingdon, will represent The Battlefield as editor and business manager, respectively, of the college year book and Miss Helen J. Goode, Roanoke, will attend as editor of The Bullet, the campus weekly.

Asks Punishment

Boss Crump Challenges Newspaper

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 16 (AP).—Memphis Political Boss Ed Crump declared today the Memphis Press-Scimitar should be punished unless it can prove its charges that politicians profited by City Hall favoritism in land development.

Crump

Crump took a full-page, paid advertisement to deny a Press-Scimitar article of October 6 headed: "Memphis hasn't just grown eastward—it has been forced to expand in that direction."

Crump offered $5000 reward "to any reputable person" who could prove that he personally or E. H. Crump & Co. profited by any favoritism or advance information on any real estate buildings or developments.

If former mayors and city department executives have shown favoritism, he added, those who did it should be punished. "If that cannot be shown as a fact, the Press-Scimitar should be punished."

He did not suggest the punishment.

The Press-Scimitar said editorially: "For the record we wish to point out that we made no charges of law violation in the article. We did charge, or do charge, that the city plan has been violated."

Editor Edward J. Meeman and three members of the Press-Scimitar staff were summoned before a special session of the Shelby County grand jury last week. The grand jury reported there was no evidence of law violation by any city official.

The Crump advertisement appeared in both the Commercial Appeal and the Press-Scimitar.

Bid on School $16,000 Under D. C. Estimate

A $508,971 low bid opened yesterday for building an addition to Kimball School, Minnesota and Ely pl. se., was more than $16,000 lower than the District's latest estimate for the job, Municipal Architect Merrill A. Coe revealed.

Coe said the addition would contain eight classrooms and a combination assembly hall and gymnasium.

The $508,971 bid, lower of two submitted, was made by Jeffress-Dyer, Inc., 908 20th st. nw., Chief Engineer Clerk P. M. Lumpkins announced.

Coe said his office would present the Commissioners with a recommendation for awarding the contract "in a day or so."

Work usually begins between 10 days and two weeks after the award has been made, he said. It will take approximately 15 months to complete the addition, he estimated.

Series of 29 Lectures Arranged at Academy

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—A series of 29 lectures, which Rear Admiral James L. Holloway said today are designed to broaden "academic and professional horizons," will be held during this school year at the Naval Academy.

The lectures have been separated into three classes, the superintendent announced, to include "social-humanistic," operational and technical subjects.

80,000-Word Bill Wants Fast Reader

Salisbury, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—The Salisbury City Council wants a long-winged reader. An 80,000-word building code was introduced more than a year ago, but before all 212 pages were read aloud at weekly meetings, the 60-day limit for action had passed.

Now the bill has been reintroduced, but inquiries for a fast reader brought no volunteers.

What of It? Ickes Demands On 'Nonpartisan' Registration

The "Old Curmudgeon" yesterday reaffirmed his political independence.

Reporters who learned that Harold L. Ickes had registered Wednesday at Olney, Md., as a nonpartisan, called on the man who held the post of Secretary of Interior longer than any other and asked for an explanation.

Busily dictating his newspaper column at his Olney farm, Ickes asked in astonishment:

"My goodness, why should anybody be interested in that?"

Reminded he had been a key cabinet figure in President Roosevelt's Democratic administration for 13 years, Ickes retorted:

"Was Frank Knox a Democrat? Then why should you assume I am one?"

"I have voted Republican in the past though I have never registered as one," he declared. "The last time I voted Republican was in Illinois, in the primary of 1932. But I did not vote for Hoover."

Up to his nonpartisan registration of Wednesday, Ickes has been a Bull Moose Republican, a Progressive, and a New Deal Democrat. He has delighted in political battle, through which he once called himself "a self-made curmudgeon."

The description stuck, though friends and enemies later changed it to "Old Curmudgeon."

Truck Driver Cleared Of Manslaughter Charge

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—An involuntary manslaughter charge against Forrest S. Hammett, 41, of Charlotte, N. C., driver of a truck involved in an accident near here October 10, in which five marines were killed, was dismissed today by Trial Justice James Ashby, jr.

Commonwealth's Attorney R. H. L. Cachichester recommended the dismissal.

Gas Rates Here Won't Be Changed In Next Year

Company Announces Stand in Asking for End of Arrangement Setting Charges

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's gas rates will stay where they are for the present, and probably for at least a year.

This developed yesterday in a Public Utilities Commission hearing on rates to be charged by the Washington Gas Light Co. The hearing was in the District Building Board Room.

The company announced that it did not now want an increase in rates. With this declaration, the company also filed formal notice that it is terminating the agreement under which gas rates have been fixed for the past 12 years. The original agreement permits either the PUC or the company to end the agreement on 90 days notice.

A PUC staff estimate said that $140,000 was available for a rate increase this year, or an average of about 1.26 per cent over present rates.

The company's action showed only one contrast with what PUC staff officials urged. These officials said there should be no increase in rates at present, as did the company, but they proposed modifying the rate-making agreement while company officials called for a whole "fresh start."

Possibilities Foreseen

PUC Chairman Flanagan said his group will study what should be done next. There were three possible outcomes: (1) modification of the rate-making arrangement, (2) working out an entire new arrangement, and (3) operating in the future without a formal rate-making agreement with rates fixed periodically by the PUC.

Company officials said either of the last two choices would be acceptable to them.

Their decision against asking an increase in rates was told in a letter to the PUC from Marcy L. Sperry, president of the Gas Light Company. It was read and formally presented to Chairman Flanagan by C. Oscar Berry, attorney for the company. It said in part:

"It is apparent that the application of the sliding scale formula (the rate making agreement) will produce an increase in rates. Such an increase in rates the Gas Co. is reluctant to put into effect at this particular time."

Sperry's letter voiced belief that the change from mixed to natural gas here had made it possible for his firm to avoid both the otherwise necessary large capital outlays for new gas making plants, and the large rate increases which would have resulted.

"Operating Experience" Needed

He said the changeover is just nearing completion, and "only operating experience will indicate whatt he company's financial result will be."

"We know that the change to straight natural gas is effecting substantial savings, and that it has prevented much higher rates being required, but we do not know that some rate increases will not be necessary in the future," Sperry said.

"Under these circumstances the company prefers to wait until further operating experience has been had and the probable trend of eranings indicated before establishing, with the approval of the commission, a new scheduled of rates for the future."

Both company and PUC officials said the change from mixed to natural gas put the present rate-making agreement of of line with actual operating conditions.

Two main reasons for this were given. One is that the change to natural gas will result in the large-scale abandonment of manufacturing facilities, the cost of which has not been fully recovered by depreciation. A PUC staff estimate placed the cost at about 7.2 million dollars.

Company's Status Changed

Second, the company's basic operation will no longer consist of manufacturing gas but of importing natural gas for distribution in Greater Washington. This alters basic functions of plant facilities and gas mains. Since the PUC has jurisdiction only over rates in the District, the changeover presents entirely new problems in its determination of how the company's finances should be allocated between operations in and out of the District.

Sperry said that his company's action in terminating the present rate-making agreement "does not mean that the company will not consider a similar agreement for future operations, nor does termination change the rates now in effect."

PUC officials emphasized that when the rate making agreement goes out in 90 days, gas rates could not be changed without PUC approval. If a new sliding-scale rate-making agreement is to be worked out, officials of both the PUC and the company said that January 1, 1949 would be the most logical date for it to take effect.

PUC Aide Proposed Change

The proposal for a modification of the present rate making agreement was made by V. A. McElfresh, chief PUC accountant, during his testimony as a witness at the fore[illegible]

WOMAN IN ALLEGED KIDNAPING CASE—Mrs. Lorraine McCormick, 24, dodges cameramen outside United States Commissioner's office yesterday

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Police last night were taking precautionary measures to protect a 29-year-old secretary who is the complaining witness in a kidnaping case now being investigated by the FBI.

The threats were revealed at a hearing for George Paul Harding, 36, 5210 Fisher rd., Temple Hill, Md., on charges of kidnaping and assault before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday.

The defendant's attorney, Charles E. Ford, told the Commissioner that he had been informed that the complainant, Mrs. Lorraine McCormick, 24 8th st. ne., had received two anonymous threats by telephone.

Denies Client Made Threats

"I want the Commissioner and FBI to know," Ford said, "that my client did not make these threats. He understands the penalty for threatening witnesses and I want it understood that he has no intention of harming Mrs. McCormick."

FBI agents working on the case have alerted police headquarters operators and police scout cars in the First and Ninth Precincts to send aid immediately should they receive a call from Mrs. McCormick. She works in the First and resides in the Ninth Precinct.

Harding is free under $8000 bond pending action by the Grand Jury. According to police, Harding, who has known Mrs. McCormick for about two years, sought to persuade her to get a divorce and marry him after he gets a divorce.

About 3 a. m. on September 26, police say Harding accosted Mrs. McCormick in front of her home as she was saying goodnight to her escort. Frightening off the escort at the point of a gun, he warned him "to stay away from my girl," police added.

Mrs. McCormick was forced at gunpoint into Harding's car, police said. While driving out to Maryland, near Silver Hill, Harding slapped the woman and battered her on the forehead with a gun until she promised to marry him, police charged.

Admitted to Hospital

The alleged abduction ended when Harding delivered the woman to Providence Hospital at about 6 a. m. where she was admitted for cuts and bruises on the head, according to the police report.

Police say that Harding later brought the woman flowers and candy. But about 4 a. m. Saturday, police reported, Harding entered the hospital and proceeded to Mrs. McCormick's room. He fled however when screams of the other person in the semi-private room brought attendants.

Harding gave himself up at police headquarters later on that day and the FBI was called into the case.

Harding has a record of 15 arrests dating back to 1927 police report. He served time in Lorton on a chrage of manslaughter in connection with the shooting of Harry "Doc" Davis, local gambler April 1933. Police described Harding as "a known gambler."

Commissioner Turnage yesterday postponed the hearing for Harding until October 21 when he was informed by Assistant United States Attorney John J. O'Leary that the grand jury is now considering Harding's case.

Police say that Harding listed his occupation as a "clerk;" Mrs. McCormick has been employed nine years by the Schine Theater Circuit of 640 K st nw.

2 Men Sought After Brutal $100 Holdup

Restaurant Owner Pounded by Pistols, Locked in Closet by Handkerchief Thugs

A city-wide search was on last night for two handkerchief thugs who early yesterday pounded a 46-year-old man with their revolver butts after robbing him of approximately $100 in his home.

At the same time, police were hunting for the "laundry-a-day" bandit who struck again and then eluded a cordon of 25 policemen sent to nab him.

Victim of the handkerchief bandits was Henry F. Wong, 1611 Crittenden st. nw., part owner of the Potus Restaurant, 727 14th st. nw.

Wong reported he returned home at 2:45 a. m. to find two men, their faces masked with handkerchiefs, crouched in the hallway. When they brandished revolvers, he said, he handed over about $100 he carried. He said they threatened to kill him if he disobeyed.

Lock Victim in Closet

The pair battered Wong on the face and head with their gun butts and locked him in a hall closet. Wong kicked a panel out of the door and called police who took him to Garfield Hospital for treatment.

A man answering the description given by several victims of the wave of almost daily holdups of laundries here in the last month, struck at 9:50 a. m. His victim this time was the Aristo Cleaners and Launderers branch store at 2509 Benning rd. ne.

The bandit held his hand in his left jacket pocket and said "This is a holdup." He took a small undisclosed amount of change from the cash register and $6 from the billfold of the lone clerk, Miss Bertha Lane, 2705 E st. ne.

Police said that upon leaving the store, the bandit whistled as if to attract the attention of a confederate.

A man answering the description of the robber was picked up by cab driver Lionel H. Smith, of Hillside, Md., a few minutes later at 15th and Benning rd., it was said.

Suspect Escapes Bullets

Five minutes later, after the lookout had been flashed over the police radio, Detective Sergt. Otto P. Fuss saw the taxicab at 6th and E sts. nw. He forced the cab to the curb and gave chase after the suspect who ran. Sergt. Fuss fired two shots after he began chasing the suspect on foot.

The detective called for reinforcements. Twenty-five policemen responded but the suspect eluded them near 502 6th st. nw., where he was last seen.

His description was given as a dark-skinned Negro, 25 to 27 years old, 5 foot 4 inches, 140 to 145 pounds, wearing light tan jacket, tweed pants, brown suede shoes and a cap. He may walk with a limp, it was said.

Passing Red Light Costs Man $160 And Year in Jail

Failure to heed a traffic signal brought an accumulation of woes to a 27-year-old District man in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday.

John W. Carrington, 610 Lamont st. nw. drew a year in the Maryland House of Correction for carrying a concealed weapon and was assessed fines totaling $160 on three traffic charges.

He was arrested Sunday by Hyattsville Policeman Clifton Bartley when he allegally passed a red light. Bartley told Judge Arthur P. Owens he found a small caliber pistol in Carrington's pocket after booking the man on charges of passing a traffic light, drunken driven and driving on an expired permit. Carrington appealed his conviction on all charges.

In another case at Hyattsville yesterday, Judge Owens sentenced Willard Luther, 51, 4618 42d pl., Hyattsville, to six months in the House of Correction for drunkenness. He said the jail sentence was based on Luther's past record, which included seven convictions for drunkenness in as many months.

Wreckers Find Baby Carriage of 1860s In Building Used by Grant as Headquarters

The Washington Post

PERAMBULATOR OF THE PAST—Natalie Friedman, 24 (left), of 1324 Upshur st. nw., and Barbara Satterthwaite, 21, of 714 Hamilton st. nw., examine an antiquated baby carriage discovered in the old Grant headquarters building. Miss Friedman, a State Department worker, was recently employed in building

A baby carriage of 1860 vintage has been unearthed by wreckers who are razing the old Grant building on the southwest corner of 17th and F sts. nw.

The building is so named because Gen. Ulysses S. Grant once used it for his headquarters.

Historical experts said yesterday there was little likelihood that the carriage was a relic left behind by the Grant family. The general, they said, never used the building as a residence.

The carriage, estimated to be about 80 or 90 years old, was found upstairs in the building. It is made of wood with wicker decorations. The wheels have iron hoops.

The Arrow Wrecking & Lumber Co. said one woman offered $100 for the carriage. She said she had an umbrella which would fit on the carriage and that she could put it to good use. Her offer was rejected. The wrecking company hopes to get $150 for the carriage.

In tearing down the ancient structure, the wrecking company came upon another item of unexplained history. Under a one-room addition in the rear of the building was found a headstone marked "Jackson Berryman" and bearing the number 3178 above the name.

A grandson of the Civil War general, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said he knows the building was used as a Civil War headquarters and that the general used it for headquarters after the war. It was neve rused as a residence by the Grant family, however, he said.

John Clagett Proctor, local historian, said he does not know the pre-Civil War history of the house. During the war, he said, it served as Union Army headquarters for Gen. Winfield Scott, commander in chief, at the beginning of the war, and later for Gen. Henry W. Halleck, chief of staff.

In the years that followed, it was used by the War Department, then by various societies and finally in 1937 was leased by the Public Buildings Administration. From May, 1942, until a few months ago, it was occupied by the State Department's Division of Cultural Relations.

The building, which is across the street from the State Department, is of white-painted brick with a wooden portico. It has 15 rooms in which the ceilings are 14 feet from the floor. There is a large basement. For some time a passageway has connected the Grant building with a house in the rear.

The biulding and land were purchased several years ago by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) as the site for a new office building. Temporarily the Steelworkers have leased the land to the Federal Parking Co. for a parking lot.

GTC Plans To Use Buses On Rosslyn, Benning Line

PUC Approves Replacing of Streetcars on Eastern Section

Buses will replace streetcars on the Eastern section of the Benning-Rosslyn line "about the first of February," E. C. Giddings, a vice president of Capital Transit Co., revealed last night.

His announcement followed an order by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday approving the bus substitution plan. The action reversed a March 5 PUC order denying the transit company's proposal.

Giddings said bus substitution "will considerably relieve traffic congestion on Pennsylvania ave. in the vicinity of the White House."

PUC Gives Approval

The PUC order granted Capital Transit permission "to substitute bus service for streetcar service" on the section of the Benning-Rosslyn line "between the Kenilworth and Seat Pleasant terminals on the northeast and 13th st and New York ave. on the northwest."

Streetcar service to Rosslyn will be continued from a new "turn around" point at the Peace Monument.

All-day bus service will be run from the Kenilworth and Seat Pleasant terminals via Benning rd. ne., to H st. ne., west on H st., Massachusetts ave., K st., New York ave., I st., then south on Vermont ave. and Madison pl., west on Pennsylvania ave., north on Jackson pl. The bus line's western terminal will be on the east side of Jackson pl. south of H st. nw.

Buses will "turn around" by traveling north on Jackson pl. and Connecicut ave., east on I st., north on 12th st., east on K st., south on 10th st. to I st., then retrace the rest of the incoming route.

During rush hours alternate bus lines will run to or from U st. nw. and Potomac Park areas.

Northern branch—In the morning from Benning rd. west on H st., Florida ave., R st. to a terminal at 19th and R sts. nw.; in the evening from this terminal east via 19th st., Q st., Florida ave. and H st. to Benning rd.

Southern branch—In the morning from Benning rd. west on H st., Massachusetts ave. and I st., south on 6th st. nw., west on Constitution ave., north on 21st st. to terminal at Virginia ave.; in the evening from this terminal south on 21st st., west on C st., south on 22d st., east on Constitution ave., north on 6th st. nw., east on I st., Massachusetts ave .and H st. to Benning rd.

The alternate rush hour routes were proposed by Capital Transit to eliminate downtown traffic congestion, one of the objections PUC voiced in turning down the original plan.

Branch northeast bus lines will operate fro mthe present Kenilworth streetcar terminl west on Eastern ave., southwest on Kenilworth ave. to the main line on Benning rd.; from the Seat Pleasant terminal north on 62d st., west on Dix st., and southwest on Kenilworth ave. to Benning rd.

Businessmen Opposed Plan

Present Sheriff rd., Capitl View and Benning Heights bus line branches will also connect with the new min bus line. a

Cpital Transit Co.'s origina plan, proposed to PUC September 11, called for bus service only along the route covered by the present eastern section of the streetcar line.

At public hearings during September, October and December, 1946, businessmen in the H st. ne., area opposed the plan because they feared it would take business away from their stores.

On March 5, PUC turned down the plan and directed the company to repair streetcar tracks and submit plans for routing streetcars around the downtown area during rush hours.

PUC ordered the case reopened April 14 to grant CTC's request to submit further testimony, and in May CTC submitted its proposals for additional alternate routes. Hearings were held during June and July.

W. M. & A. Lines Announce Wage Boost

Washington, Marlboro, and Annapolis motor lines yesterday announced an arbitration award of a 14-cent an hour increase to about 150 employes.

Ten cents of the increase is retroactive to May 18, when the contract expired; two additional cents of the increase goes into effect November 18, and the final two cents will be in effect from February 18 to May 18, when the new contract runs out.

In announcing the results of the arbitration L. L. Altmann, president and general manager of W. M. & A., yesterday stated that the increase would force the company "to ask for a substantial increase in bus fare on all lines to cover operating expenses."

The union involved is Local 1365, Amalgamated Street Railroad and Motor Coach Employees, Inc.

Library Unit Head

Mrs. Robert T. Beall, 4834-B S. 36th st., Arlington, has been named chairman of the Fairlington (Civic) Association library committee, association president Everett L. Butler announced yesterday. The association hopes to provide volunteer workers to staff fully the new Fairlington branch library, scheduled to open in December.

GSI Accepts Top Officials' Resignations

Resignation of two top Government Services, Inc., officials, Frank W. Hoover, gveneral manager, and Samuel Goodacre, treasurer, were accepted yesterday.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, GSI president, announced the resognations, which will be effective December 31, and said they were accepted by the corporation's board of trustees, which is composed of Government officials.

The parting was on an amicable note, but it was reported the departures heralded an overhauling of GSI which is now under investigation by a Senate Civil Service Subcommittee for alleged slipshod business practices.

Subcommittee to Report

The subcommittee is expected to report to the full Senate Civil Service Committee next month on GSI, which operates 53 Federal cafterias and snack bars, and several park concessions on a non-profit basis. The resignations, it was stated, will have not effect on the subcommittee report.

There were no indications who might replace Hoover and Goodacre, but it was expected the vacancies would be filled from within the organization.

Hoover, who is leaving GSI after more than 20 years' service, said he had submitted his resignation sveral months ago because he needed a vacation.

General Grant, in announcing the resignations, said:

"It is a pleasure to pay tribute to the unusual efficiency of two such loyal and meritorious employes, and to wish enjoyment of their coming years. Their gain is our loss and we will part with them in December with sad hearts."

3-Man Board To Draft Police Audit Reforms

The District Commissioners yesterday appointed a three-man board to carry out recommendations by the District auditor for the collection of money and property at police stations.

The recommendations provide new measures for safeguarding money and property taken from prisoners and for a strict accounting system for money collected for the support of wives and children.

The action was taken yesterday at a meeting of the Commissioners. Chief of Police Maj. Robert J. Barrett, District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, Chief Investigator of the Auditor's Office Bernard A. Harrison, Chief Clerk of the Police Department Inspector Clement P. Cox and Chief Field Examiner for the Auditor's Office Barney Farber.

Pilkerton Heads Board

The commissioners delegated Auditor Pilkerton to be chairman of the new board, to be assisted by Inspector Cox and Investigator Harrison. When procedures have been developed they will be submitted to Corporation Counsel West for "legal" approval.

The conference took place to discuss a report submitted to the commissioners Wednesday by Pilkerton on an audit of the Fourth Precinct books covering a five-month period which showed gross misuse of money and property.

The report cited 28 instances where money from the precinct was delayed in being sent to Juvenile Court so that shortages could be covered and four instances where money and property belonging to prisoners had disappeared.

The report also showed five other cases where prisoners' property was not handled correctly and three cases where differences occurred in the amount of money as shown in receipts.

Control System Urged

The report recommended that a control system for checking Juvenile Court funds be set up, using the triplicate receipt method. For protecting prisoners' property, the report recommended a permanent bound record book and prenumbered envelopes with receipts describing the property.

Following the conference, Major Barrett said he was not requested by the Commissioners to take any disciplinary action at the Fourth Precinct. "We didn't even discuss it at this time," he said. He added that he planned no action along this line until he received an official report now being prepared by Capt. Benjamin Keuhling, Fourth Precinct commander.

'Bingo' Is Held Illegal for All

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Attorney General Ira J. Partlow declared in an opinion today that bingo games are illegal and that religious, charitable and benevolent organizations are subject to criminal prosecution for conducting them.

"We know of no law which in a criminal matter would place a charitable organization in any better or more favorable position than any other individual engaged in the same act or committing the same offense," Partlow said.

The opinion was in answer to an inquiry growing out of the recent anti-gambling campaign in Wheeling.

2 'Officials' Accused in Fraud Trial

Paul L. Toneman, 32, self-styled public relations counsel, testified in District Court yesterday that he paid $1500 to an unidentified Government "bureau chief" in a deal to get an export license to China.

Toneman, who is on trial for using the mails to defraud, also declared he had made arrangemen with a man "close to Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman" for the same purpose.

The defendant refused repeated orders from Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff that he identify the two officials.

"You'd better identify them," Holtzoff warned on several occasions. "If you do not you must take the consequences," hinting at contempt of court action.

"I'll have to take the consequences, your Honor," Toneman said.

"We'll deal with this matter after this trial," Holtzoff replied.

Under questioning by Defense Counsel Saul Lichentenberg for the expressed purpose of dissociating Undersecretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman from any connection with the charges, Toneman stated that Chapman was not one of the officials involved.

Chapman had appeared Wednesday as a deefnse witness. He said he had "referred" Toneman to other officials when the latter sought help in securing an export license for a "client"—Edward Hartford, Los Angeles export firm secretary.

In describing his alleged deals with Government officials, Toneman was trying to impress on the jury that he had not kept any of the $2050 received from Hartford for himself, but was doing his best to secure the export license as promised.

Housing Aide Quits Post for Manager Job

William A. Ziegler, general manager of Defense Homes Corporation, Government agency that operated and recently sold Fairlington and McLean Gardens to private owners, has handed in his resignation.

He is resigning, he said last night, to take charge of the awo huge apartment developments for their new owners, Fairmac Corp. of Dallas, Tex.

As general manager, Ziegler figured prominently in the recent sale of the defense housing projects to his new employers.

The resignation, effective October 51, was reported received by the office of Dillon S. Myer, director of the Federal Public Housing Authority. Though not officially approved by last night, it was expected "to clear through routine channels within the next few days."

Ziegler, who lives at 2222 Q st. nw., has no definite title yet with Fairmac Corp. He said he would be in charge of the two developments, with their present managements remaining the same.

No other employes of Defense Homes Corporation will go with him to his new post, he said. The Government agency is in process of liquidation and the sale of Fairlington and McLean Gardens was a major hurdle in such liquidation.

With a third, relatively small, housing development in Bremerton, Wash., the two vast projects were sold for $42,600,000 under a sales contract executed June 16. Title was transferred on October 10 upon down payment of four million dollars.

Principal stockholders in the Fairmac Corp. are Leo F. Corrigan and Leland Pikes of Dallas.

Spahr, Mills Quit As Councilmen In Landover Hills

Two members of the Landover Hills, Md., town council resigned Wednesday night at the regular council meeting. Both had been members since the council was formed 2½ years ago.

W. J. R. Spahr resigned because of illness. He is in a hospital following a recent heart attack. William Mill's resignation was due to the press of other duties and his reported dissatisfaction with the council's attitude toward the police force.

Mills contended that the town's volunteer police force should be paid from an appropriation but other members wished to delay action. Mayor William Zundel said last night that no action would be taken on the issue for at least a month.

Elected to fill the vacancies were Frank Chinn and Earl Shiflett. Neither has previously served on the council.

The new code, adopted June 1, specifies that all windows more than one story or 10 feet above the ground must be equipped with noncast metal anchors, capable of withstanding a three ton pull, or the force of a 350 pound dead weight falling four feet.

Discussing the objection of the Building Owners and Managers Association which stated that "Washington is not a skyscraper city," Fred C. Thomas, director of the safety board, said that "a person can be killed falling three stories as well as thirty."

Thomas added that building ownesr had been very cooperative in getting compliance with the program.

Estimated cost for equipping the 500,000 windows under the new code ranged from less than two million to three million dollars.

Vote Board Upheld

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals yesterday in Richmond upheld the right of local electoral boards to delegate many actions under the absent-voters' law to the board secretary.

The court upheld the right by refusing seven petitions for a mandamus which had been brought by southwest Virginia Republicans. The GOP petitions contended that the two Democratic members of each local electoral board had no right to let the board secretary—also a Democrat—handle mailing of applications for absent voters' ballots.

Democratic answers to the petitions argued that delegations of administrative duties to the board secretary "merely expedites and simplifies" handling of absent voters' ballots.

Traffic Plan Delayed

The Commissioners yesterday postponed action on a traffic violator's school pending a meeting of Municipal Court judges to discuss the plan.

The plan, as amended by the Traffic Advisory Committee, would give District drivers an opportunity to attend a traffic school instead of paying a fine for traffic violations.

Lottery Funds For Memorial Are Returned

Officers of the projected two Memorial, one of whose sponsors is Mrs. Harry S. Truman, are winding up what has proved to be "a rather unpleasant business."

Today, said Horace Walker, executive director, the last of thousands of checks will be in the mail—checks refunding the money dollar by dollar to citizens throughout the country who had "taken a chance" on a memorial-sponsored lottery.

The project ran afoul of the Post office Department last July when it mailed books of chances all over the United States for a fund-raising lottery to be held at Fort Myer in August.

'8000 or 9000' Mailed

In the hands of Postoffice attorneys is an "affidavit of discontinuance," which in effect orders the Nurses National Memorial to cease using the mails for lottery purposes and to return all funds taken in that way.

The affidavit, bearing the signatures of Arthur H. Johnson, national chairman, Irene N. Donohue, secretary-treasurer of the National Capital Special Events Committee, and Walker, was signed July 14, shortly after mailing of books of chances had begun.

Walker said that "not over 8000 or 9000 books were mailed," but other estimates by memorial officers ranged from 1500 to 50,000. He declined to say how much money had been sent in, and added that "thousands of the books were returned blank."

An audit of the "complete operation," he said, will be made shortly "for our own satisfaction."

Believes Matter Closed

"Since we have willingly complied with the stipulations of the affidavit," he added, "we anticipate nothing further being done in the matter by the Postoffice, the Department of Justice, or the United States Aorney."

"We would have had the checks sent out sooner," Walker declared, "but we couldn't afford to hire a large staff to do the work."

The chances were for a drawing to be held at Fort Myer during a boxing exhibition. Three automobiles, a television set, a home laundry and a radio were to have been raffled, at $1 per chance.

According to Walker, the proposed Nurses National Memorial was suggested in 1945 by Mrs. Norman T. Kirk, wife of the former Army Surgeon General and herself, a World War I nurse. The project contemplates a permanent home and clubs here, with educational and recreational facilities, for all women of the medical departments of the armed forces.

Capt. Edie's Home Bought By Baptists

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Washington Baptists yesterday bought the house of the late Capt. John R. Edie, whose $20,000 legacy to his cats' caretaker, and $350,000 bequest to St. John's Episcopal Church were attacked in court.

The deal for the dwelling at 1628 16th st. nw., was consummated yetserday through the Boss and Phelps real estate firm for $100,000. The building will be used as headquarters for the D. C. Baptist Convention of Churches, and the Baptist World Alliance. Those organizations are now using the Calvary Baptist property at 8th and H sts. nw. They expect to occupy the Edie home in December.

The Baptist World Alliance was represented by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, and the Baptist Convention of Churches by the Rev. Edward O. Clark, its vice president, and pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church. The purchase price includes some furnishings.

Last December, three heirs-at-law of Captain Edie, a retired Navy captain, contested his will, claiming that he was of unsound mind and acting under undue influence when he made his will. Last June, a settlement was reached among the litigants.

D. C. Teachers to Frame Rules For Pay Increases Under Law

District public school teachers will help set the rules under which they are eligible for pay increases.

A committee elected by the teachers will define what is meant in the Teachers Salary Act for 1947 by "evidence of successful teaching" and "increased professional attainments."

Under the act, teachers and school officers receive annual pay increases of $100 a year for 15 years, providing at the end of the fifth and tenth years they meet those two requirements.

To Advise Superintendent

The committee of teachers also will advise the superintendent of schools and the Board of Education in setting up an in-service training program prescribed in the act "to promote continuous professional growth among teachers, school officers, and other employes."

An election of committee members has been scheduled by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning for Wednesday. Nominations were made last Wednesday.

The plan for teacher participation was drawn up by the Teachers' Advisory Council at the request of Dr. Corning to "give teachers a major part in determining the criteria for promotions."

Makeup of Committee

Under the plan the committee will consist of one delegate for every 100 classroom teachers, 16 from the elementary level, seven from the junior high, seven from the senior high, two from vocational and two from Teachers College.

In addition, the committee will represent research assistants, attendance officers, principals and administrative officers.

FTC Charges School Here Sold Degrees

Mount Vernon University of Washington has been charged by the Federal Trade Commission with misrepresentation, and with selling and unlawfully awarding its degrees, the FTC reported yesterday.

Officials of the residence school, at 2301 Calvert st. nw., branded the FTC complaint of violation of fair trade practices as "obsolete, untrue and grossly unfair."

The FTC issued a complaint against the Mount Vernon University, Inc., a Texas corporation with offices at Fort Worth, the local school and ten officers, directors and instructors.

Dr. Leas' Explanation

Dr. Walter Leas, dental surgeon, of 305 Concord ave. nw., president of the local school, and one of the respondents, charged the FTC with "confusing the operations of two separately chartered organizations."

The local school, he declared, operates "independently" of the Texas corporation, a correspondence school. Both organizations, he admitted, are Texas chartered, and "have some of the same directors."

"Of course," said Dr. Leas, "I have only been with the school several years and don't know what took place before then."

The FTC complaint termed the school's educational standards "wholly insufficient to satisfy minimum requirements of any standards in the educational field."

"Contrary to the advertising representations of the respondents," the complaint charged, "their business is not that of an institution of higher learning, and their school is neither a university, a college nor a seminary, as such terms are generally understood."

Sale of Degrees Charged

Other allegations, in substance, charged that degrees "were sold to students on the barest compliance with suggested courses and on wholly inadequate material and theses." In many instances, "honorary" diplomas and degrees were "sold for cash," usually for $50, the complaint stated.

Dr. Philip Davis, researcher with the Library of Congress, who identified himself as a member of the school's board of directors, its instructor in philosophy, and its former registrar, declared:

"Our school does not and never has awarded degrees."

He said the "average" number of students enrolled was "about 15 a semester," and said "they had come to learn, not for degrees."

He termed Mount Vernon University here "a non-profit organization which must struggle to meet operating expenses."

"At least half of the charges made by the commission are for conditions that no longer exist," he said.

The local school, he stated, teaches philosophy, Greek and "factual evidences of the Bible," for which it operates Christ Seminary on its premises. The seminary, Dr. Davis said, is accredited for GI grants.

The FTC set November 21 for a hearing on the charges.

Rule Cutting GI School Pay Is Affirmed

A ruling cutting in half subsistence payments to some 500 GI students attending Benjamin Franklin University was upheld yesterday by Veterans Administration's educational advisory committee, and by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, VA director.

The subsistence cut, made by H. V. Stirling, VA education chief, several weeks ago, reduces monthly payments to unmarried GIs to $32.50, and to GI students with dependents to $45.

For 30 months the students had been receiving their full payment, but Stirling recently announced that VA had erred.

Unaccredited schools, like Benjamin Franklin, must furnish 25 clock hours of instruction per week for students to get full subsistence, Stirling said. (Accredited schools must have a minimum of 12 semester hours of instruction per week.)

At Benjamin Franklin, the students put in 15 hours of classroom work, but in addition, must spend 25 hours a week on outside study, according to B. E. Huntsinger, director.

Benjamin Franklin appealed Stirling's ruling. The educational advisory committee, meeting in Washington, backed up Stirling, and General Bradley approved the committee's recommendation yesterday.

The committee suggested three alternatives for Benjamin Franklin so that its students could get full subsistance payment:

1. Change its standards so as to obtain accreditation; 2. Add 10 clock hours of classroom work to the present 15 hours required; 3. prescribe supplemental on-the-job training.

Benjamin Franklin University commented on the reaffirmed ruling as follows:

"In effect, this committee rules that a veteran attending certain schools gets only half subsistence while a veteran attending certain other favored schools gets full subsistence for substantiliy the same course of study requiring the same time and the same number of class hours."

Man Convicted Of Assault on Girl in Theater

A Municipal Court jury which included five women yesterday found Victor H. Redmond, 54-year-old restaurant handyman, guilty of indecent assault upon a 14-year-old girl.

The jury retired an hour and 15 minutes before returning with the verdict.

Defense Attorney Francis X. Walsh after hearing the verdict produced newspaper stories which appeared yesterday morning. He declared they carried Redmond's record and had influenced the jury. He asked for a mistrial which Judge George D. Neilson promptly denied.

Then Walsh asked for a four-day stay of sentence, to which Redmond is entitled under the law. He said he intended to poll the jury and obtain affidavits from each jury member to determine if they were influenced by newspaper accounts of the trial.

The defense attorney said after he compjleted his poll of the jury he would file a motion for a new trial.

Redmond, who lives at 1010 H st. ne., was charged with indecent assault on the girl las Atugust 19 as she walked down the aisle in the Capitol Theater.

He faces a jail term of one year or a fine of $500, or both.

Drastic Reforms Needed in China, Wedemeyer Says

Boston, Oct. 16 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said today that "unless drastic reforms, particularly in the economic field, are implemented soon, China will be drawn into the Soviet orbit in spite of the assistance that we Americans must extend."

The statement was an indication of the nature of his report to President Truman after a six-weeks investigation in China and Korea and not yet made public. It was contained in a letter to Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge of the Boston Committee for United Service to China.

Wedemeyer said that China is passing through conditions of "evolution and revolution" and that the Soviet Union is capitalizing on "disorganization and chaos in the area exactly as she has done in Europe."

In Washington today, President Truman told a news conference that the Secretary of State would have something to say soon about Wedemeyer's survey.

Counting Pennies with Carolyn

Don't battle crowds in city stores when the beautiful shopping center at Shirlington is only a few minutes away from town . . . next door, if you live in Fairlington or Parkfairfax. From Washington, you just board the Arlington bus at Pennsylvania and 11th. You're whisked in no time at all into the heart of Shirlington. Buses run frequently, and it's easy to get a seat in non-rush hours.

Do stop at the beautiful Shirlington Hot Shoppe lunch counter for a snack, luncheon or dinner. You'll enjoy delicious food, in charming surroundings. David Lester Cooke, Jr.'s mural, all across one wall, illustrates an old Brahman legend of successful search for eternal youth. Beautiful Chinese paintings and plates adorn the azure walls, carrying out the Oriental motif.

Just cross the street to the Shirlington Drug Store where you'll find a big remodeling has just been completed. The entire store has been made over to take care of a greatly enlarged photographic department with all the wonderful photographic equipment you ever heard of . . . films of every sort, Eastman, Agfa, etc., development equipment, cameras of all descriptions, even movie sound projectors at $298.15!

Around the corner is Jerry's Kiddie Center. Besides children's and infants' clothes, Jerry's has all the juvenile furniture for a growing family. Trimble Bathinettes, from $10.95 to $18.95, Kroll and Thayer cribs and youth beds, Kant-Wet and Serta crib mattresses, Thayer high chairs with new plastic safety bar, Thayer and Collier-Keyworth carriages from $24.95, may all be bought on lay-away plan, if you wish.

Start planning the children's Hallowe'en with a visit to the Shirlington Woolworth's. From a wonderful array of favors, witch-and-pumpkin decorations including table cloths, napkins, nut and candy holders, candles, you may select just about everything you need for a party. If the small fry are with you, you'll have a time getting them away from Woolworth's wonderful false face counter!

Busy mothers appreciate the thoughtfulness of the Shirley Food Store in supplying pushcarts with little red seats attached. Just strap Junior in, and he's safely under your thumb from vegetable counter to bakery section, through the grocery aisles, and while you wait at the butcher shop.

This tremendous supermarket is so complete, so well arranged that it seems like a group of stores under one roof. Selections of meat, fresh fruit and vegetables, bakery products and groceries are the finest you can buy, at prices as low as you can find.

All you gals know that sweaters and fall go together, and at the Adeline Shop you can certainly choose your colors. Grand cap-sleeved pullovers of all-wool are knitted in eight fashion shades besides black and white, cost a small $1.99. For country wear there's nothing like a sweater set, cardigan and pull-over to match. At $5.95, you can get them at Adeline in many different color combinations.

Remarkable, isn't it, to think you can buy a coat that's the twin of leopard for only $21.95. It's in the Adeline Shop collection of pile fabric coats that look like fur, and have quilted linings for extra warmth. You'll be happy to know you can get a coat that looks like Persian Lamb for only $24.95.

The Aerial Man's Shop anticipates frosty nights with all kinds of pajamas, mostly of the warm variety. Here a man can locate ski pajamas of cotton knit balbriggan with tight sleeve and trouser cuffs, at $4.50, striped flannelette pajamas at $4.85.

U. S. Giving 31 German Ships To France as Economic Aid

The State Department yesterday prepared to hand over to France 31 former German naval vessels as one of many steps to bolster the shaky French economy.

It was the second move in as many days to strengthen the position of the moderates in France. Wednesday the United States authorized the Army to buy 50 million dollars worth of French francs, thereby adding to that country's supply of dollars for purchase of badly needed commodities. French municipal elections are next Sunday.

In addition to the vessels, part of those allotted to the United States as reparations, this country will turn over a 40,000-ton floating drydock to the French. Only three of the ships are combat types, the remainder being vessels which may be used to further development of commercial shipping.

These include three destroyers, one aviation supply ship, one aviation repair ship, one depot ship, 12 minesweepers, three trawlers, one tanker, seven seagoing tugs and two torpedo transporters. All except two destroyers, now at Annapolis, are in German ports. The French Navy is expected to take over those at Annapolis in November.

Some of the vessels made available yesterday were promised May 28, 1946, in an agreement with then Premier Leon Blum.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett said "the high proportion of service vessels to combat types results from the desire of the French government for ships which will contribute to the civilian economy."

Aid for Hungry

Morgenthau Has World Food Plan

Henry Morgenthau, jr., says the world must "think in terms of an international food stamp plan" so that "hungry nations can draw on glutted nations, just as Harry Hopkins' relievers drew upon Henry Wallace's farmers."

Morgenthau

The former Secretary of the Treasury, writing in Collier's Magazine, told how in 1938 he called for Eleanor Roosevelt's aid when Wallace and Hopkins opposed his plan to distribute surplus food to the needy.

"My first step," Morgenthau wrote, "was to call Tom Parran, the Surgeon General, and ask him what our dietary deficiencies were. The big ones, he said, were in green vegetables, citrus fruits and dairy products. Parran suggested feeding the excess grain to cattle in order to increase the milk supply."

The Treasury Department worked out a plan on this basis, Morgenthau said, but "to my dismay, Wallace opposed the plan."

Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture, he said, thought the scheme would result in "a dangerous stimulation of farm productivity and the creation of new surpluses in meat and dairy products.

Morgenthau wrote that Wallace felt the plan "would immediately run into a jam with the corn belt. Very bad politics!"

Morgenthau said he then called Mrs. Roosevelt, told her 90,000 families were hungry in Chicago and that Wallace opposed his plan.

Mrs. Roosevelt, he said, told him the hungry must be cared for, and promised to "ask Franklin about it tonight."

"From then on," Morgenthau added, "the President was sympathetic."

Hopkins, he said, also strongly opposed the plan, believing work relief the only solution.

Morgenthau said Wallace's department later dropped its opposition and Milo Perkins of the Agriculture Department suggested the plan of colored tickets for relief families, who got 50 cents worth of blue tickets for surplus food with the purchase of each dollar's worth of orange stamps, good in all stores.

"We will have to apply this same practicality and this same boldness to the problem of a world food surplus," Morgenthau said.

Describing his arguments with Wallace over agricultural loans, Morgenthau said he once asked the President, "Franklin, when Wallace gives these long economic talks, do you understand what he is talking about?" The President, he said, replied: "'Absolutely not!'"

Griffith Urges Indorsement of Marshall Plan

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP).—Paul H. Griffith, former national commander of American Legion, said today he favored quick approval by Congress of the Marshall Plan but felt many Europeans must work harder.

Griffith and a party of 140 Legionnaires have been making a seven-weeks' tour of Europe, during which they have visited England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Italy.

"We found places where people left for lunch at 12 o'clock noon and came back at 3:30 o'clock," he said. "We just can't have that difference in effort."

"Any unfriendliness to the United States in Europe is a result of Russian propaganda," he declared. "Actually, there is a remarkable fund of strong goodwill in every country here for the United States."

Here's "Tinker," a Boston bulldog with a yen to see the world. One recent Sunday "Tinker" set out to satisfy that yen, and her owner, Mrs. Russell W. Keys of 929 South Taylor Street, Arlington, was up against the "lost dog" problem. But Mrs. Keys knew how to make a city-wide search with one phone call. She dialed NAtional 4200, placed an ad in The Washington Post, and had the wayward canine home on Monday afternoon. Says Mrs. Keys: "My husband and I have known about Post want ad results for a long time. He uses Post 'Help Wanted' ads frequently to find employees for his restaurant."

German Art Has Vanished In Russia, U. S. Expert Says

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, Oct. 16.—Francis H. Taylor, director of the Metropolitan Museum in New York, said today that the East-West split in world politics had also divided the civilizing influence of art.

Hundreds of thousands of German museum pieces, he told the American Club of Paris, had disappeared behind "the iron curtain." Unlike the German treasures in American custody, he reported, there was no public record of the Soviet holdings.

Taylor was pessimistic about their eventual restitution. Back from an inspection trip of American art storage centers in Germany, he said that he had heard a special German wing was being added to the famous Hermitage Museum in Leningrad.

"We have tried to work with our friends beyond the Oder," he explained, "but they just won't cooperate. I am afraid that the losses of what is left of German civilization will be dreadful."

Careful American investigation, he continued, had placed these items of world wide interest in Soviet hands: The Sistine Madonna and the Georgione Venus, both Dresden Museum paintings, and the Goethe Library collection.

Taylor's recent trip to Germany was made in connection with his wartime position as adviser to American military authorities on the recovery of German-looted art.

Taylor reported that of 925,000 art items of the Prussian state collection left in Berlin during the war, 75 per cent had been "removed by the Russians and they have not brought up the question of their eventual restitution."

In constrast, he pointed to the work of the Offenbach Restitution and Storage Center. Of three million items, two million had been restored to their rightful owners, he said.

Grau Held Plotter Of Dominica Revolt

Havana, Oct. 16 (AP).—The Secretary of the Cuban Senate received from the Supreme Tribunal today a declaration made by former Army Lieut. Feliciano Maderne charging that President Ramon Grau San Martin was an organizer of the expedition formed here with intent to overthrow the Dominican republic government of President Rafael Trujillo.

The expedition surrendered to Cuban navy and army units the last week in September. Maderne, a member of the expeditionary force, made his charge when questioned by a special court which investigated the movement.

War Bride Held In Shooting

Associated Press Wirephoto

JADWIGA CURTIN, 20, Polish war bride, held in Redwood City, Calif., on suspicion of murder, told police that the fatal shooting of George W. Conner, 35, her third "date" of the evening, was done accidentally as they struggled over a pistol she drew to halt his fast driving after a drinking party. Conner, father of three children, was shot through the heart and died as the speeding car careened into an embankment

Cuba Arrests 600 'Illegal' Strikers In Transit Dispute

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—More than 600 left-wing labor leaders and workers were reported under arrest today as the aftermath of yesterday's "illegal" transportation strike here.

Among those arrested were 126 union leaders, delegates and foremen and some 500 from the rank and file, including 29 grave diggers who refused to bury 12 bodies yesterday.

Government authorities requested the Chamber of Representatives to waive the parliamentary immunity of Representative Lazaro Pena, chief Communist leader, and Representative Jesus Menendez, also listed as an extreme left-winger.

Royal Wedding Procession To Be Put Under Strict Guard

London, Oct. 16 (AP).—Elaborate and almost unprecedented precautions are being taken to safeguard the wedding procession of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten along the spectator-packed route of less than a mile, it was disclosed authoritatively today.

Acting upon the counsel of the cabinet, which in turn was advised by Scotland Yard, the royal family canceled plans to send the bride and groom on a short drive through central London to acknowledge public acclaim after the ceremony on November 20.

Such an excursion, authoritative sources said, might involve risks, "doubtless remote," which should not be taken. Informants said it was realized that political or racial agitators might try to exploit the occasion.

The procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and return will not be affected.

The general area to be traversed by the wedding party will be carefully inspected by police at frequent intervals before the wedding day, and persons watching the procession, especially those above the ground level, will be subject to strict checkups.

Fees for congested perches overlooking the wedding column in Whitehall have risen sharply, in some instances as much as 40 pounds ($160) to 75 pounds ($300) being paid for single vantage points from windows or roofs.

The equivalent of $150 to $200 was paid to accommodate several dozen persons at the coronation of King George VI in 1937.

Princess Christens Ship

Belfast, North Ireland, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Princess Margaret Rose, appearing alone at a large public function for the first time, smashed a bottle of South African wine across the bow ow a new ocean liner today and watched the vessel slide down the launching ways to the sea.

Woodward's Finance Plan Withdrawn

By S. Oliver Goodman

Trustees of Woodward & Lothrop yesterday announced withdrawal of the proposal for conversion of 7 per cent preferred stock.

This action followed a recent meeting of company officials at which representatives of investment banking firms protested the plan as unfair to common stock holders.

Woodward's board, in a letter to stockholders, stated that a new proposal will be prepared and submitted at a special meeting not later than January 31, 1948. However, the regular annual meeting of stockholders will be held next Monday.

The original plan called for retirement of 20,000 shares of outstanding 7 per cent preferred by the issuance of 25,000 shares of new 4 per cent preferred. Each old share would have received 1¼ shares of new stock. The conversion under this proposal would have meant the transfer of $500,000 from surplus to capital account.

The opposing group had emphasized that the 7 per cent preferred is callable at $105 a share.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP).—While the December contract advanced to $3.05, equalling the high for any wheat future this year, most other grain contracts ended with minor losses on the board of Trade today.

May wheat was higher but the July delivery, which represents the 1948 winter wheat crop, suffered a substantial loss. The spread between the December and July contracts at the close was nearly 50 cents a bushel.

Buying of December wheat came mainly from cash interests, and was a reflection of Government activity in the cash market. Beneficial moisture in the Southwest caused the selling of July wheat.

Wheat closed 4½ lower to 3½ higher, December 3.02½@3.02¾; corn closed ¾ to 1¼ lower, December 2.33½@2.33⅝, and oats were 1 to 1½ lower, December 1.21⅛@1.21.

In the spot market a car of No. 2 mixed wheat sold at 3.09½, highest since 1920 when wheat brought 3.50 a bushel.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE GOOD Baptists of Wake Forest move into Griffith Stadium tomorrow afternoon against George Washington U., and as we say in our set, they're plenty good. They haven't been licked yet in three games and the last thing they did was to wallop North Carolina, 19-6, irreverently holding Charley Justice to a total of eight yards gained for the afternoon.

POVICH

They're coached by Mr. Peahead Walker, who was christened Douglas Clyde Walker, but is not at all a sensitive character. He signs his name P. H. Walker, for short, and has a weakness for maroon shirts, yellow ties and touchdown plays.

A few years back, Peahead was pining for the good old days when a football coach could bait a prep school star into an institution of higher learning on the mere promise of free board, room and tuition. "Nowadays," he complains, "they want radios, frigidaires, automobiles and baby-sitters."

But Walker seems to be contending excellently with this modern age. Last season, he knocked off Tennessee in the South's No. 1 upst of the season, and a week from tomorrow he thinks he'll beat Duke, for the second time in 23 years.

WAKE FOREST is an air-minded team this season, with a rare article in Tom Fetzer, a side-arming forward passer who has completed 25 of his 38 throws for a whopping efficiency of 67 per cent. He's as likely to pass from his own five-yard line as from the 50, an item G W. U. scouts have reported in some distress.

Walker has a couple of forward passing combinations, and it sounds as if he bred 'em. Fetzer's favorite target is Jim Duncan, up from Reidsville, N. C., where he played end on the same high school team with which Fetzer made All-State quarterback three years hand running. Jim Lail, who also passes for Walker, is from Hickory, N. C., where he threw for three years to Harry Dowda, now in the Deacons' backfield.

Defensively, the Deacons have been something special, with a line that averages 213 pounds from end to end. When they install the 255-pound Glenn Reinhard at one of the tackle jobs, the average zooms to 220. Against these stalwarts, Clemson gained 16 yards all day, Georgetown got 56 yards and North Carolina was held to 31. In three games, the Wake Forest opposition hasn't gained the length of a football field.

IN COLLEGE circles, they call Walker the scrimmagingest coach in the business. Four days a week he has 'em batting heads in the workouts, and he says his kids like it. Apparently they like Peahead, too. After the victory over North Carolina last Saturday, Walker didn't have time to congratulate his squad, because his players picked him up bodily and bore him from the field on their shoulders.

He came to Wake Forest via Howard College, in Alabama, where he was All-Southern in football and baseball. He gave professional baseball a fling for one year in a bush league and quit when no salary was forthcoming for three weeks. Stalled off on his paychecks by the wooden-legged club owner, Peahead got even. He stole into the fellow's hotel one night, made off with the wooden leg, and held it for ransom in the form of back pay.

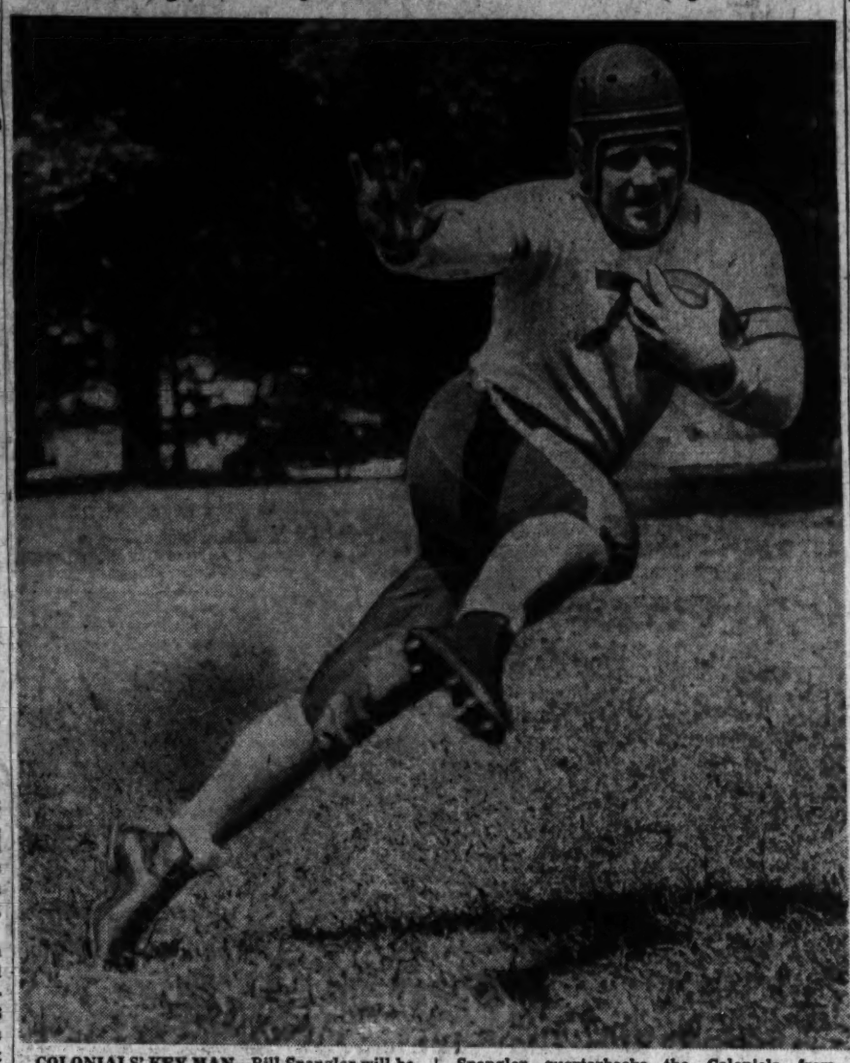
During one of Wake Forest's scrimmages, so many of Walker's players were knocked out he was running short. When his last reserve, a fullback, was knocked cold, Walker motioned for the team doctor. "He's not breathing," the doctor said. "Well, you're a doctor, make him breathe," said Walker. I wouldn't advise you to believe that story.

WAKE FOREST is going big time pretty soon. The school has just been more or less adopted by the Smith Reynolds Foundation, which has guaranteed Wake Forest an income up to $350,000 a year, on condition that the college be moved from 15 miles south of Raleigh to Winston-Salem, headquarters of the Reynolds tobacco interests.

The move to Winston-Salem will be made before 1952. That puts the school somewhat in the class with Duke, which, heavily endowed by the James B. Duke tobacco interests, changed its name from Trinity College. Duke promptly zoomed into football prominence, and Wake Forest is headed in the same direction.

You might say Wake Forest has been endowed by Camels, and Duke is backed by Chesterfields. Apparently Old Gold is being outstripped, without a college to its name.

Stahley Shifts G. W. Backfield



COLONIALS' KEY MAN—Bill Spangler will be a busy young man in the George Washington backfield against powerful Wake Forest in Saturday afternoon's game at Griffith Stadium. Spangler quarterbacks the Colonials from the fullback position and does the kicking, with an average to date of 40 yards. He also shares in the forward passing

Area's Teams Leaving Spotlight to Colonials; Highs Play Two Today

Anacostia Meets Wilson In Top Game

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Anacostia's unheralded Indians make a strong bid to enter the fight for an interhigh football playoff berth today at 3:30 p. m. when they engage the Woodrow Wilson Green Tigers at Wilson Stadium.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders and Calvin Coolidge's Colts, lodged in a tie with Wilson for last place, to break out of the cellar when they clash today at 3:30 at Central Stadium.

Seven other schoolboy games are on today's program, but the climax of the weekend's grid activities doesn't come until tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. when McKinley Tech's Trainers contest Eastern's Ramblers at Central Stadium.

Tech in Big Game

Undefeated, untied and unscored upon Tech, currently tied with Central for first place, will take over undisputed possession of the top rung if it can whip Eastern because Central is idle this week. On the other hand, once-beaten Eastern will move into a tie for second with Tech if it can conquer the Trainers.

Anacostia's Indians, not counted on as a trouble-maker before the season started, will move into a tie for third place with Eastern if it can dispose of Wilson as is expected today.

The Indians, beaten, 13-0 by Central, and victorious by the same score over Roosevelt, have the edge on Wilson in size and experience. They have a pair of line plunging backs in Chow Eschaves and Bob Mitchell, a splendid punter in Ralph (Monk) Fraser and a fine passer in Bill (Speedy) Kent. In Jim Faulkner, they have a stellar all-around end.

Wilson's chief handicap is its lack of experienced linemen. However, the Tigers have dynamic Pat O'Neill at halfback. And triple-threater Pat is considered by most interhigh coaches as the finest all-around player in the series. He'll be augmented in the backfield by tiny Dick (The Mole) Janigan, whose left-handed passes often cause confusion in enemy ranks.

Navy, Off to Cornell, Starts Exodus; Others Depart Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If the population of Washington and its surrounding precincts were counted in football players only, the area would resemble a deserted village this weekend.

More than 175 gridmen, accompanied by their coaches and other attendents who swell the departures to over 200, scatter in perhaps the largest athletic exodus in this area's history.

First to leave were the Naval Academy's footballers, 47 strong, who left Annapolis last night for Ithaca, N. Y. The sailors will be followed today by Maryland and Georgetown, both of whom take to the air for flights to Durham, N. C., and Tulso, Okla., this morning.

The Washington Redskins complete the migration tonight when they entrain for Milwaukee and a Sunday clash with Green Bay.

Middies Have Best Chance

Among the collegians, only Navy is regarded as having a good chance to enjoy the long ride home. The Sailors meet Cornell and for the first time since they whipped Villanova in their opener last year, the Middies feel they can cash in a winning ticket after 10 straight losses and a tie.

Maryland will find out how good its unbeaten, untied team is against Duke, and Coach Jim Tatum, not one inclined to be gloomy, feels rather certain that his forces are not quite good enough to win.

Georgetown, beaten twice in three starts, is in for another rough afternoon against Tulsa, a two-touchdown favorite.

Coach Tom Hamilton of the Sailors, who miraculously manages a rosy outlook, is rather confident he'll be able to hoist the victory pennant against the Big Red. He received another setback Wednesday when he learned that Pete Williams, the stellar back, broke an ankle against Duke and will be lost for the year.

But Hamilton promptly installed Billy Earl, the former Bullis Prep flash, in Williams spot. Hamilton plans to start 10 of the 11 men who opened in the 14-14 Duke game, withholding only the selection of his quarterback.

He's got to choose from Reaves Baysinger, jr., last year's late star who has been ineffective this season, or Boy Horne to run the show for him. Horne was the big boy of the Duke tie and it's likely he'll be tapped.

Terps Rely on Fine Backs

Maryland's Terps know they face one of the strongest lines in the country in Duke, but are counting on their high-powered backs, headed by Lu (Bambino) Gambino, to fetch an upset decision for them.

Coach Jack Hagerty of Georgetown, hopes his attack will function for the first time at Tulsa. He'll depend on Elmer Raba to quarterback his spread formation attack with help coming only from Freshman Johnny Hughes.

Regular Quarterback Babe Biaranowski injured a collarbone in the 16-0 loss to St. Louis last Friday and isn't even making the trip to the Southwest.

All Over for Terps

Michigan, Navy, Duke Picked to Win

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Heading into another ambush along the pigskin picking trail with a lineup of puzzlers that offers little hope for improvement in a batting average of .795 on 171 correct predictions and 44 misses:

Michigan vs. Northwestern—Fritz Crisler's monsters of the Midwest don't know their own strength, having annihilated three non-conference opponents without mussing their hair. Handily, MICHIGAN.

Kentucky vs. Vanderbilt — Vandy's 3-0 record against some pretty tough customers outweighs Kentucky's surprising 26-0 win over Georgia. Our vote goes to VANDERBILT.

Minnesota vs. Illinois—The Illini couldn't score on Army but that situation should be corrected against a Minnesota eleven that yielded 21 points to Northwestern and 13 to Nebraska. ILLINOIS.

Oregon State vs. Southern California—Doping those Pacific Coast games is like walking a tight wire. You're likely to get hurt no matter which way you fall. We'll string along with the home club, SOUTHERN CAL.

Columbia vs. Pennsylvania—The powerful Quakers have a habit of stubbing their toes when you least expect it. Columbia is on the rebound after its setback by Yale. Still, one firm vote for unbeaten PENNSYLVANIA.

Texas vs. Arkansas—More bad news for the Razorbacks, who bowed to Baylor after taking three straight shutouts. One confident vote for TEXAS.

Washington State vs. California—Hardly more than a breather for the Golden Bears, who move into their Pacific Coast schedule after clawing four non-conference foes. Make it No. 5 for CALIFORNIA.

Kansas vs. Oklahoma—Here's where the two Big Six co-champions settle the issue for 1947. OKLAHOMA.

Maryland vs. Duke — Looks like the honeymoon is over for Jim Tatum, new Maryland coach. One big vote for DUKE.

Nebraska vs. Notre Dame—Finding the Irish in an argumentative mood after losing their rating as the country's best is a tough break for the Cornhuskers. NOTRE DAME.

Navy vs. Cornell—Strictly a toss-up, although Navy will miss Pete Williams more than Cornell will miss Hillary Chollet. NAVY.

Rice vs. Southern Methodist—The winner here can challenge Texas for the Southwest Conference crown. Two or three votes for RICE.

Wisconsin vs. Yale — Looks close, but this corner tabs a loser in the Big Nine to handle a winner in the Ivy League. WISCONSIN.

UCLA vs. Stanford—Unless the UCLANS start looking two weeks ahead to California, they should have no trouble. UCLA.

Virginia Tech vs. Army—Al-

Police Boys Club Beats NTS, 13-6

The Police Boys Club team No. 2 Rockets edged out the National Training School eleven, 13-6, at the NTS field yesterday.

Lew Jackson passed 15 yards to Hal Bellfield who ran 45 yards for the victor's first score. Another pass, Art Vanbrakle to Ray Barnaby covered 50 yards for the second Rocket tally.

Only NTS touchdown came when Ray Blake ran 22 yards off tackle late in the final quarter.

Amvets Sponsor Train To Colts-Dons Contest

The Amvets will sponsor a special football train to the Baltimore Colts-Los Angles Dons game in Baltimore tomorrow. The train will leave Union Station at 12:15 p. m. and will arrive at Clifton Station, Baltimore, at 1:15 p. m., one hour before kick-off time.

Bartelloni Is Groomed for Wake Forest

Head Coach Neil (Skip) Stahley, in an effort to instill passing strength into his backfield, will start Hank Bartelloni at the starting left halfback position for Saturday's game with powerful Wake Forest.

Heretofore known principally for his running ability, Bartelloni stood out this week in passing drills and Stahley hopes he has found an answer to what has been an annoying situation.

The Colonials have been weak thus far in every phase of the aerial game, and that includes attack and defense. With Bartelloni taking care of the offensive side, Stahley has drilled the boys intensively this week on keeping the enemy's air game under control.

Fullback Bill Spangler, Quarterback Joe Wapinsky and Al DuGoff, former Roosevelt player at the right halfback post will make up the G. W. starting backfield.

In Wake Forest, the Colonials will be running up against a rock-ribbed line which has hamstrung the running games of Georgetown, Clemson and North Carolina. In addition, the Deacons have one of the best passers in the Nation in Tom Fetzer, whose 25 completions in 38 passing attempts tops all other flingers percentagewise.

Knocking off Wake Forest would do a great deal toward erasing the memory of the Colonials' three straight defeats, and as Line Coach Rog Antaya said yesterday:

"This club is going to explode one of these days and make someone veryunhappy . We have a young team and one that hasn't come close to clicking as it is capable of doing. Our morale is still high as ever as somebody is going to find out when these sophomores of ours get rolling."

Hap Hardell Is Improving

Elmer P. (Hap) Hardell, Georgetown track coach, is recovering at Garfield Hospital where he has been since last Saturday when he was stricken with an intestinal hemorrhage.

The veteran coach was given three transfusions and is now believed on the road to recovery.

Dr. Leo Brown, his physician, last night issued a call for 12 friends of Hardell's to donate a pint of blood each to replenish the Garfield blood bank.

Price, Beach Meet in Finals At Baltimore

Pikesville, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—Charlie Price, 22-year-old amateur from the Kenwood Club, Washington, and Ralph Beach, veteran professional at the Suburban Club, Baltimore, will meet tomorrow in the 36-hole final round of the Baltimore match play open golf tournament at the Greenspring Hunt Club.

Price figured in the two big upsets of today's quarter and semifinals. After eliminating Spencer Overton, the Maryland open champion, 1 up, in the 18-hole morning round, he beat Andy Gibson, Country Club of Maryland pro, by the same score in the afternoon.

Beach, a finalist in 1939 and again last year, had to go 21 holes to defeat Al Houghton, white-haired Prince Georges pro, in the morning. His afternoon semifinal match with Harold Oatman, professional from Norfolk, Va., was not decided until the eighteenth hole.

Quarter-Final Round
Andy Gibson, Country Club of Maryland, defeated Cliff Spencer, Elizabeth City, N. C., 5 and 4.

Schools Stick With Dates In Armory

(See other Story on Page 1)

The controversy over the National Guard Armory between the District Commissioners and Brigadier General Cox, commanding officer of the Guard, has resolved itself into the following insofar as sports events are concerned:

1. Seating will be limited to 4825 because of the Commissioners' ruling of inadequate fire exits.

2. Most of the seats for basketball gmes will be on the floor. Very few of the 3500 gallery seats will be used.

3. General Cox's plans for 8000 seats "of bleacher type" had to be canceled, temporarily, pending a solution, if there is to be one, of the controversy.

4. Neither George Washington nor Georgetown, who have scheduled seven collegiate basketball double-heders beginning January 7, hs asked to be released from its contract because of the new seating limitations. Same applies to high schools—32 games booked in January and February.

General Cox said he had anticipated a seating capacity of approximately 12,000 when he assigned dates to the colleges for basketball gmes, and since the new restrictions were placed on the capcity he informed the schools. None, he added, wanted to withdraw from their contracts.

"And I hope we shall be able to increase the cpacity rel soon," he said.

George, 1st String Tackle, Fired Off Georgia Squad

Athens, Ga., Oct. 16 (AP).—Coach Wallace Butts of the University of Georgia abruptly fired Tackle Carl George from the Bulldog football squad today, Sports Writer F. M. Williams of the Atlanta Constitution reported.

Williams, en route to Stillwater, Okla., for Saturday's game with the Oklahoma A. & M. team, said Butts dismissed George, the team's starting tackle, while the squad was waiting to take off by plane for an "infraction of rules."

At the same time, Williams said, Butts announced two more members of the squad had been told to give up football, but neither was ordered off athletic scholarships and both will be permitted to finish their education. These two members were identified by Williams as Fullback Sonny Lloyd of Blytheville, Ark., and Joe Chesna, end, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Butts was quoted by Williams as saying the reason for Georgia's dismissal from the squad was a rule infraction of such a nature that "it was either let him go or leave myself."

As for Lloyd and Chesna, Williams reported Butts said, "neither one of these boys were helping us because they just don't have the ability."

'I'm Picking US to Win'

Turk Decides 'Skins Can Beat Green Bay in Sunday's Game

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Enormous Turk Edwards, the official head of the Washington Redskins' enormous coaching staff, yesterday gave off with an opinion which should bring joy into the homes of countless of pro football's faithful.

"We can beat the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee Sunday," Edwards said, omitting the number of tickets yet to be sold." All we have to do is play as well as we did in our pre-season game with the Packers in Baltimore."

Reminded that the Redskins lost that one 31-21, Turk gave a chuckle.

"I mean we must play as well as we did the last half of the Baltimore game," Turk amended.

"We beat 'em in those two periods, 21-0, and scored all our points in one quarter. Since then we've shown all-around improvement in pass defense—that's how the Packers scored three of their first-half touchdowns—and we don't have any major injuries."

Baugh Missed First Half

Sammy Baugh, it may be remembered, missed the first half of the Packer exhibition with bruised ribs, then came in to lead the floundering Skins to comeback with a 43-yard touchdown pass to Bob Nussbaumer.

Dick Todd and Tom Farmer, the Redskins' most dependable backs on pass defense, remained idle throughout the affair with injuries and while they sat Indian Jack Jacobs was hurling those three first-half touchdowns.

Now, with the Redskins in excellent physical condition, tied for the Eastern lead with two out of three games won, the Packers seem less formidable. Jacobs is something less than terrific at regular season passing while Baugh is heading for the best year of his career.

"They Can't Hurt Us"

Green Bay has also won two out of three—29-20 over the Chicago Bears and 17-14 over Los Angeles while dropping a 14-10 decision to the Chicago Cardinals—but the Redskins management still thinks "they can't hurt us."

"We can score on anybody we play," Turk decided yesterday. "I guess the Packers can, too. Their heavier line is going to make some difference, but I'm picking us to win . . ."

Ingram Spends 4 Days Looking at Movies, Then Denies Colts' Protest on Loss to Bills

New York, Oct. 16 (AP).—Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commissioner of the All-American Football Conference, today denied the protest of the Baltimore Colts arising from last Sunday's 20-15 defeat by the Buffalo Bills in a professional game at Buffalo.

Ingram said his decision was reached after a four-day investigation which included a thorough study of both teams' movies of the game, lengthy discussions with the five game officials and a consultation with President Robert R. Rodenberg and Coach Cecil Isbell of the Baltimore club.

The protest was lodged by Rodenberg on the grounds that Lamar Davis scored for Baltimore on the final play of the game but was ruled out of bounds by Field Judge Eddie Tryon and that time ran out after he was ruled out of bounds.

Rodenberg, who claimed the Colts should have had another play, also protested an unnecessary roughness penalty against his team in the last quarter and contended that Chet Mutryn, Buffalo back, did not actually cross the goal line on a play which was ruled a touchdown for Buffalo.

The text of Ingram's official decision:

"1. The timing during the final phases of the game was correct. The final time transpired during the progress of the last play and five seconds before Davis was ruled outside.

"2. There may be some doubt regarding the 'unnecessary roughness' decision against Baltimore in the last period. But in general the officials erred on the other side.

"3. The Buffalo touchdown is ruled in accordance with the decision of the referee.

"4. There is no conclusive evidence to show that Davis did not step out of bounds on the last play of the game."

In explaining his ruling on the disputed last play, Ingram said the field judge was in the best position to view and rule on the play and "did so promptly and with decision."

"He ruled that Davis went outside . . . prior to going across the goal line inside the corner flag," Ingram said. "The play is so close that nothing presented is conclusive except the decision of the official on the spot."

As for the timing, Ingram said the official watch was synchronized with the scoreboard clock and that each showed seven seconds remaining when the final play started.

"The play consumed 12 seconds," he said, "which was five seconds beyond the normal game time. Officials erred in mechanics by not firing the gun ending the game when the play was called outside. This, however, has no bearing on the time feature, but it did create confusion in the minds of the spectators."

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

FROM THE NORTHLAND wild waterfowl are already on the move. As the birds move South hunters watch to see how many more show up on their hunting grounds as compared with last year's supply.

Reports from biologist-observers on Canadian wild waterfowl breeding grounds indicate that "the picture is still black."

However, at a recent luncheon meeting of the Maryland Ducks Unlimited Committee in Baltimore, which was attended by Chairman Glenn L. Martin, a report was circulated which estimated that more than 110 million ducks will be winging their way south this fall.

The report is a disturbing one and at variance with earlier reports. The United States Fish and Wildlife Service employed 16 experienced biologists and flyway men, this past summer to make a survey and examination of the breeding areas. This survey was made by plane, boat, automobile and on foot.

In commenting on nesting conditions on most of the northern breeding grounds, Albert M. Day, director of the Wildlife Services said, "reports from Canadian wildlife officials are extremely discouraging and confirm reports coming from our own investigators."

In past years most of the emphasis has been placed on breeding ground improvements, with little thought to resting and wintering grounds large enough and with sufficient food to support the desired millions of ducks and geese.

An extensive survey and investigation has been started by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission. The study will include "the carrying capacity," in terms of food production, on the hundreds of miles of coastal marshland from Port Arthur to Brownsville.

The Wildlife Management Institute reported this was made possible by additional funds recently authorized by Congress for wildlife restoration under the Pittman-Robertson Act.

THE HORSESHOE LAKE area in Alexander County, Southern Illinois, will be again closed this year to shooting of wild geese. The area contains some 15,000 acres of land and water.

The establishment of the area as a refuge has attracted thousands of geese; becoming a veritable slaughter pen and repulsive to any real sportsman.

During the hunting season, hunters formed a close and complete cordon around the small refuge and slaughtered the geese who had no chance to avoid the firing line as they were unable to gain sufficient altitude when leaving the sanctuary.

4-Year-Old Pays $13.40; Boojie 2d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 16.—Paradise Farm's Dog O'Sullivan came through the stretch like a wild horse today and won the Columbia, the Thursday feature race in a mild upset.

With the drive engineered by Jockey C. Wahler, the 4-year-old filly was a going-away winner of the test of a mile and up yards. C.V. Whitney's Boojie was second and Mrs. K. O'Malley's Miss War was third in the field of six.

A crowd of 11,000 made Dog O'Sullivan fourth choice and the daughter of Chance Play returned $13.40 mutual to her scattered backers. The winning time was 1.43 1/5 over a fast track.

Ariel Song and Miss War battled it out most of the way in front of the field of fillies and mares. Upper Level was well placed but was boxed in on the inside rail.

Ariel Song Gives Battle

The combination of Ariel Song and Miss Weir were still head and head coming in the stretch, Boojie on the outside, Wahler moved Dog O'Sullivan between horses but was shut off and then went to the outside.

In the final drive, Dog O'Sullivan gained momentum and ran over the leaders in the final drive.

Send Off, owned by Mrs. Elmer Trueman of Washington, ran the fastest 6 furlongs of the meeting to date in the Hyattsville, the day's secondary feature. The 3-year-old colt was clocked in 1.11 1/5 while winning with speed to spare over Carolyn K. Stable's Marble Arch and Brookmeade Stable's Master Mind. The winner paid $7.

Jockey Scotty Prain of Charlestown was injured when a stirrup broke and he fell after the finish of the sixth race. He was taken to the hospital for X-rays. He was said to have a broken collarbone. Prain was aboard George Perry's Smiling Lass.

Double Pays $52.60

A distance race and a sprint produced a $52.60 payoff in the daily double. Mrs. Arthur White's Nobby, ridden by Jockey Ray Arduini of Washington, won the first race, a test of a mile and three-sixteenths. William Irvine, jr.'s, Bonridge was second with Mrs. G. Fishback's Grandma C third in the field of nine. The winner paid $15.

E. K. Bryson's Going Airy put the finishing touches on the twin transaction by winning the second race in the role of a $4.40 favorite. The Rarco Stable's In Suspense was second and J. M. Cudone's Tree Land was third in this field of 12 going six furlongs.

In contrast to yesterday's fiasco, today's steeplechase was wonderful. Five horses started and they made the 13-jump course without a bobble. In addition, the favorite won with Mrs. John T. Skinner's Fifty-Fifty leading Mrs. John M. Sturgeon Erd's Silver Run and Henry's Horkheimer's Gala Reigh into the wire. Fifty-Fifty paid $5.20 and was ridden by Jockey T. Field.

Goalie Henry Top Man of '46 Champs

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Fresh from their 6-2 opening night victory over Philadelphia, the Washington Lions face sterner competition tonight against the Hershey Bears on the Uline Arena ice.

Hershey, 1946 champions of the American League, is bolstered this season by the addition of 10 former Boston Olympic standouts.

Washington fans are familiar with such players as Bobby Schnurr, Penti Lund, Eddie Emberg, Hank Marquess, Gino Rozzini, Gordie Bruce, Lloyd Gronsdhal and Jack McGill.

Despite this new talent, the man likely to give the Lions most headaches is Hershey's goal tender, Red Henry. An All-League selection last year, Henry is one of the best young net tenders in the business.

Bell Performs Well

Washington's new goalie, Gordon Bell, gave a good account of himself in his first appearance here, making 35 saves including three spectacular efforts accomplished while lying on his back. One of the two Philadelphia goals was scored on a shot that got past Bell because a team mate was blocking his vision and the other was made as Eddie Bush skated in on him all alone.

In addition to Bell's fine play, Washington fans were encouraged by the showing of the lads who were playing their first contest in fast American League competition.

Youngsters Come Through

The backbone of this year's team was supposed to be composed of new, tested professionals. But it remained for Johnny Carr-Harris and Joe Ciuman, boys with only Eastern Amateur League experience, to steal the show.

Carr-Harris drilled in three goals and Ciuman tallied once and passed to team mates for another pair of scores. Ken Schultz, rangy center also played impressively as he teamed with Ciuman on two occasions for Lion goals.

With one game under their belts and the additional help of big Jack Portland, a bone crushing body checker and experienced playmaker after 10 years in the National League, the Lions should give the Bears a hard time tonight. Starting time is 8:30 p. m.

Jackson Faces Strong Opponent

Local boxing fans will be looking at one of the most active fighters in New England next Monday night when 21-year-old Pat Demers, of Boston, makes his debut in a 10-rounder against Stonewall Jackson at Turner's Arena.

One of the biggest victories Demers ever scored was a 10-round upset of Jackie Callura, the former N. B. A. featherweight champion, back in 1944, not too long after Callura had won and lost the title. The Bostonian also beat Danny Bartfield, Charley Cabey Lewis and Julie Kogan.

Colts Sign Konetsky; Release Steve Nemeth

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference announced today that Floyd Konetsky, veteran professional end and formerly of the University of Florida, had been signed.

Konetsky was signed after being cut loose as a free agent by the Buffalo Bills. Earlier, he played with the Cleveland Rams and was with the Cleveland Rams of the Rival National League in 1944-45. The Colts released Steve Nemeth, quarterback, who was waived out of the league and signed by Paterson of the American League.

Haight Can Take Hint—He Decides to Reduce His Ego

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

I HAVE OFTEN wondered why people who have a good word for you seal it in an envelope, while those who have a beef scribble it on a postcard.

For instance a fellow, who probably is becoming ill on this "For Men Only" diet, writes:

"It might be a good idea if you reduced your ego."

Truth is, I didn't know my ego was as prominent as my belt buckle. I've been known as a fathead for years, but I didn't know I was a swell head, too.

Come to think of it, perhaps I have been a little too exclusive in the sports department. I'm going to talk to the boss and see if it won't be O.K. for me to eliminate the two or three of my personal guards in the outer offices that lead to my desk.

PROBABLY a good idea, too, if I instruct my secretaries to stop demanding the caller's name on the phone, or, better still, answer it myself.

Of course, I'll have to quit showing up at the office in my rented tuxedo and stop making myself the hero of my party stories. At the race track, I guess I should carry a bottle and stop hanging around the gentlemen's bar.

With a few other improvements, perhaps I can become as modest as those postcard writers and I won't have an inferiority complex every time I see a postoffice employe.

I admire guys like the one who pens: "Quit trying to kid the public, Haight. You can put on 4 pounds by looking in a bakery window."

After 8 Straight Defeats

Bullis, With Everything New, Back on Right Track Now

Bullis, a prep school for Naval Academy hopefuls, lost eight straight football games last season.

This year, with a brand new squad, coaching staff and spirit, Bullis has captured its first three games. Already supporters of the school have visions of an undefeated team—something Bullis has never experienced.

Under Head Coach Jack Maddox and Line Tutor Charlie Guy, the Admirals have beaten Allentown High—which previously hadn't been licked in 19 straight games—7-0, Perkiomen Prep, 25-7, and the powerful Georgetown Freshmen, 12-7.

Maddox was formerly coach at Valley Forge Military Academy and his team beat Bullis last season.

Bullis Athletic Director Al Grossman must have figured that "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em," because he has Maddox.

Guy, a former Bullis star who was one of Navy's better ends (he caught the pass that beat Duke the only time Navy trimmed the Blue Devils) has fashioned a hard-hitting, well-drilled line.

Capt. Dick Goelzer and Joe Jarosz are at the ends, Bill Shrider and Pete Tetreault at tackle, Bill Sexton and Gerry Audette at guard and Ed Sexton, backed by Ted Kukowski, holds down center.

A fast backfield made up of Mike Casoli, Jim Lennon, Bill Steele and Mike Sorrentino operates from a T and box formation, with tricky shift, adding to the deception.

Bullis has a hard road ahead with the Navy and Army Plebes, LaSalle Military Academy and Western Maryland Jayvees among its future opponents.

But Maddox, who put out the only unbeaten team in the history of Valley Forge M. A., would like very much like to repeat his performance at Bullis.

Dewey Stops Hunting

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16 (AP).—Governor Dewey today ordered the drought-dry Adirondack Forest closed to the public at midnight tomorrow and temporarily suspended the hunting seasons to prevent further fires, which already have broken out in 25 places.

Babe Zaharias Sets Course Record With 68

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 16 (AP).—Mildred (Babe) Zaharias of Denver shot a 68—11 under women's par and three under men's par—here today to take a seven-stroke advantage over her nearest competitor in the medal division of the Hardscrabble Country Club's Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Mrs. Zaharias' 54-hole score was 218. Next low scorers were Patty Berg of Minneapolis with 225 and Betty Jameson of San Antonio with 227.

The Babe was putting for a birdie on every hole except three and on these three she was putting for an eagle.

The 68 broke by five strokes a women's course record of 73 set only yesterday by Betty Jameson of San Antonio and equalled the lowest score made by Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, in winning the annual invitational men's amateur tourney here last week.

Mildred Zaharias, Denver, 68—218.

Betty Jameson, San Antonio, 75—227.

Peggy Kirk, Findlay, Ohio, 77—231.

Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, 74—231.

Polly Riley, Fort Worth, 77—234.

Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich., 76—235.

Betty Mims White, Dallas, 76—236.

Mrs. R. E. Winiger, Fort Worth, withdrew.

The Cats Merely Purr

Krupa Wows 'Em, But Refined-Like

By Richard L. Coe

WITH A BASS FIDDLER who's the spit image of Winston Churchill, Gene Krupa drew a band of the conservative faithful to the Capitol yesterday.

By conservative faithful we mean the younger generation's settling down. Oh, yes, there were whistles of welcome from the huge house and we counted only two neckties among 18 immediate male neighbors, but that's part of the pattern, too.

The classroom evacuees were in a thoroughly receptive mood for Gene's magical thumpings and he was faithful in doing what was expected of him. He even played "Stomping at the Savoy," which certainly takes us back to our childhood.

What we're getting at is that even in something as apparently chaotic as the Krupian music world there is a form, a sense of fitness. The earlier wild ecstasy has now jelled into just enough observance to fit the occasion, but not enough to interfere with the performance.

The Krupa character is really a wiz at those drums, in case you didn't already know. He takes over the solo spot several times, with one particularly fine workout on "Stomping," which he does in a trio, just like in the old Benny Goodman days. But his best is probably the finale, "Drum Boogie." If you always have been a Krupa fan, there's no reason to change.

Also in his show is that effective comic, Joey Rardin. Rardin's own, individual style is too good for him to bother with the George M. Cohan interlude. Krupa's songstress is Dolores Hawkins, one of those minute ladies who would be as much fun to sketch as she is to listen to. Dolores' songs include lines like "Goin' up to the country . . . Can't take a man like you . . . He's so-Oh fine and mellow." It's all part of the cult's lingo and either sends you to heaven or the nearest exit.

Maisie As A Cop

The Capitol's screen didoes concern an adventure of Maisie with the Los Angeles police force. "Undercover Maisie," they call it, and you ought to know what to expect of Maisie by this time.

Ann Sothern's blonde chorine has been rooked in an old con trick, and when she reports her plight to the police one inspector gets the idea of turning her into a lady cop.

Rigors of training come easily, but she comes a cropper pretty quickly. Barry Nelson and Mark Daniels are on tap to help her. There's no point in telling you about her case except that it's a reasonably simple one considering the possibilities of Maisie as a police officer. There's talk that Miss Sothern has had about all of Maisie she can take, but, while we don't exactly blame her, the idea has more possibilities than the script develops.

Milt Slosser proved himself something of a hero in yesterday's first show by keeping things going until the Krupa band was set. All told, with Krupa and Maisie on deck, the Capitol's bill holds few surprises.

"UNDERCOVER MAISIE." M-G-M release produced by George Haight. Story and screenplay by Thelma Robinson, based on the character created by Wilson Collison. Directed by Harry Beaumont. At the Capitol.

HENRY JAMES HEROINE: Susan Hayward in her latest role in "The Lost Moment." This is adapted from "The Aspern Papers," the novel by Henry James, who seems to have come back to life lately. Hipp's 3½-Hour 'Miserables' Is Miserable on the Hips

By Leo Brady

The best reason for recommending that you put your endurance at the mercy of "Les Miserables" at the Hippodrome is the performance of the late Harry Baur as Jean Valjean. He carries his huge, mountainous face through 3½ hours of suffering and duress, hitting true notes practically continuously.

Your enjoyment of the whole enormous film, however, will depend on several things: whether you are a Hugo worshiper; whether you consider this particular panegyric to the poor a top-notch classic; whether you are satisfied with what really works out as a series of one-act plays; and, frankly, whether you can get up and walk uncreakingly up the aisle after 3½ hours—including a newsreel.

Hollywood's wisdom is vindicated for a change, anyhow, since obviously every last detail of the novel (can they have omitted anything?) does not work well in a dramatic medium. You are exhausted as often as you are exhilarated—and not solely because of the length, but because of the choppiness of the episodes which constitutes bulldog Javert's pursuit of the man who stole a loaf of bread.

The business dealing with the bishop's candlesticks and the attempted escape through the sewers are still two of the most flamboyant incidents, and too many of the other sequences provide more sound and fury than entertainment.

There is one major disappointment, also. When Valjean arrives to rescue the little slavey from the brutal Thenardiers, you expect—since this is melodrama after all—that he will set his tremendous strength to punishing their villainies. Apparently, this is just an old atavistic urge in me, since Valjean is content to let them live until the final scene of the next episode.

One thing is perhaps worth notice: in a film made in France, even though the producers reach to some lengths to emphasize their seared-and-soiled realism, they are careful to permit their actors to work in broad, almost-stylized strokes. Good examples here are Valjean and the villainous man and wife, who are extreme and entirely satisfying.

The picture makes two or three false moves toward ending, but apparently looks at its watch and tosses in another French revolution—and manages to stagger on.

Understand that length in itself can be no valid objection, but here you get the feeling that the protraction is due to a dogged determination to get everything in rather than select a clear and accelerating story line.

Anyway, Baur is true actor and comports himself as such, and the performing throughout is uniformly good. Much of the photography is striking, but it's lack of compactness that wearies you.

"LES MISERABLES." French film in two episodes from the novel of Victor Hugo, directed by Raymond Bernard, screenplay by Andre Lang and Mr. Bernard. At the Hippodrome.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. to Brief Doctors On Atomic Attacks

By Drew Pearson

During these next three years the Government faces the grim task of quietly briefing its doctors for a possible atomic war. Proper medical know-how, it is estimated, will reduce fatalities by from 25 to 40 per cent—in case of an American Hiroshima.

The special atomic medical course already has been given a trial run behind closed doors. It has also been repeated before select groups of Army and Navy officers, including British observers. As soon as it is agreed how much can be told safely, the classes will be thrown open to the full medical profession. Instruction will be boiled down to five days and will cover the following high points:

1. Casualties from an atomic explosion caused by concussion, flying debris or flash burns. Best protection against the first two is shelter, preferably underground. A loose-fitting, all-white outer covering will be developed to ward off flash burns.

2. Individuals within a mile of the bomb blast are exposed to a lethal dose of radioactivity. This is deadly. No matter how healthy they may appear, it is useless to treat them. Casualties 1 to 3 miles from the target center are in serious danger, but can be saved by prompt medical attention. From 3 to 12 miles away the seriousness of radioactivity lessens.

Deadliest Rays

3. Most dangerous are the deadly gamma rays. These attack the blood cells, causing severe internal hemorrhages. Only blood transfusions on a massive scale can save life. In addition, injury to the white blood cells leaves the victim so defenseless against infection that not even penicillin can fight it off.

4. Alpha and beta particles are less dangerous, since they cannot pass through the skin. But they can enter the body through the nose, mouth or a wound. These particles lodge in the bones and are lethal in heavy doses. Usually they are found in the mushroom cloud that the atomic bomb uncorks. If the bomb is exploded underwater, as at Bikini, the cloud fills with mist which may drift and carry the alpha and beta particles long distances.

Note—Doctors will be taught how to use a dosimeter, an instrument the size of a fountain pen, which will permit them to enter radioactive areas. The instrument will warn them before they are overexposed. Another boxlike device, known as the ion chamber, will be demonstrated to doctors. This is more awkward, but more accurate in gauging radioactivity than the famous Geiger counter.

The People Produce

Last week this writer traveled briefly through the Middle West, which together with a columnist's mail—always a pretty accurate gauge of public opinion—leads him to the conclusion that the American public on the whole are way ahead of their Government.

They may be confused at times; they may not see the road clearly; but they are eager and anxious to do anything which will help preserve the democratic system, help their fellow men and prevent war.

We now hear reports that the Middle West has gone isolationist again, that the folks out there have pulled back into their shell and say to heck with Europe—which, of course, is what Russia wants most. There may be some of that. But when the people of Elburn, Ill., right in the Chicago Tribune's own back yard, get out their wagons and repick their cornfields, that's not isolation. That's patriotism. And when the Boy Scouts of Nebraska repick the cornfields, that also isn't pulling back into their shell.

And when the people of Oklahoma and Kansas set up their own wheat relief committees, not waiting for prompting from Washington, and begin loading cars of grain, that's the kind of thing that makes democracy live. Out in those two big wheat-growing States they have really organized things. Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas, a Republican, is working with former Gov. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, a Democrat, and both are working with William H. Danforth of the Ralston Purina Co. and with E. N. Puckett, head of the Union Equity Cooperative Exchange, together with John Metzler of the Christian Rural Overseas Program and Sam P. Wallingford of the Wallingford Grain Co. in Wichita and a lot of other patriotic people whose names would fill up several columns.

Then there are the Amvets who are suggesting to one million former GIs that they send packages of food and clothing to Europe. And Ray Brannaman, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, is pushing the same.

These are some of the things that make me believe the American people are ahead of their Government—way ahead of their Congress. While Mr. Truman and the Appropriations Committees are worrying about how they will get a congressional appropriation to send wheat over to Europe before the French and Italian elections, the American people have actually come along and are giving the grain.

Wingy Plays Longest One-Nighter

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A gargoyle broke off from the backstage wall of Town Hall and walked towards me. It was Wingy Manone.

Wingy was in from L. A. for a Freddie Robbins concert and his usual rugged mug looked all the more furrowed because of the pain he suffered from having to be back in the Big Town.

"Man," Wingy complained in his gravel voice, "in California you really live. In New York you just work."

In this instance, his words were literally true. He had traveled 3000 miles from his Coast home just to play this single engagement. "The longest one nighter in history," boasted the famed one-armed trumpeter. (He got his nickname, Wingy, from having just one arm, or wing.)

I asked this one-time New Yorker why he had bothered to come back. Wingy scowled in the general direction of 52d st., where the beboppers hold forth. "Them cats are going crazy with bop. People wanted to hear the truth. So they sent for me!"

He continued his anti-bebop diatribe: "It ain't got no beat; it ain't got no melody. If there's no beat and no melody, what is there? . . . Nothin'."

Wingy says he chased bop out of L. A. "I organized four Dixieland outfits . . . my own, Pete Dailey's, Ray Bauduc's and Nappy Lamarr's. Charlie Parker took a

"I'd like to clean up this joint, too," concluded the Capitol recording star, "but I gotta get back to the sunshine and chicks. You'll have to be satisfied with my records."

LOCAL LORE, N. Y. Dept.: Another California refug... Sinatra, is here for a theater stint. He copiloted his own plane to the Coast while his managers sat in Pullmans . . . and chewed their nails . . . The new rhumba king, Noro Morales, felt neglected at Majestic records and switched to MGM . . . Some 80 sides, a new record for records, have been made of tunes from Disney's latest, "Fun and Fancy Free." A monumental piece of song plugging by the Santly-Joy publishing house.

LOCAL LORE, D. C. Dept.: Word has arrived of the first of a series of concerts (October 8) sponsored by the musicians' union and presented in Central High School. Toby Tyler was conductor of the 35-piece group and arrangements were by Toby, Charlie Frankhauser and John Alden Finckel. I missed the music, but I know the men. So I believe all reports of the concert's success.

LOCAL LORE, French Dept.: Frenchmen Hugues Panassie and Charles Delaunay, most famous writers in the world on American jazz, have finally split, with Hugues gaining control of the Hot Club of France and Charles sewing up the nation's most important single chapter, the Hot Club of Paris. Personality differences had these two collaborators smoldering for years. Final break came over bebop, which Delaunay accepted and Panassie rejected.

RECORD BRIEFS: Humor runs strong this week, with honors to Arthur Godfrey for "Too Fat Polka" (Columbia); Beatrice Kay for "Mention My Name in Sheboygan" (Columbia); Chet Atkins for "In Her Own Peculiar Way" (RCA-Victor); and Johnny Mercer and the King Cole Trio for "Save the Bones for Henry Jones" and "Harmony" (Capitol). Atkins has a hillbilly band; but it often sounds like a good, French jazz group. The mad Mercer-Cole antics celebrate the Trio's tenth anniversary.

Benny Goodman's early classics, including "King Porter Stomp" and "Roll 'Em," have been reissued in the album "Let's Dance" (RCA-Victor). Also for dancing: Kay Kyser's "Pushin' Sand" (Columbia) and Tex Beneke's "Too Late" (RCA-Victor).

This Is Children's Last Free Day at Home Exposition

More than 300 District and Virginia school children have been escorted by their teachers without charge through the Home Builders Exposition at the National Guard Armory this week.

Exposition officials said last night that the opportunity for classes to visit the show would expire today. Teachers must register their students between 1 and 3 p. m. and a limit has been set of 30 pupils per teacher.

Two brothers, C. E. and W. S. Cook, who are in the building business in London, were among the visitors to the exposition yesterday.

Third place in the game went to Mrs. Margaret L. Fisher of this city and Mrs. Charles Duffy of New Bern, N. C. Thirty teams competed; all will play through the final round this afternoon without elimination.

Seventy-two pairs are entered, including some of the ranking luminaries in the country. Among the stars are: Mrs. R. C. Young, of Philadelphia, second-ranking women in the United States, Mrs. Paula Bacher, of Newark, N. State Backs Ending Of Va. Beach Service

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission entered an order today granting a petition of Norfolk Southern Railway Company asking authority to discontinue its rail-bus passenger service between Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

The order was made effective November 9 with the provision that discontinuance of rail-bus service is not to be prior to establishment of motor bus service over highways serving the same territory. The case was heard before the SCC was not making money.

Willys to Shut Down For Lack of Steel

Toledo, Ohio., Oct. 16 (AP).—Willys Overland Motors' assembly lines will close down tomorrow because of a steel shortage, W. E. Paris, vice president in charge of operations, announced today.

Approximately 2500 workers will be affected. The plant will resume full scale production Monday, Paris said.

Digges Named Waste Group Head Again

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Reid W. Digges, manager of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission, was reelected president of the Virginia Industrial Wastes and Sewage Works Association today.

Bryant W. Strother and A. H. Paessler, both of Richmond, were reelected to their offices of vice president and secretary-treasurer.

The association, formed in March, is "fast becoming a most important factor in the solution of disposal problems in the State," Digges told the membership.

During discussion periods today, leading Eastern engineers advised the association on means of diminishing the amount of bulk in industrial wastes through chemical processes.

Glen Burnie Sewage Plan Is Approved

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—Alternative plans for handling sewage of the expanding Glen Burnie area of Anne Arundel County have been approved by officials of the Maryland Commission on water pollution control.

Executive Secretary Paul W. McKee said today proposals of County Sanitary Engineer Walter Munroe for sewage facilities in the area—expected to have 13,00 population within two years— had been discussed in a conference at Munroe's office.

McKee said the new developments of Harundale and Glen Gardens would be linked with the Glen Burnie sewage system which enters a Furnace Creek tributary.

Flooring Plant, Strikers Not Negotiating

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 16 (AP).—The struck Colonial Hardwood Flooring Company was closed today, and William A. Danzer, president of the firm, said that "no meetings are scheduled and there won't be, and the longer the strike workers are called back."

He said the plant was being remodeled.

Approximately 90 members of local 472, United Furniture Workers (CIO) walked out October 3 in protest against the firing of a worker, out did not establish a picket line until yesterday when the contract expired.

Danzer called the demand that the worker be reinstated a "red herring" to draw attention from other issues, and said the union had refused his offer to renew the recently expired contract.

He asserted he would not sign a new contract until the CIO has filed no-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Act and a new NLRB election has been held at the plant. (Local 472 has been certified in an NLRB election.)

Clarence Diviliblss, president of the local, said Danzer had rejected a union suggestion that an election be held under the mayor's supervision.

LeViness Cited On Disbarment

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (AP).—Charles T. LeViness 3d, convicted last week in Federal Court of income tax evasion, was cited by the Baltimore supreme bench today to show cause why he should not be disbarred from the practice of law.

A certified copy of the Federal Court docket entries, showing that the lawyer and former State official was fined a total of $10,000 by Federal Judge William C. Coleman for attempting to evade payment of 1943 and 1944 taxes, was attached to the proceeding.

The citation order was signed by Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith.

Pays Call on Tuck

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Eleven members of the House Committee on Agriculture stopped in Richmond today and visited Virginia's Governor before continuing by special bus to Rocky Mount, N. C.

After the visit with Governor Tuck and other State officials, the committee members were shown around the State capitol and later were guests of W. G. Wysor, general manager of Southern States Cooperative at luncheon.

The House group, which is currently engaged in holding hearings in the major agricultural areas of the country to get ideas of farmers on a long-range agricultural program, will hold a hearing in Rocky Mount tomorrow.

Author Warns U. S. to Guard World Position

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—America must either support the Marshall Plan vigorously or "retreat from Europe and abandon our position as a first-class world power," Henry C. Wolfe, author and foreign correspondent, declared here today.

Calling the plan an experiment, the success of which "is by no means assured," Wolfe said that the only alternative is European chaos, coupled with a situation in which this country will find itself "practically alone, a kind of island of democracy in a sea of dictatorship."

"If we try to hedge and carry out the Marshall project only in part, we shall probably throw away whatever money we spend on it," he said in an address at Virginia Tech's first student-faculty convocation of the new session. "On the other, hand if we mobilize American material and moral power behind the Marshall project, we have a good fighting chance to win."

"Europeans fear an armed conflict between the Soviet Union and the United States that would make their continent a no-man's land," the author of "The Imperial Service" continued. "Yet every informed observer with whom I talked in Europe this year agreed that economic collapse and political chaos in western Europe would increase the danger of war. They saw in the Marshall project a kind of last-minute reprieve. That is why the project was received so eagerly by every European who wants peace, freedom and economic recovery."

Although the Marshall Plan "will cost us a great deal of money," Wolfe added, "there is no cheap, easy way for us out of the present world crisis. But I believe that we Americans are still masters of our destiny. We can accomplish just about everything that we set out to do."

2 Men Held for Jury In Alexandria Holdup

Two Norfolk, Va., brothers who allegedly attempted the holdup of an Alexandria restaurant last week were ordered held for action of the grand jury yesterday in Alexandria Police Court.

The men, Joseph E. Poston, 19, and Parrish Poston, 23, entered the Green Front Restaurant, 300 N. Fayette st., before it closed for the night on October 7, police said. The grill's owner, Tom Allen, 51, had placed his German luger pistol on the counter while he counted the day's receipt. Suddenly, police said, one of the brothers seized the gun while the other tussled with Allen, but both soon fled, taking the pistol but no money. They were picked up in Roanoke two days later by Alexandria police.

Farmer Co-op Wins Support At Richmond

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Chairman Clifford Hope of the House Agriculture Committee today threw his support solidly behind the farmer cooperative movement, declaring "in co-op organization lies the hopes for the future of this country."

"It seems to me," he said, "the co-op offers the most effective way for the farmer to help himself."

Hope made the statement in an address at a luncheon given the House Agriculture Committee by the Southern States Cooperative. The luncheon was attended by Governor Tuck.

W. G. Wyson, general manager of the Southern States Co-op, declared "there is now a Nation-wide propaganda drive aimed at the co-ops, trying to get legislation that will hamper, if not destroy, the farmer co-op."

The farmers' right of co-op action is being challenged, he added, and the farmer is looking to Congress to "preserve the freedom of the farmer."

He told the agriculture committee that the propaganda seeks to impress the public with the idea that co-ops are "un-American or communistic" and that co-ops are tax dodgers.

The farmer, he added, is the only businessman who "buys at retail and sells at wholesale," and through cooperatives they are pooling their interest to get their supplies at wholesale.

Governor Tuck told the committee in a brief address, that "the farmer is less susceptible than any other to being indoctrinated by the isms rampant in the world today," adding "the principles of democracy must make farming attractive and profitable."

The committee stopped in Richmond on its way for a Nation-wide tour to get farmers' views on long-range agriculture policy. It will held a formal hearing tomorrow at Rocky Mount, N. C.

Bishop Peele Opens Parley of Va. Methodists

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Approximately 800 delegates to the 165th Virginia annual conference of the Methodist Church were registered here this afternoon, and it is expected that between 1400 and 1600 persons will attend the six-day session at the American Legion Auditorium.

Bishop W. W. Peele of Richmond, presiding bishop of the conference, addressed the opening session tonight.

The conference, second largest in the Methodist Church, has a membership of between 1000 and 1100. Approximately 500 of them are active ministers, with 459 serving as pastors.

The fifth phase of the Crusade for Christ, with emphasis on church school enrollment and attendance, is the main working theme for all of the churches in the entire Methodist system this year and also will be the central theme of the conference.

Clues Point to Man In Slaying of Author

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (AP).—Baltimore County police said today they have evidence which tends to show Charles R. Vaughn, Ohio author and Boy's Club leader, was beaten to death in a Washington-Baltimore Boulevard tourist cabin by a man, rather than a woman.

Earlier, one of the authorities' few leads involved their search for a "stout woman" reported to have been seen with Vaughn in a restaurant shortly before his nude body, the head beaten in by a blunt instrument, was found in a tourist cabin bed late Sunday.

FBI Announces Arrest Of Alleged Extortionist

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced here that William H. Davis, charged with violating the Federal extortion statutes in Roanoke on September 9, was arrested in Douglas, Ariz., tonight.

Charles W. Brown, agent in charge of the Richmond office, said Davis and Jack Randall Mixon were charged with writing extortion notes to B. V. Reid of Rocky Mount. Davis fled shortly after Mixon's arrest earlier this month.

Funds Low, Tuck Warns Va. Teachers

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Governor Tuck tonight told members of the Virginia Education Association that the needs of the State's public school system "must be considered in conjunction with the needs of all the essential public services, and in the light of funds available for distribution among all these fields."

"I need not remind you that the heavy demands upon the treasury, even in these times of inflated revenues, already have brought our general fund to the brink of an unbalanced budget," the Governor told the VEA convention.

The Governor also declared again that "the reported surplus of some $12,500,000 in the treasury last July 1 is but a partial credit on previous obligations, and that from the practical standpoint we have no surplus at all."

Need for Financing

He added that "it is apparent that if Virginia proposes to increase its outlays for services which constitute a recurring demand upon the treasury, it must ponder well the source of the money required to finance such expansions."

Tuck described this problem as one of considerable concern to him and declared that "while I am not now prepared to state my recommendations for or against a tax program, I wish to reiterate that our State constitution calls for a balanced budget and that I shall unhesitatingly carry out my sworn duty to observe this mandate."

The Governor pointed out that the "whole program of government activities, including the operation of the public school system, is predicated upon a sound fiscal policy that can be relied upon to maintain at least a minimum level of services during the vicissitudes of our economy."

Advances Reviewed

The chief executive reviewed advances made in the field of health and the highway system and stressed their connection with the over-all educational picture and then commented:

"It is significant that in the field of public education itself has come one of the most rapid advances in State appropriations. Since the year 1940-41 the amount appropriated from the general fund for the public free schools has been increased from $8,938,645 to $27,443,720 during the current fiscal year. No similar increase has been made in the history of our State, and I dare say, in no other State.

"We are now appropriating to the public free schools approximately 58 per cent of our entire general fund revenues."

The Governor said the total amount available annually for public education has increased from $30,541,645 in 1940-41 to $49,105,642 in 1945-46, the latest year for which complete figures are available. He said estimates are that the total operating costs of the public school system will approach 60 million dollars during the present year.

Hybrid Corn Yield in Va. Sets New High

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—Hybrid corn yields soared to new high marks this fall in tests conducted at the Virginia truck experiment station near here. Those in charge of the experiment attributed the big production gain to four practices used in cultivating the crop.

Statistics released today showed that a new hybrid seed, Virginia 6017, developed by the Virginia Experiment Station at Blacksburg, gave the highest yield. Figured on the acre-age basis its yield was 162.4 bushels compared with the 118.1 bushels per acre for the top vriety in the 1946 test.

Yields for the 36 varieties of hybrids planted this year ranged from 111.2 bushels per acre to 162.4 bushels per acre. In 1946 the yields were from 62.6 to 118.1 bushels per acre.

A Vernon Watts, county agent at large at the experiment station, said four practices were used this summer that were not used the preceding year. Preparing the experiment-plot for the tests, a rye cover crop was planted an dturned under in the spring. The station also used a ton of magnesium limestone and 1000 pounds of 5-1-5 analysis fertilizer. The fertilizer was broadcast prior to planting the corn.

Watts also pointed out that the test plots were irrigated once during the summer.

The experiment station official said a yield of 75 bushels per acre on a farm was considered excellent.

Watts said that the Virginia 6017 hybrid seed is not available yet and probably will not be available for several years.

Virginia Asking Bids on Six Road Construction Jobs

Richmond, Va., Oct. 16 (AP).—The State Highway Department today advertised for bids on six road construction projects, including a large overpass job on Route 11, at Salem.

Bids will be opened October 30 at 10 a. m.

Planned are two four-lane overpasses to replace the narrow bridges over tracks of the Virginian and the Norfolk & Western Railroads at Salem. The five other projects advertised:

Route 123, Fairfax County, overpass Southern Railway near Fairfax station, a job on which bids were rejected as too high last summer.

Route 83, Buchanan County, .91 mile of macadam hard surface, 20 feet wide, from Route 460 in Grundy, eastward.

Route 49, Lunenburg County, bridge over Modest Creek and .47 mile of approaches.

Route 46, Brunswick County, 2.93 miles of 20-foot stabilized base surface treatment, near Lawrenceville.

Private Plane Model Shown At Hybla Valley

The Luscombe Airplane Corp.'s newest entry in the private plane field—the four-place Silvaire Sedan—was demonstrated for newsmen at the Hybla Valley Airport yesterday.

All metal, with flaps, the roomy, smartly appointed plane is powered with a 165-horsepower engine, has a cruising speed of 130 miles an hour and a landing speed of 55. It carries four persons, 100 pounds of baggage and full load of 42 gallons of gas on a 500-mile cruising range.

Line production is under way, according to Julian Prade, jr., assistant sales promotion manager, but a price has not been set. It will be competitive, Prade said, with comparable aircraft.

Old Friends to Hear Miss Truman Sing

By Marie McNair

MARGARET TRUMAN is assured of three particularly enthusiastic rooters when she appears in concert this evening in Pittsburgh. They are Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. George Mesta and Miss Jane Lingo, her schoolgirl chum, who left together yesterday by motor for Pittsburgh.

Roberta Vinson has followed the President's daughter's career with a special interest for she's known Margaret since she was a little girl. "Mumsie" is Margaret's pet name for the Chief Justice's wife.

IS MY FACE RED DEPARTMENT:

Vail W. Pischke, one of the bright young attorneys in Norman Littell's law firm, took his wife to the opening concert of the National Symphony Wednesday night at Constitution Hall. In the lobby he inquired of a man standing by the door if he could tell him where his seats could be found.

The gentleman couldn't but suggested that he go through one of the doors and up the stairs and find an usher. And he added that the ushers could be identified because they were in dress suits.

Mr. Pischke followed instructions with tickets outstretched in his hand. He entered a box, tapped a man in a dress suit on the shoulder. The man was President Truman! The President turned around, looked up to hear Mr. Pischke uttering confused apologies. And Mr. Pischke is today wondering what kept him from saying the words that were on the tip of his tongue, "Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought you were an usher."

On the Capital's Party Front . . .

THE Air Attache of the British Embassy, Group Capt. R. C. Jonas, and Mrs. Jonas entertained at cocktails yesterday in honor of Wing Comdr. and Mrs. Arthur Brenard, who are leaving soon for London. About 50 guests were invited for "after six."

Commander Brenard served as chief of Air Information Service at the British Embassy. Among those who dropped by to say goodby were Capt. and Mrs. Floyd Ferris, Air Marshal Sir Victor and Lady Goddard, Miss Jane Goddard, Air Chief Marshal Sir Guy Garrod, Mr. and Mrs. William Flather, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Dove, Group Capt. and Mrs. Geoffrey Eveleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Nigel Bicknell, Miss Dorothy Dejean, Charles Campbell, Walter Bell and Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Brown.

By Lucia Brown

TENTH day of the Diet Derby! How's he looking as he enters the home stretch? Slimmer, fitter, and in finer fettle? We surely hope so.

If he needed to lose only a few pounds, reducing is over tomorrow. You can place the victory wreath around his neck, take a photo of the finish, and maybe even cut a cake.

But after his hour of triumph, let him still remember Old Man Fat, waiting, waiting, around the bend. There's nothing the old scamp would like better than to slap those lost pounds right back where they came from.

If your spouse returns to his former eating habits after 10 days of self-denial, Old Man Fat will be right on his trail. To keep the blackguard at bay, your better-half should shy away from fattening foods, concentrate on fruits and vegetables, continue that mild exercise, and keep a rough count of the calories.

OF COURSE, if your husband is really hefty with a lot of weight to lose, this 10 days of dieting is only the beginning. Since the diet isn't a stringent one, he can repeat it without harmful effect. Or he can add a few hundred calories to each day's allowance and reduce at a slower pace. He may have to rearrange the days a bit, so that meatless day and the like will come at the right time.

Since he's likely to want a little change in menu, we plan to print a calorie chart tomorrow. From it, like dishes can be selected to substitute for those on the diet—one green vegetable in place of another, for instance, pears for pineapple, or fish for chicken.

The chart won't include all the foods he is likely to meet on a restaurant bill-of-fare—or on the table at home—but it will have a good many of them.

We hope it will help him keep on the right track, ahead of the calories, and out front in the race till he wins the Streamliners Sweepstakes.

How to Keep Rugs, Upholstery Clean

Cornstarch or cornmeal is excellent for taking up liquids spilled on rugs, upholstery or mattresses where washing or soaking is not possible. The starch or meal should be poured over the stain immediately to absorb the liquid.

A paste of cornstarch and cleaning fluid may be used for grease spots.

To remove chewing gum from rugs or upholstery, rub the gum with ice to harden it so that it can be scraped off or soften the gum with egg white and then wash off both, together with cool soapy water.

Your Questions On Homemaking

1. I have tried bleaching badly soiled white clothes with laundry bleach but I am not satisfied with the results. Is there any other method that would be more effective and yet not injure the clothes?

2. How should I go about cleaning the canvas on my lawn chairs? T. M.

1. To get your white clothes whiter, try soaking them for about 15 minutes in warm soapsuds to which a bleach has been added. Use about one tablespoon of bleach to each gallon of water and mix thoroughly before adding the clothes. Do this soaking before washing. When the clothes have soaked, put them through the wringer and wash them in the washer. Rinse immediately and thoroughly three times to remove every trace of bleach. Also, your clothes will be whiter if you add bluing either to your first rinse water or use the bluing which is added with soap to the wash water.

2. Make a thick solution of soap and water and with a stiff brush scrub the canvas of your chairs. When all the surface has been covered with the soap, rinse thoroughly. It is easiest to do this with the garden hose out of doors or in a basement near a drain. Place chairs in sun to dry.

I like to knit men's sleeveless sweaters and would like to develop this hobby into a paying business. Please advise me about this and how to contact shops that deal in such.

Frosting Cookies as They Bake

A little trick for letting cookies frost themselves while they bake. Drop the dough from a spoon on a greased sheet. Dip a finger-tip first in flour, then press it into the top of each cookie to make a little hollow. Break a bar of semi-sweet chocolate into small pieces. Put a piece into the hollow in each cookie. While the cookies bake, the chocolate melts. When the cookies are done, the chocolate becomes firm enough so the cookies may be easily handled.

Charming, Determined

Mrs. Clayton Overrides Overwork

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THERE is no political friction and no squabble behind Will Clayton's decision to quit his job as Assistant Secretary of State. The power upsetting the apple cart is a most charming, most determined lady—Mrs. Clayton. She is sure her husband is killing himself with overwork; naturally wants him to stop.

Last year Mrs. Clayton, on strike, went back to Texas. She announced that if the Assistant Secretary didn't follow soon, it was doubtful she'd be there to greet him, equally doubtful she would return to Washington with him! So, as a pacifier, Mr. Clayton took a brief holiday. But the lady refused to be appeased.

Last Tuesday evening it took all of Undersecretary Lovett's not inconsiderable persuasive powers, high pressured over many hours, to keep Mr. Clayton temporarily in office.

Going the rounds is another Sue Clayton story. Last summer, flying to the ITO conference in Geneva, the wealthy Assistant Secretary, usually a keen, high-stake bridge player, drummed up a game in the plane. The plane landed sooner than expected. He was helping his wife off the plane when she turned and said sharply, "Will, you go right back and pay those boys the $1.65 you lost."

Anne Lindbergh in London

CHARLES LINDBERGH'S wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, hasn't written a book for a long time. She's been leading her usually withdrawn life in Darien, Conn., bicycling between a temporarily rented house and a huge trailer set on recently purchased shore front property. Now whimsical, absent-minded Anne has emerged from retirement and is making an extensive European tour, collecting material for a possible series of articles for the Reader's Digest.

The arrangement is agreeable—Anne may write nothing or a lot, the editors can take all or nothing. At the moment she is in London.

On her trip through Germany she visited the Tony Biddles to see the interesting work Margaret Biddle and other Army wives have been doing for Frankfurt's needy families. Both Lindberghs hate being photographed but Mrs. Biddle snapped industriously. Anne is the same compact, small person, neatly dressed in a tailored suit, her expression wistful and almost as woebegone as during those dreadful months of the Hauptmann trial.

Europe Needs German Industry For Recovery, Gen. Clay Says

By Genevieve Reynolds

The United States Military Government will remain in Germany as long as any other military government stays there. So answered Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. Military Governor of Germany, when the question was put to him at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon yesterday.

General Clay was guest of honor and speaker at the newspaper women's noonday affair held in the Mayflower Hotel.

Referring to various comments that the United States wants to rebuild Germany before other European countries, he declared that there is no basis of fact in the report.

The speaker pointed out that one of the daily struggles going on in Germany today is that of two ideologies—a democratic government as we know it and a single party government, which is the conception of the Soviets.

Coal Is Needed

As for the economic recovery of Europe, the general emphasized, "Europe can't recover until it gets the coal production of the Ruhr, German coal must be made available, not only for Germany but the rest of Europe, in order to help the countries restore their industries."

Explaining that German recovery lags behind that of other countries, General Clay said that this lag is retarding the full recovery of Europe.

When queried about the "hazard" in restoring German industrial production, he replied. "There is a hazard, of course, in restoring any German industry but that hazard must be faced. I believe it to be less disastrous than 70 million starving people in Europe.

"Once production gets going no iron curtain in the world will stop goods from flowing across Europe," explained General Clay. "And this flow will carry with it man's basic fundamental love of individual freedom and rights."

Asked if restoration of German industry would mean the continuance or reestablishment of that country's cartel system, General Clay answered, "No," adding that the cartels disappeared when the occupation army entered and took over.

After describing German economic and political problems, General Clay reviewed aims of the military government. "Our most important mission is the recreation of a decentralized democratic government," he concluded. "If this mission is not accomplished there will not be a peaceful world."

Miss Ruth Cowan, Press Club president, introduced the speaker and distinguished guests at the head table, among whom were Gen. and Mrs. Jacob L. Devers, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Floyd L. Parks, the Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, and Relman Morin, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press.

Gala Reception Honors DAR's National President

By far the gayest and most colorful social event on last night's club calendar was a gala reception honoring Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, president general, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and members of her cabinet who came to town for the organization's two-day board meeting which opened yesterday morning in Constitution Hall.

The District Daughters were hostess at the affair which was held in the Mayflower Hotel. The local society's fete has become a traditional throughout the years, for it has so honored the new president general for several decades.

Mrs. Wilfred J. Clearman, State regent, headed the receiving line. Capt. Thomas J. Kelly, USN, made the introductions. Captain Kelly, whose wife is a daughter, also is a cousin of Miss Lillian Chenoweth, former, State regent.

Music for the reception was furnished by the United States Navy Band. Mrs. Clyde H. Hambelin, State entertainment chairman, had assisting her a large committee plus past regents, State officers and a group of Juniors.

When Dusting Radiators

Slip an old stocking over the radiator brush, then work as usual. You will do a much better job, as the dust will adhere to the stocking, which may be shaken out and put back on the brush again for further work.

Frequent Laundering Aid to Daintiness

Many women risk the danger of a heavy odor by not washing their corselette frequently enough. It is a very easy thing to wash and should be kept just as dainty as any other garment. Select a clear day to wash it as it should dry quickly. Wash in warm suds, using a clean scrubbing brush to brush away the soil. Do not let the garment soak for a length of time on account of the rubber webbing. Rinse well and hang in a sunny, airy place to dry. When dry, press with a warm iron.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother Worries About Her Son, 20, Whose Intense Courtship of Older Girl Keeps Him Thin and Weary; How Can She Break It Up?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our eldest son Jeff, 20, was discharged from the service last November. He planned to resume his college work this September, but the classes in his speciality were already filled for 1947 and he hopes to enroll in California next fall, where another school offers the same training.

Since last April he has been employed, is doing well, has had two pay raises and is making $40 a week, less deductions, at present. He gives me $10 a week and uses the balance of about $25 for clothes, savings and recreations. Lately I've been packing his lunches, which he says he can't afford to buy.

Last January he joined a dancing class which meets three times a week and there met Dulcie, 23, a girl of different faith and nationality. They've been going together since, with Jeff usually getting home long after midnight. These late hours are ruining his health. He is losing weight, has no appetite and feels too tired to do anything around the house.

When the dancing class recessed for summer, he saw Dulcie every Wednesday evening and on Saturdays for all-day picnics, leaving home about 9 a. m. and getting back at 2 or 3 a. m.—so tired that after Sunday church services he goes back to bed, indifferent to family dinner, preferring to sleep straight through to Monday morning.

Mother Reads A Love Letter

YESTERDAY I found a letter from Dulcie on his desk; an 8-page letter calling him darling, telling of her love for him, thanking God for him, begging him to please help her to be strong, effusing over the flowers he sent her Sunday (and he can't afford lunches), complaining about having to help with dishes, etc., at home and saying she doesn't know how she can stand it another year.

I recollect that Jeff, speaking of going to California, had mentioned that Dulcie would go, too, as she has a sister out there with whom she could stay. You can imagine my reaction to that idea; but Jeff sees nothing wrong in it. He says they're old enough to take care of themselves and I'm old fashioned.

Going back to the letter: What do you thing of a girl 23 throwing herself at a boy of 20? How can he resist her? What shall I do? Must I stand by and watch him ruin his life,—as he has been doing this past year? Should I speak to the girl and tell her to go out with older men? Please advise.

He's No Victim Of Femme Fatale

DEAR E. L.: After a tour of Army duty, a lad is apt to be more precocious in his outlook on life, love and women than his years would justify. Perhaps this forced life-seasoning isn't entirely wholesome, and it's natural enough for parents to deplore it, but nevertheless it's a fact of our times that must be taken into account, when trying to understand Jeff's behavior.

If Jeff felt free to unravel all his thoughts to you, doubtless he would explain that he's found in Dulcie a girl who speaks his language and shares his feelings—"about life and things," as he might say. The fact that she's three years his senior doubtless gives her an advantage over younger girls, in the matter of establishing rapport with Jeff;—but from Jeff's viewpoint, it doesn't give her any advantage over him.

By which I mean, it's absurdly unfair to depict Dulcie as a wicked old femme fatale wrapping boyish Jeff around her finger. Rather, his intense court, plus the gist of her letter, signifies a completely reciprocal emotional conflagration. And indeed her appeal to him to help her be strong implies that both are trying to stave off an affair.

Sweethearts Need Friendly Parents

AS I get the picture, they're ardently in love, so far as they know, and doing their best to be decent about it; and I daresay family opposition is chiefly responsible for the morbid tension which characterizes their relationship—making Jeff so weary and Dulcie so anxious.

Thus, there is a chance that if they felt they had parental blessing from both sides of the fence in "going together," they would relax into a healthier, happier, more casual comradeship—and the danger of hasty ill-advised marriage or a reckless despairing affair would be averted. Hence my advice is to change your attitude.

Just now, their love is a burden on their hearts. Try to lift it, by being friendly, interested, magnanimous toward Dulcie, and sympathetic with Jeff's circumstantially frustrated yen to spend all his time with her. That's the best you can do to help them recover sane perspective. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Hints for the Homemaker

A little olive oil dropped at the root of a fern will improve it.

A small glass of iced gingerale will take away a feeling of nausea following a long train or trolley ride. It brings the blood to the stomach and takes away the unpleasant feeling.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

MARRIAGE UNDER DIFFICULTIES. Danny Cupid won out again when Bobby Mayo of the Casino Royal's Mayo Twins was married to singer Judy Blair at Elkton, Md., on Monday morning. Judy and Bobby have been trying to get wedded ever since they met at Edgewater Beach in Chicago last summer. But between professional engagements and the waiting periods before marriage demanded by various States, they couldn't seem to light anywhere long enough to get married and comply with all the legalities. Good old Elkton, Md., was the answer . . . Judy used to sing with Del Courtney's band which appeared in Washington at the Carlton.

Sammy Ferre, the human pepper pot, has organized a new trio, will open at Quonset Inn next Tuesday. Blondly pretty Valerie Lee is the new singing pianist at Quonset.

RAINBOW HACIENDA. Don Pallini, his rumbas, his sambas, his tangos, will turn the Rainbow Room into an adobe hacienda again tomorrow afternoon. Frank (Twinkletoes) De Vera, Pallini director, teaches Rainbow customers how to sprain their sacroiliacs. These lessons are for free and with prizes for the nimble.

TABLE PERCHERS. Judge George D. Neilson and his extremely beautiful wife adorned the Fame Room ringside. Nearby was Superintendent of Police Robert Barrett who seemed to get quite a bang out of Imogene Coca's carryings-on . . . Max Lowe, who's been responsible for the sheen and finish of Shoreham entertainment since the hotel opened, came to the Fiesta to catch Alan Gale's act. At the Fiesta, too, was the entire staff of Gunther Beer—enjoying their favorite brew, natch . . . Mrs. Mitchell Palmer, widow of Woodrow Wilson's Attorney General, often dines at the Muses. She's still a handsome lady.

December will bring the Duncan Sisters to the Club Cairo. They're always top drawing cards in Washington . . . Mischa Bess, boss man of the Balalaika, is off to New York on a search for a star to succeed Gypsy Markoff who'll be leaving in a week or so.

MAMMA! You'd never guess it but Maurita Gordon, who looks 20 and plays piano so brightly in the Uptown cocktail lounge, is the mamma of one, two, three, four children. She ismarried to Robert Harley, also a pianist . . . Another amazing young mother is the lovely blonde hostess at Michel's, Anna Marie Schultz. She has three little boys, 7, 9 and 11. As the wido wof a Marine Corps major she still lives at Quantico, commutes back and forth to her brood every day.

CAFE DIABLE EXPERTS. "Mayor" Ciro of Ciro's enjoys the rite of making cafe diable almost as much as drinking it. It's good as a floor show to watch him drip brandy over sugar, set the whole business aflame at exactly the right moment, gently seethe it in the coffee . . . A femme expert at concocting café diable is Minnie Weber, attractive assistant manager at Brook Farm.

Mr. Wiz, the cherry seer of Merry-Land, will tell you the number of times you have been or will be married. If his total tots up too high,—"Well," says Wiz, "that indicates some extra-curricular activity."

THE BANDSTAND BOYS. Pigeon raising is the hobby of Guitarist Ed Danner of the Neptune Room's Shoreliners . . . After years as an Army radio man, Pianist Ross De Roy is back in Washington—with Al Sakol's band at the Lotus . . . Gene Pringle, bandleader in the Neptune Room, is featuring his own composition, "At Hollywood and Vine." It has a nifty cinema swing . . . There's a beautiful polish and softness to the dance arrangements being done by Oscar Davis' band in the Pall Mall Room. Try listening to their version of "Near to You" . . . Junie Mays and his orchestra are on their way to tack up a record at Cross Roads. They've been there two months, are building patronage all the time . . . Clinton Hobbes and his steamy dance rhythm are making the Nightingale a prime gathering spot for the younger dancing bunch . . . Busiest chum around is Organist Lee Potter of the Dubonnet Room. In his spare time he builds houses, sells cars, is editor of "Hi-Notes," the musicians' union mag.

ON EATING OUT. The Good Earth has been getting some of the biggest lobsters—up to 30 pounds! These monsters of the deep are not served in the shell (they'd scare the gizzards out of backsliders from Alcoholics Anonymous) but form the basis for salads, newburgs and the like . . . If you ask politely Chef Roux of Olmsted's may give you the recipe for his incomparable crab cakes. It involves the use of mayonnaise, chopped peppers, a smidgeon of chopped onion, less than a smidgeon of tabasco . . . Clubs and associations who rent the Trade Winds Room at Ruby Foo's for their parties are in luck. They can order a dinner from the Ruby Foo kitchens, have a dance floor and space for any desired floor show or speechifying. . . . Normandy Farms has that rarest of delicacies—smoked oysters. More and more folks are taking their dinners in the Mayflower Lounge. It's refreshing, informal and you can always dance between courses if you're in the mood.

Whitney Bequest To Aid Artists

Mabele Perry Edwards, president of the Washington Chapter, National Society of Arts and Letters, announces a gift of $1000 from the trustees of the Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney Trust, which was set up by the late Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney to aid young artists. The fund will be used by the chapter to conduct an art scholarship contest through the public schools of Washington and vicinity.

Last year the same gift was made by the trustees in recognition of the splendid work accomplished by the chapter in fostering young talented Americans in creative fields. An art scholarship was awarded to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and was won by Wilma Rose McAtee, young McKinley High School student. Wilma will receive a year's tuition, board and room.

Candy store

The candy store is something like . . . A fairyland for youth . . . Where youngsters go to satisfy . . . The sweetness of a tooth . . . Its window is inviting with . . . Its jars and boxes bright . . . Of chocolates, nuts and peppermints . . . That tempt the appetite . . . The candy store is meant for him . . . Who has a special date . . . And for the lady who is not . . . Concerned about her weight . . . It is the place where people send . . . A package on its way . . . To celebrate a birthday or . . . To honor Mother's day . . . Where some good bosses think about . . . The stenos they should please . . . And husbands rush when they recall . . . Their anniversaries.

Lament on the Passing of the Lowly Penny

Capt. S. M. Alexander, USN, of 1405 Oakcrest dr., Alexandria, Va., takes me back to my earliest newspaper days—when I sold them after school.

Captain Alexander wonders what has happened to the penny banks that savings institutions used to distribute among youngsters—and, for that matter, what has happened to the penny.

The banks used to be given out to encourage thrift. A penny was money, and we were taught that the saving of pennies would lead to the accumulation of dollars.

But the penny banks have all but disappeared, and so has the importance of the penny itself—and Captain Alexander wonders what we're coming to.

I'm sure I don't know, Skipper. We used to make three quarters of a cent profit on each paper we sold, and I recall the first time my daily sale hit 40. I went home thinking:

"Golly, a cool 30 cents—for just one day's work."

PERSONAL NOTES

"Old Man" Reid, 6703 Connecticut ave., Chevy Chase, Md.: It's a perfectly wonderful poem but unfortunately too long for this space. Thanks.

D. W. Wigle, Navy Annex: That "5-pound assailant, with feet 8 or 9 inches tall" certainly sounds like a dangerous character. Let's hope they nab him.

Mrs. John L. Ford, 5511 43d pl., Hyattsville, Md.: It's perfectly obvious why the same Barnaby strip ran for two days. Somebody in the composing room must have thought it was exceptionally good that day.

SOFT JOB

I never gave much thought to Pepco's meter readers until I saw the article about them in this month's "Pepconian."

But now I'm convinced they have one of the toughest jobs in town.

Meter readers are often accused of swiping things from the homes they visit, but have learned to face such charges patiently, and the missing article usually turns up later. Not one of the readers has ever been found guilty.

Sometimes they have to climb to the attic to check the meter, and sometimes it's in the bathroom. Mostly, though, it's in the basement—which can usually be reached by tripping over whatever is stored on the top step of the darkened stairs.

Each month the readers check about a quarter of a million meters, and each month an average of 12 of them are bitten by the dogs they encounter on the premises.

One man was clawed by a cat, and another found a full-grown lion in the basement. To the Pepco meter readers, it's all in a day's work.

POLICE INCIDENT

Virginia Woodin of 1507 Hancock st., Arlington, Va., reports an incident involving three policemen whose names she doesn't know.

Tuesday night at about 11, near 21st st. and Constitution ave. nw., Virginia's car gave out to a familiar cough—and stopped. No gas.

A man who might have been a park policeman (Virginia isn't sure) pulled up alongside, asked what was wrong, and reached for his mobile telephone.

NEWS OF THE DAYS

Reporter John W. Ball solemnly passes along the fruits of his day-by-day coverage of the Agriculture Department:

"The Department has 10 Days, and five Knights. It boasts a Millard B. Sunday, Thomas W. Monday, and two Fridays—Theresa K. and Edith M.

"But there will be no Egeless days for the Department as long as its Agricultural Research Administration retains the services of Philip H. Ege."

Parley on British Film Tax Impends

NEW YORK.—Donald Nelson, as representative of the independent film producers, and Eric Johnston, representing the film industry, will confer with Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Minister Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps about easing the taxation on American-made movies. They'll leave for England next week.

Pier 57, which burned down a few days ago, was covered by insurance policies totaling $1,300,000.

Francis Sullivan, the British film star who was brought here in the short-lived "Duet for 2 Hands," will go to Hollywood to appear in Ingrid Bergman's "Joan." Sullivan was last in Hollywood in 1934, when he made "Great Expectations." But he won his recognition by playing the same role, the same way, in the 1947 remake.

At the mid-December dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, its first national award for promoting interfaith understanding will be made to President Truman. Louis Nizer will make the presentation.

Artie Shaw and Sinclair Lewis have been corresponding with each other. When Lewis learned that Shaw is at work on his first novel, the Nobel Prize-winner offered this advice to a first novelist: "There are two things to remember. First, convince yourself that the book will never be finished. Second, pretend that you don't care."

Constance Collier, who doesn't weigh as much as Elsa Maxwell, attended one of last week's premieres. An autograph hunter approached her and asked: "May I have your autograph, Miss Maxwell?" . . . Miss Collier beamed and replied: "Thank you, but I'm not Miss Maxwell" . . . Then Miss Collier turned to her companion and said: "Now that's what I call a nice person, a divine person. Can you imagine that sweet thing mistaking me for Marilyn Maxwell?"

Because of the demand for its return engagement in all the cities visited so far, The Freedom Train's tour probably will be extended for a year. The required additional funds will be raised by private subscription.

Margaret Webster and Eva LeGallienne will do Ibsen's "Ghosts" and "Cradle Song" this season.

Fred Finklehoffe, producer of "The Heiress," and Phil Silvers, star of the new hit musical "High Button Shoes," told Jed Harris about a reefer-smoking experiment they had made. Harris started to laugh and gasped: "This is so funny—I don't think I'll be able to stop laughing unless I leave the country." Friday night Harris phoned from Paris. "I've stopped laughing," he reported. "I'll be home Tuesday."

The new deal between the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art is a 10-year pact. The Metropolitan will give the Modern Museum $50,000 a year with which to purchase paintings. If, at the end of the 10-year period, the Metropolitan decides that it wants any of the paintings bought by the Modern Museum with this money, then the Metropolitan will pay the difference between the current appraisal and the original purchase price.

The Metropolitan also paid the Modern Museum $200,000 for paintings to be transferred immediately, and delivered Picasso's portrait of Gertrude Stein and a Maillol piece.

Sherman Billingsley, who has revived his Sunday night balloon prizes, issued warning slips to the lady contestants, just before the scramble on the Stork Club floor, "Please leave your jewelry and other valuables with your escort during the competition."

Johnny Meyer's press agent lost his franchise at El Morocco last night by protesting the size of the check.

Walter Abel came to New York last week as a representative of the actors in organizing a basic deal for Television. He will report back to Hollywood next week . . . Frank Chapman, husband of Gladys Swarthout, will become a show producer.
